The John Alden House was built in 1653 by Jonathan Alden and is located at 105 Alden Street in Duxbury, Massachusetts. In 1627 John Alden received a grant of land in Duxbury. He built his house near the location of this house, and the dimensions of his foundation coincides with the dimensions of the older room of this house – the kitchen, borning room and buttry. John Alden and Priscilla Mullins spent their later years in this house and John Alden died here in his 89th year.

Our ancestors, some of whom are your ancestors, have been researched by many of their respective descendants over a long period of years. During the course of our research which covers nearly half a century, beginning with a high school English assignment in 1927, we have found that our neighbors are our relatives and that our relatives are scattered throughout the fifty states of the United States. We have welcomed many of our relatives into our home; talked to many of them by telephone; and corresponded with hundreds of them by letter. Their names are too numerous to mention, but some of their names are scattered through the pages of this book.

Primary source records have been consistently sought. Bible, cemetery, census, church, and marriage records; wills, inventories, estate settlements, guardian bonds, deeds, patents, land grants, and tax lists; military records, militia payrolls, pension applications, depositions and land warrants; family record sheets, letters, and conversations have been accumulated, and many records or excerpts from records have been included in this volume to prove relationships. Biographical information was also gleaned from secondary sources which are listed in the Bibliography.

Personal research was done by the compilers in many county courthouses in Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, and Massachusetts. Research was also done in the following libraries: the Los Angeles Public Library, Los Angeles, California; the California State Library, Sacremento, California; the Denver Public Library, Denver, Colorado; the Library of Congress and the National Archives, Washington, D.C.; the Miami Public Library, Miami, Florida; the Newberry Library, Chicago, Illinois; the Indiana State Library, Indianapolis, Indiana; the Kansas State Historical Society, Topeka, Kansas; the Maryland Historical Society, Baltimore, Maryland; the Hall of Records, Annapolis, Maryland; the New England Historic Genealogical Society, Boston, Massachusetts; the State Historical Society of Missouri, Columbia, Missouri; the Kansas City Public Library, Kansas City, Missouri; the St. Louis Public Library, St. Louis, Missouri; the Missouri State Historical Society, St. Louis, Missouri; the New York Public Library, New York, New York; the North Carolina Department of Archives and History, Raleigh, North Carolina; the Tennessee State Library and Archives, Nashville, Tennessee; the Genealogical Society Library, Salt Lake City, Utah; the Virginia State Library, Richmond, Virginia; the Wisconsin State Historical Society, Madison, Wisconsin; and the Society of Genealogist Library, London, England. Information and records from England were also obtained from the Public Record Office in London, numerous Guildhalls, and several church parishes in the counties.

Preface

During the Bi-Centennial we revised Genealogical History of Our Ancestors, 1970, as a tribute to our heritage and as a legacy for our grandchildren. In the 1970 edition we accounted for sixty-nine families of different names as our known ancestors. Our continuing research has disproved three lines but has yielded an additional forty-two ancestral lines. This revision contains one hundred eight family names or ancestral lines which we have proven as our ancestors.

In a ten-generation time frame, we jointly have 2,048 ancestors. One of the 2,048 was a mutual ancestor, Maj. Richard Ewen of Anne Arundel County, Maryland, so after we had been married thirty-three years we found we were ninth cousins once removed.

The publication of this genealogical work is an accomplishment made possible through the help of many people, most of whom we have never seen. We have attempted to recognize these persons through footnotes. County records are the backbone of any genealogical study, and we wish to thank the many county officials who have aided us in our search. To the many librarians we owe a deep sense of gratitude for the aid they have given us in locating published information, and we thank the compilers to whom we refer throughout the book for their work in genealogical research. To our correspondents we say thanks for they have shared information that they have gleaned from many sources which has been an invaluable aid. We treasure the friendships we have made through correspondence and personal contacts.

We have personalized our family history by travel over a period of twenty years. During the summer of 1975 we spent some time doing research in the Hall of Records at Annapolis, Maryland, the Maryland Historical Society, and the Virginia State Library. While in the Richmond, Virginia, area we visited the plantations of Bremo and Malvern Hills on the James River where the Cocke and Pleasants families settled in Curles Neck. A low stone fence surrounds the burial place of Richard Cocke only a short distance from the site of his dwelling house at Bremo.

A drive through Essex County, formerly Old Rappahannock County, Virginia, took us to Tappahannock, formerly Hobbs Hole, which was the general area in which Robert Rutherford, Maj. John Weir, and James Rennolds lived.

While in Maryland we sought out Tulip Hill, formerly called Poplar Knowle, for it was here that Richard Talbot and his wife, Elizabeth Ewen, lived. No sign of their house remains but he stated in his will a bequest of Poplar Knowle "where I now live." Some of the magnificent trees surely must have offered shade to the Talbot family. Just down the road was Cedar Park, a quaint looking house with a steep pitched roof. It is said to be the oldest existing structure in Anne Arundel County in which religious services were held for in the center of the house is the original house of Benjamin Lawrence and Elizabeth Talbot. In the attic is the entire length, 80 feet, of the roof of the original house, a small portion of which we photographed and included in the illustrations elsewhere in this book.

The South River Club House was built on the land owned by Col. Nicholas Gassaway. We wandered through the Old Quaker Burying Ground and the cemetery surrounding All Hallows Church knowing that some of our Quaker ancestors had been interred in unmarked graves. As we crossed the Severn River we could not help but think of the Battle of the Severn and the influence our ancestors had in the formation of the government of Maryland.

We also visited Piscataway in lower Prince George's County near where the Greene, Boarman, Dyer, and Edelen families lived. This was the first area which we felt was being swallowed up by the urban sprawl, the other areas being still very rural.

Leaving Maryland we drove to Massachusetts and followed the Pilgrim trail. We stood near Plymouth Rock which served as a stepping stone to a new world for the Pilgrims as they disembarked from the Mayflower. We stood silently in front of the sarcophagus which contains the bones of William Mullins and his wife Alice, and visited the grave site of John Alden. We stood in the rooms of the house in which John Alden and his wife, Priscilla Mullins, had lived.

We found the graves of Deacon Samuel Bass and his wife, Anne Savil, in the Hancock Cemetery in downtown Quincy, Massachusetts. Also in the Hancock Cemetery was the grave of Henry Neale and we read the inscription on his headstone stating he was the father of twenty-one children. We located the land formerly owned by Deacon Samuel Bass and saw a door from the house in which he lived and which he must have opened many times.

The culminating highlight of this trek into our ancestral history was finding the grave of the Rev. Obadiah Holmes in Middletown, Rhode Island, Buried beside his wife on the land which he once owned overlooking the Sakonnet River, he is surrounded by other members of the Holmes family. Obadiah Holmes stands today in Rhode Island as a symbol of religious freedom, a freedom for which he was whipped thirty lashes in the square in Boston.

We are proud of our heritage.

Key

Every book is individual and a few notes should be made as to the format of this book. Each family name is treated individually and the family is preceded by a lineage chart showing the line of descent to our grandchildren.

The names of the children of a couple are shown both on their father's page and on their mother's page. The numbers within a family are self-contained, and the cross reference to the other family is through the name of the spouse. The name of the spouse is always italicized in the heading.

Dates printed in italics in the lineage charts are approximate dates. In studying old records one must be conscious of two things. First, the English did not adopt the Gregorian Calendar until 1752, so by our calculations of time the day of the month was ten days behind up to 28 February 1700, and thereafter eleven days behind up to the time of the conversion of the Julian Calendar to the Gregorian Calendar which took place 2 September 1752 and was followed by 14 September 1752. Secondly, all legal dates were recorded according to the legal year which began 25 March making March the first month and February the twelfth month. Thus a baptism recorded 25 11 1650 would be translated to read 25 January 1651. If the adjustment of ten days were made the baptism would have taken place 4 February 1651. As wills were written and recorded in so-called Old Style the date written and date probated remain per se in the records section. If the date fell in January or February or carried a double date [1650/1] the calendar year, 1651, was used in the heading to give a more realistic time frame to the date of birth or death of an individual. An adjustment of the day of the month as explained was not attempted as the adjusted date would be in complete conflict with the recorded date, not only in January and February but throughout the entire year.

Standard abbreviations have been used for born, died, buried, married, and daughter.

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

John Alden's ancestry has never been traced. An Alden family resided in Harwich, County Essex, England, at the time of the sailing of the Mayflower. One of this family, named John Alden, was possibly the Pilgrim. He may have been related to Robert Alden, one of the merchant adventurers. (The Truth About the Pilgrims, by Francis R. Stoddard, 1952, p. 97.)

John Alden, born 1599, Southampton, England, died 22 September 1687. Father, George Alden; mother, Jane; married 12 May 1622 to Priscilla Mullins. (LDS Temple Index Card, The Genealogical Society of the Church of the Latter Day Saints, Salt Lake City, Utah.)

John Alden, about 1622, Plymouth, Massachusetts.

"John Alden was hired for a cooper, at South-Hampton, wher the ship victuled; and being a hopfull yong man, was much desired, but left to his owne liking to go or stay when he came here; but he stayed, and maryed here."[1] These words, written by Gov. William Bradford, give a first-hand account of young John. Youngest and seventh of the forty-one signers of the Mayflower Compact in November 1620, he was hired to tend the barrels of food, the casks of beer, and the casks of water which were taken aboard the ship for the voyage to America.[2]

John Alden was one of the substantial citizens of Plymouth Colony and was elected and appointed to responsible positions and offices in the colonial government for more than half a century. He was elected assistant to the governor 1 January 1634 and was re-elected each year through 1639.[3] The succeeding ten years, during the 1640's, he served as deputy from Duxbury on the committees of the several towns, and was returned to the office of assistant to the governor 4 June 1650.[4] He subsequently was elected each year, and was last recorded as an assistant in June 1686.[5] He was elected deputy governor at Plymouth in 1665 and in 1677.[6]

During his years as assistant to the governor, John Alden also served three years as treasurer. He was elected 3 June 1656 and re-elected for two successive one year terms.[7] On 3 June 1657 he was appointed by the court to a committee to reduce the laws of the colony "to such as they can conduce to the benefit of the government." In the various court records he was often titled either as Gentleman or Mr. Alden.

He served as a member of the Council of War in 1646, 1653, 1658, and 1667.[8] In 1658 John served as an Ensign under Capt. Miles Standish in the Duxbury Military Company. Alden was also responsible for training the men of Duxbury to serve in the militia for their own defense against the Indians.

On several occasions John Alden served as mediator in boundary disputes between the settlers and the Indians. He and Lt. Southworth were appointed 3 June 1657 to go to Yarmouth and Barnstable to settle differences between the settlers and the Indians. Alden also acknowledged the markes of many of the Indians as they conveyed their lands to the white man. He acknowledged the deed 31 October 1672 in which it was stated that Pompanuhoo freely gave a tract of 100 acres of land near Sandwich to his friend whom he designated as Charles. In another deed dated 6 April 1674 Quachattasett sold his land for nine pounds in Indian goods.

In 1643, seven men of the colony, William Bradford, Edward Winslow, Thomas Prence, Miles Standish, William Brewster, John Alden, and John Howland assumed the debt the colony owed to James Sherley of London. The citizens of New Plymouth were thus relieved of financial stress and assured of the continuation of trade with England.[9]

After the division of the common property in 1627, Alden and Miles Standish established the town of Duxbury where John was listed as a freeman in 1633.[10] John received a grant of land 6 March 1637 lying adjacent to his farm on Blewfish River, and on the same date, a tract of 200 acres of land north of South River was granted jointly to Alden and Standish.

In 1634, John Alden accompanied John Howland to the trading post at Kenebeck, Maine, an unfortunate expedition in which a man was shot for murdering one of Howland's men. Upon returning to Boston, Alden was imprisoned although he had not witnessed the shootings. Capt. Miles Standish secured his release about a week later by presenting a deposition relating the circumstances of the case and a letter written by the governor on Alden's behalf.

William Bradford compiled a list of the names of the Mayflower passengers. He wrote that John and Priscilla Alden were then both living and were the parents of eleven children.[11]

John Alden died intestate, and letters of administration were granted 8 November 1687 to his son Jonathan who presented an inventory. Final settlement was made 13 June 1688 and each of the heirs acknowledged receipt of a portion of the estate. Those who signed the acknowledgment were John Alden's sons John, Joseph, and David; his daughters Priscilla and Mary Alden; and his sons-in-law, William Peabody, Thomas Delano, Alexander Standish in the right of his deceased wife Sarah, and John Bass in the right of his deceased wife Ruth.[12] In 1627 Elizabeth, who later married William Peabody, was listed as a daughter of John Alden.[13] The General Society of Mayflower Descendants ruled in 1947 that Rebecca married Thomas Delano. Zachariah was named as a son in a footnote in History of Plymouth Plantation 1620-1647. All of his eleven children were thus accounted for in the above cited records.

Ruth Alden married John Bass in Braintree, Massachusetts, and their marriage ceremony was performed by her father, Mr. John Alden of Duxbury, Massachusetts.[14]

Ruth died when she was thirty-nine or forty years of age. As she preceded her father in death her heirs received her share of her father's estate. In the settlement of the estate of John Alden dated 13 June 1688, John Bass signed "in the right of my wife Ruth, deceased," thus acknowledging receipt of Ruth's share of her father's estate.[15]

In addition to her own date of birth, the name and date of birth of each of her seven children were recorded in the town records of Braintree, as well as the date of her death and the date of death of her husband.[16]

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Nathaniel Ashcom died testate in Calvert County, Maryland. In his will dated 25 March 1687 and proved 19 May 1687 he devised to his son Nathaniel the testator's portion of the tract of land called "Deserts" taken together with Benjamin Lawrence and brother Samuel Ashcom. (Calvert Co. Wills, Liber 4, f. 254, Hall of Records, Annapolis, MD.)

This would imply that Ann Ashcomb was a sister of Nathaniel and Samuel Ashcomb. There are a number of extant Ashcomb wills in Maryland but none include the name of Ann Lawrence.

Ann Ashcomb was transported into the colony of Virginia by John Senier. He received land 9 August 1650 for the transportation of Ann and thirteen other persons into the colony.[1]

Ann married Benjamin Lawrence in Virginia, and they resided in Accomack County during the 1660's.[2] By 16 March 1670, they had migrated into the Eastern shore of Maryland and were living in Somerset County, for on that date Benjamin proved his rights for 200 acres of land due to him for transporting himself, his wife, and two sons into the Province.[3] They subsequently moved across the Chesapeake and settled at The Deserts in Calvert County.[4]

The names of Ann's sons, Benjamin and Nehemiah, were proved in the land warrant which allowed 200 acres of land to Benjamin Lawrence for transportation 16 March 1670.[5] The names of her other two children, Lucy and Thomas, were cited as sister and brother of Benjamin Lawrence, Jr., in the latter's will probated 3 July 1685 in Anne Arundel County, Maryland.[6] Benjamin Lawrence, Jr., was also cited as a son of Benjamin and Ann (Ashcomb) Lawrence of The Deserts in Calvert County in Maryland.[7]

THE BALEY FAMILY

1 Temperance Baley, b. in 1617 in Virginia; bur. in family cemetery at Bremo, now Curles Neck Farm near Richmond, Henrico County, Virginia.

Lt. Col. Richard Cocke, b. about 1600 in England; d. in 1665 at Bremo, bur. in family cemetery at Bremo, now Curles Neck Farm, Henrico County, Virginia; m. Temperance Baley, probably widow of John Browne, about 1637 in Virginia.

2 Thomas Cocke, d. 1697

3 Richard Cocke, b. 10 Dec. 1639; d. 10 Nov. 1706

Temperance Baley was probably the daughter of Sisley Jordan. In 1623, at the age of six years, Temperance was living at Jourdan's Journey in Charles City County, Virginia, and was listed on the muster of William Farrar and Mistress Sisley Jordan, 1624/1625.[1] In 1620 a tract of 200 acres of land in the Territory of the Great Weyanoke had been placed in her name for Samuel Jordan patented "388 acres of land in or near upon Sandys his hundred, towards the land of Temperance Baley."[2]

The patent re-issued to Richard Cocke 10 October 1652 included 100 acres of land due by patent to Temperance Baley 20 September 1620.[3] His marriage to Temperance Baley is posited from this patent.[4]

In his will dated 4 October 1665, Richard Cocke requested that he be buried in the orchard at Bremo near his first wife. He also acknowledged and confirmed in his will that his elder son, Richard, was to receive cattle, hogs, and other property which properly belonged to his elder son, Richard, by a gift from the latter's mother.[5]

Elizabeth Banton and Richard Edelen were married 29 October 1663 by the Bishop of London before they left for Maryland. The marriage was recorded in The Registry of the Bishop of London, according to the College of Arms in London.[1]

There is a family tradition that Elizabeth's father did not approve of the marriage and that Elizabeth and Richard eloped. In all probability she was of the Catholic faith while Richard's father and brother were staunch ministers of the Church of England.[2] Be that as it may, when Richard arrived in Maryland he embraced the Catholic faith.

Richard demanded land in 1664 in the Province of Maryland.[3] In 1665 Richard Edelen declared before the Provincial Court that he would return to England. Elizabeth accompanied him on the voyage, and gave birth to a son while in England, for in 1669 Richard made a demand for land for the transportation of his son, Philip, into the Province.[4]

The family established their residence in St. Mary's County, The children of Elizabeth Banton and Richard Edelen were named in their father's will,[5] except Philip, and he was named in the land patent in 1669.

Comfort Barnes and her husband, Patrick Dyer, were residents of Prince George's County, Maryland, at the time of his death, about 1720. At that time, their children were probably all minors.

She married secondly Thomas Edelen of Piscataway Parish in Prince George's County. He died testate in 1749 and devised the plantations Edelenton and Edelenton's Addition to his widow, Comfort, with entail to his goddaughter, Catherine Spalding.[1]

Comfort (Barnes) Edelen died testate in 1760 and named each of her children in her will except Sarah and James Dyer. She made bequests to her children Penelope. Elizabeth, Rebecca, Edward, and Thomas Dyer; to her grandchildren, the children of her son Edward, her son Thomas, and her deceased son William Dyer; and to her great granddaughter, Ann, the daughter of Basil Spalding.[2] The names of five of Comfort's children, and the date of birth of each, were recorded in the St. John's Church Register in Piscataway Parish in Prince George's County, Maryland.[3]

Samuel Bass, his wife Anne, and their sons, Samuel and John, emigrated in 1630 from Saffron Walden, England, to Boston, Massachusetts. Samuel was admitted as a freeman 14 May 1634 in Roxbury, Massachusetts, and the family moved to Braintree in 1640. He was elected the first deacon of the church of Braintree 6 July 1640 and served as deacon for more than fifty years.

Deacon Samuel Bass was one of Braintree's foremost men, active in political affairs and community government. He served in the Massachusetts Legislature as a representative of the town of Braintree for twelve years, and was deputy of the general court from 1641 to 1664. As a selectman in the town of Braintree he was instrumental in formulating the laws which provided for schools, churches and highways.[1] In town meetings held 19 December 1642,[2] and 2 January 1656,[3] Deacon Bass and others laid out highways. The road for goodman Hayden followed the line of Deacon Bass down the hill past goodman Webb, indicating that the farms of John Hayden, Samuel Bass, and Christopher Webb were in close proximity to one another in the town of Braintree.

The selectmen of Braintree were interested in environmental protection and social problems. Deacon Samuel Bass and others ordered 1 January 1644 that every householder should have a ladder standing against his chimney to secure himself and the town against fire.[4] An order was issued by the selectmen 6 February 1653 stating that "no man shall build a house or cottage within the township of Braintree without the townsmen's consent."[5] Bass and others ruled 22 January 1674 that it was an offense for a man to build a mill and make use of the river unless he ground grain for all of the inhabitants of Braintree.[6] The town of Braintree acquired 1,500 acres of land from Boston to be used as a commons. Deacon Bass was one of the arbitrators of this transaction 27 August 1673.[7] He was an active selectman in 1677, and was mentioned in the record dated 19 November 1687 when the selectmen voted to preserve the young trees on the plain cornering his land.[8]

Samuel Bass died testate. In his will, dated 11 May 1694 and probated 31 January 1695, he made bequests to his sons John, Joseph, and Thomas; to his daughters, Mary and Sarah; and to his grandchildren, Samuel Bass, John Bass, Eva Ciling, and Sarah Ciling.[9] All of his children were named in the article "Notes on the English Origin of Dea. Samuel Bass and William Savil of Braintree, Mass."[10] Record of the marriage of Samuel Bass and Anne Savil and the baptismal records of their sons, Samuel and John, are extant in the parish register of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin in Saffron Walden, England.[11] The dates of death of Samuel Bass and his wife, Anne, were recorded in the town records of Braintree.[12]

Hannah, widow of Samuel Sturtevant, m. John Bass, 21 September 1675, Braintree, Massachusetts.

John Bass was baptized 18 September 1630 in Saffron Walden, England, and was cited in the record as a son of Samuel Bass.[13] He immigrated with his parents in the fall of 1630 to Boston, Massachusetts, from County Essex, England. His father settled in the town of Braintree, Massachusetts, in 1640. In 1673 John was a drummer in the band in Mount Williston.[14] This tract of 1,500 acres of land, Mount Williston, was acquired by the town of Braintree 27 August 1673, and John's father, Deacon Samuel Bass, was one of the selectmen who negotiated the transfer of land.

John and his son, John Bass, Jr., were delegated duties by the selectmen of Braintree during the same period of years. John Bass, Sr., was appointed as viewer of fences 4 March 1695, and as tithingman 3 March 1701.[15] In the list of freeholders which was compiled 10 January 1698, John Bass, Sr., and John Bass, Jr., were among the subscribers who agreed to defend their rights against any who would endeavor to disposses them of their lands.[16]

John and his brother Thomas, sons of Deacon Samuel Bass, were appointed administrators by their father in his will. John and his brother inventoried the estate of Samuel Bass, deceased, 3 January 1695 and presented the inventory to the judge of the probate court 31 January 1695. They appraised the worth of their father's estate in the amount of £942.1.6. According to the terms of the will of his father, John received 10 acres of salt marsh, a wood lot in the Captains Plain, the malt house and the orchard in front of the malt house, half the well and half the kitchen, some land in the stony field, and a quarter part of the upland of the farm after certain legacies were paid. Any overplush of the marsh was also to be given to John and passage to his barn was reserved. The malt house and two acres of planting land in the stony field were entailed to John's son, John Bass, Jr., by Deacon Samuel Bass.[17]

John Bass, Sr., died testate. In his will, dated 25 June 1716 and probated 22 October 1716, he called himself a wheelwright. He named each of his sons and daughters as follows: John, Samuel, Joseph, Mary Copeland, Sarah Thayer, and his deceased daughters Ruth and Hannah.[18] A petition was presented 22 October 1716 by John's son, Joseph Bass, of six reasons why the will of John Bass, deceased, should not be proved. According to the terms of his father's will, Joseph had previously received his portion of the estate and he was given a bequest of five shillings only. In the petition Joseph designated two of his sisters as Ruth Webb and Hannah Adams. In spite of the petition the will was probated and an inventory of the estate was presented 11 February 1717 by John Bass, Jr., the executor of the estate.[19] The date of marriage of John Bass and Ruth Alden, their respective dates of death, and the dates of birth of all of their children were recorded in the town records of Braintree.[20]

Ruth Bass received a small legacy in 1697 and was designated as "cousin" in the will of Sarah Faxson, widow of Thomas Faxson and daughter of William Mullins, Jr.

In the will written 25 June 1716 by her father, John Bass, a bequest reads as follows: "I Give to all my Grand Daughters that are the children of my two Deceased Daughters Viz: Ruth and Hannah Ten Shillings apiece to be paid to each of them by my Executor, in convenient Time after my Decease." A petition dated 22 October 1716 and signed by Joseph Bass, son of John Bass, deceased, cited six reasons for the prevention of the probation of the will. The sixth reason reads: "For that the Testator has given Legacys to the Daughters of his Children Ruth Webb and Hannah Adams both Decd and has totally Excluded their Sons." The objections were fruitless and the will was proved 22 October 1716.[21]

The dates of birth and death of Ruth Bass and Peter Webb and the dates of birth of their children were recorded in the town records of Braintree, Massachusetts.[22]

Petition of the Heirs
Suffolk SS. To the Honourable Samuel Sewall, Esquire, Judge of Probate, etc.:

Joseph Bass and Ephraim Thayer and other the children of John Bass, late of Braintrey (Massachusetts), deceased, humbly pray that the will of the said late father may not be proved, for the following reasons:

(1) First because he was under great insanity of mind at makeing the Said will and Benjamin Webb one of the Witnesses to y^e^ Said Will has declared that y^e^ Testator acted childish when he Executed the same.

(2) For that he was persuaded by his Son John Bass and wife to cutt off his Son Joseph by makeing this new will and being Stricken in years was much awed by his grandson, John Bass.

(3) For that the Testator in his life Settled some part of his Estate by Deed upon his Son John and by his present will has given it to his Grandson Samuel Bass which Evidences that he was Non Compas Mentis at the time of the makeing of y^e^ said will.

(4) For that he has given his Wife but one forth part of his Estate when the Law of this Province sets forth one-third to the widow.

(5) For that there is a Legacy in the Said Will uncertain which is given to his Grandson John Bass Son John when at the same time there is no such person in being nor any probability that there will be at present.

(6) For the Testator has given Legacies to the Daughters of his children, Ruth Webb and Hannah Adams, both deceased, and has totally excluded their Sons.

Charles Beaven emigrated from England prior to 1666.[1] Having paid his own passage to Colonial America, Charles was entitled to a tract of land. He received a warrant 14 June 1666 for land in St. Mary's County, Maryland.[2] Soon afterwards he moved northward and settled on new land in Charles County which was later sub-divided into Prince George's County in 1690. Charles rapidly acquired a large acreage of land with slaves and considerable personal property.[3]

Charles Beaven died testate. His will, dated 20 June 1698, was proved 2 June 1699 in Prince George's County, Maryland. He appointed his wife, Mary, as executrix and appointed Richard Marsham, whom he named as his brother-in-law, to assist her in the administration of his estate. He named each of his children in his will and bequeathed property to each. He devised the home plantation and an adjacent tract of land called Her Grove to his wife, Mary, and at her death to his son Richard. The six hundred acre tract of land called Hickory Thickett was devised equally among his daughters Sarah and Margaret and his son Charles. His personal property was divided equally among his six children and his wife.[4] The name of the first wife of Charles Beaven is not known to the compilers.

She inherited a cow and the increase forever, and a share, or one-seventh, of her father's personal property.[5] Elizabeth and her sister, Catherine Beaven, received personalty from the estate of Deborah Kennerson 1 May 1703.[6]

She acknowledged her dower rights "freely and voluntarily without fear of her said husband or fear of his displeasure" in a deed of gift dated 2 March 1743 in which John Boone deeded to their son Henry Boone portions of Brooke's Discovery and Hazard in Prince George's County, Maryland.[7]

THE BEEDLE FAMILY

1 Henry Beedle, b. in 1648 in England; d. in 1674, between 29 May and 4 August, Anne Arundel County, Maryland
Sophia Ewen (Maj. Richard[1]), b. about 1650, probably in Maryland; d. in 1675 before 4 February, Anne Arundel County, Maryland; m. Henry Beedle, in 1671 in Maryland.

2 Sophia Beedle

Henry Beedle was transported into the Province of Maryland in 1665 by his step-father, William Coursey. The latter made claim in July 1665 for 1,350 acres of land for transporting a total of seven persons including Henry Beedle.[1] Henry was transported at seventeen years of age, as he later deposed in court in 1672 that he was twenty-four years of age that year.[2]

Between 9 June and 13 November 1671, Henry Beedle married Sophia Ewen, the widow of Capt. Richard Wells.[3] The estate of the latter was unsettled and Sophia and Henry appeared in court in litigation several times. They appeared in the high Court of Chancery in Charles County, Maryland, 26 June 1673 in a second action against George Wells charging he was receiver of goods and servants shipped to his brother Richard Wells, deceased, to which he pleaded he was never receiver.[4]

When his sister, Anne Beedle, was about to marry John Wells in 1671, Henry Beedle and William Coursey insisted upon a prenuptial agreement whereby Anne would be provided for should she survive John Wells.

Henry Beedle died testate. In his will, dated 29 May 1674 and probated 4 August 1674, he designated himself as a gentleman of Herring Creek in Anne Arundel County, Maryland. He devised two tracts of land lying in Talbot County to his daughter, Sophia, at her date of marriage or age twenty-one, whichever should occur first. To his wife, Sophia, he devised Beedle's Outlet, an estate of 400 acres of land in Talbot County.[5]

Sophia Beedle was reared by her paternal grandmother, Juliana Coursey, having been assigned to her through the terms of her mother's will. Sophia was orphaned by her father's death in 1674 and the death of her mother in 1675.

According to the terms of her father's will she was to receive at her date of marriage or age twenty-one, whichever should first occur, 500 acres of land lying in Talbot County, Maryland, ten cows with calves by their sides, and 25,000 pounds of merchantable tobacco.[6]

A few months later, her mother devised Beedle's Outlet to her, it being the 400 acre tract of land which was patented by Henry Beedle in Talbot County, and her money that remained in England.[7]

Sophia's appointed guardians were William Coursey and her uncle, Richard Ewen, Jr. The latter asked to be excused as it was necessary for him to go out of the country on business.[8]

Sophia died intestate. Her children, except Benjamin, were named in the will of her husband, Ignatius Craycroft, dated 9 August 1704.[9]

3 Anne Beedle

John Russell, of Kent Isle, Virginia, m. Juliana, widow.

William Coursey, m. Juliana, widow of John Russell, before 1661 in Virginia.

Juliana was mentioned in several records in Maryland. Juliana Coursey and John Beedle, her son, were transported into Maryland in 1661 by William Coursey.[1] In 1665 William Coursey entered 1,350 acres of land in Maryland for the transportation of seven individuals, one of whom was Henry Beedle.[2]

Henry Beedle wrote his will 29 May 1674 and died before 4 August 1674, the date on which his will was proved.[3] His widow survived him less than a year for her will, dated 30 December 1674, was probated 9 February 1675 by her "Father in Law Mr. William Coursey" and she entrusted the rearing of her daughter, Sophia Beedle, to her "Mother in Law Mrs. Coursey the wife of my Father in Law Mr. William Coursey."[4]

Juliana's daughter, Anne Beedle, married John Wells. A pre-nuptial agreement stating "for consideration of a marriage by God's Grace...shortly betwix John Wells and Anne Beedle daughter-in-law to William Coursey and sister to Henry Beedle..." establishes her identity. The contract assured that Anne would have sufficient legacys and property to maintain her should she survive John Wells.[5]

2 Jacob Harper, b. 6 Oct. 1726; d. 1803

Elizabeth Behrn emigrated with her husband, Nicholas Harper, from Holland to Virginia in 1741.[1] They settled in Augusta County on the South Branch of the Potomac River. In 1789, at eighty-one years of age, she migrated with her family to Woodford County, Kentucky, where they settled near Midway.

She was buried in the Harper Cemetery across the road from the large frame house built by her son Jacob near Midway.

Elizabeth Behrn and Nicholas Harper probably had other children. Jacob Harper was named as their son in family records and in lineage papers on file in the NSDAR library in Washington, D. C.[2]

Thomas Besson left London, England, aboard the Assurance and arrived in Virginia about 1640, being then about twenty-four years of age. In 1649 he migrated with the Non-Conformists to Anne Arundel County, Maryland, and settled in South River Hundred. He demanded 600 acres of land for transporting himself, his family, and three servants into the Province, and a warrant to survey and lay out 600 acres for him was made to be returned 22 February 1658.[1] He was granted 450 acres, called Bessendon, in 1658, and he demanded 150 acres remaining of his former rights.[2]

He held office under the Commonwealth in Maryland and attended the last session of the Commissioners under William Fuller in September 1657. At the Restoration, when Lord Baltimore regained control, he was commissioned a magistrate of Anne Arundel County, and served in that capacity from 1658 to 1668.[3]

Richard Ewen, high sheriff of Anne Arundel County, reported 23 October 1665 that Capt. Thomas Besson had been elected as one of the Burgesses to represent Anne Arundel County during the year 1666. He served as a captain commanding militia in Anne Arundel County in 1661.[4]

Capt. Thomas Besson died testate. In his will, dated 15 October 1677 and proved 29 April 1679, he named his wife, Hester, a daughter Martha, three sons, Thomas, William, and John, and his son [in-law] Nicholas Gassaway.[5]

Anne Besson received a deed of gift 19 October 1672 from her father, Capt. Thomas Besson, for 160 acres of Bessendon for the natural love and affection which he held for "my well beloved son-in-law Nicholas Gassaway and Anne his wife.[6]

Anne was not mentioned in her father's will. Capt. Besson devised a tract of land to his son, John, "adjoining to my sonne [in-law] Nicholas Gassaway."[7]

The children of Anne Besson and Col. Nicholas Gassaway were named in the latter's will, dated 10 January 1691 and probated 27 January 1691 in Anne Arundel County, Maryland.[8]

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

George Bledsoe came to Virginia in 1652 as a headright for Col. Hugh Gwin. Duval shows that this George Bledsoe was listed as a tithable in 1679 and it is assumed he died about 1681. His children were Sarah, born about 1653 in Northumberland County, Virginia, and George Bledsoe, born about 1655.

George Bledsoe, born about 1655 in Northumberland County, Virginia, married Anne, the mother of his children. His second wife was Mrs. Elizabeth Lattimore. George died testate in 1705 and named sons Abraham, John, William, Thomas, and George. (The Bledsoe Family, John T. Bledsoe, 1973, pp. 42-46.)

Apparently only two sons of George Bledsoe had children: William and Abraham. William's descendants spread to Kentucky and Georgia. Abraham moved to Granville County, North Carolina and died testate. In his will dated 15 March 1753 and probated 29 May 1753, he did not mention all of his children. His daughter, Sarah (Bledsoe) Rush, wrote her will 2 December 1790 and named other children of her father. By his first wife, Katherine Ball, Abraham had: Moses, Catherine, Isaac, Abraham, and George. By his second wife, Sarah, Abraham had: Jacob, Sarah, Aaron, Thomas, John, Elizabeth, and Ann. (Letter written by Banks McLaurin, Jr., 20 October 1971, Dallas, Texas.)

Abraham Bledsoe married his second wife about 1724. Ann Bledsoe, wife of Sherard Reynolds, was born about 1723. Her husband was born in 1712 and they were married about 1740. One of their eldest children was born in 1742 and one of their youngest children was born in 1763, and she and her husband lived in Wake County, North Carolina. As the Abraham Bledsoe family was the only Bledsoe family in North Carolina during this period of time, Ann Bledsoe was probably the youngest child of Abraham Bledsoe and his wife, Katherine Ball, or one of the older children of their son Moses Bledsoe who was a resident of Wake County, North Carolina.

Abraham Bledsoe was probably the father of Rebecca (Bledsoe) Goodwin, Sarah (Bledsoe) Hardin, and Ann (Bledsoe) Reynolds. (The Bledsoe Family, John T. Bledsoe, 1973, p. 58.)

William Boarman was transported into the Province of Maryland prior to 1650 as shown in a patent.[1] His name was recorded in court records in the Province as early as 1645. He deposed 18 May 1650 that he was then twenty years of age.

During his lifetime he amassed an estate of more than 16,000 acres of land in Charles and St. Mary's counties, Maryland, by patents and purchase of land.

Boarman had been promoted to the rank of major of the provincial militia by 1676. He was one of Gov. Stone's men who in 1654 sailed into the Severn River in a futile attempt to subdue the Puritans who, having fled from Virginia, had established their plantations along the banks of the river. He was fined 1,000 pounds of tobacco for participating against the Puritans. Following the overthrow of Cromwell in England and the return of the proprietary rule in Maryland, Boarman was commissioned as a captain 12 October 1661. He was a member of the council of war in 1676 held at St. Mary's City which resulted in a declaration of war against the Nanticoke Indians and his subsequent participation in the expedition sent against them.

1. Maryland Patents, Liber 5, f. 56, Hall of Records, Annapolis, MD.

Maj. Boarman served as a magistrate in the local courts and was high sheriff of Charles County from 1679 to 1681. He was elected as a delegate to the Lower House of the Assembly from 1671 to 1675. Boarman mastered the Indian language and was usually the interpreter at official meetings held between the English and the Indians. He was disenfranchised during the political uprising in 1689, and retired from public life to his plantation, Boarman's Manor. He was described as a "deafe old man" 8 May 1700 when he was commissioned by the council to lay out the lands belonging to the Piscataway Indians.

He married three times and had children by each marriage, so the list of his children is probably incomplete. In 1695 Madam Elizabeth Young devised property to her goddaughter Eleanor, "daughter of Major William Boarman," probably by his second wife.

Maj. William Boarman died testate. In his will, dated 16 May 1708 and proved 17 June 1709, he named sons Benedict, John Baptist, and Ignatius Boarman, and daughters Mary, Clare, and Anne.[2] He appointed his wife, Mary, as executrix, and she, as the wife of John Sanders, filed an account in court 7 April 1711 and paid legacies to the heirs, one of whom was Robert Greene.[3] In a deed of gift dated 16 July 1679, Maj. Boarman gave 450 acres of land to Mary, the wife of Robert Greene.[4] In 1755 it was determined that Mary Greene and Sarah Mudd were sisters.

Mary Boarman was proved a daughter of Maj. William Boarman in a deposition made in 1755 by Joseph Jameson. A dispute had arisen over the boundary line of Hall's Place, which was a portion of Boarman's Manor. By a land conveyance dated 16 July 1679 Maj. Boarman made a deed of gift of 450 acres of Boarman's Manor to Mary, the wife of Robert Greene, which they called Greene's Rest. Maj. Boarman gave to his daughter, Sarah, 400 acres called Boarman's Rest. Joseph Jameson deposed in 1755 that the initials of the two sisters were carved on a large blaze on a tree which stood between these two tracts of land.[5] Sarah Boarman received her dowry of 400 acres of land from Maj. Boarman upon her marriage to Thomas Matthews. She married as her second husband, Thomas Mudd, and continued to live at Boarman's Rest adjoining Greene's Rest.[6]

Mary was cosigner with her husband 25 August 1703 when they conveyed a portion of Greene's Inheritence to Richard Combs. Mary affixed her signature to the deed which indicated that she had received a formal education.

Greene, conveyed a portion of Greene's Rest 25 June 1713 to William Boarman, son and heir of Maj. William Boarman, deceased. On the same day they conveyed to Francis Ignatius Boarman, youngest son of Maj. Boarman, Greene's Rest or 450 acres of Maj. Boarman's Manor which "said land was formerly given to the said Mary Greene and her heirs by the said Maj. William Boarman deceased as by conveyance dated 16 July 1679." It was stated in the assignment dated in 1713 that Maj. Boarman in his lifetime had purchased again the plantation from Robert Greene, but apparently had not made payment. Maj. Boarman had devised the land to his son, Francis Ignatius Boarman, in his will dated 16 May 1709. The deed, another link in the establishment of Mary as the daughter of Maj. William Boarman, was entered into the record to clarify the title of Greene's Rest.

The children of Mary Boarman and Robert Greene were proved in various Maryland records and were also listed in The Maryland Semmes and Kindred Families.[7]

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

John Boone, born about 1550, married Alice Wheeler and was a land holder in 1591 in the Hundred of Holleway, County Somerset, England. His son Richard was baptized 19 May 1589 at St. Mary's in Taunton. His son Robert was buried 23 October 1618, and his son Christopher was buried 26 August 1628. (Taunton Parish Register, vol. 1.)

Robert Boone, son of John Boone, was buried 23 October 1618 at Taunton. His children were baptized at St. Mary's: Joane, bap. 4 April 1601; John, bap. 3 February 1604; Anne, bap. 16 June 1608; Agnes, bap. 20 August 1609; Thomas, bap. 11 July 1610; and Abigail, bap. 4 July 1613. (Taunton Parish Register, vol. 1.) Robert's son, Thomas, died testate in 1678, and named his sister Judith in his will.

John Boone, son of Robert Boone, married Mary Handley. He was a London merchant and his sons Thomas and John were admitted to Merchant Taylor's School in 1652 and 1655. The school record showed Thomas was born 6 October 1643 and John was born 27 December 1645. (A Register of the Scholars Admitted into Merchant Taylor's School, vol. 1, 1562-1699, 1882, pp. 211, 221.) John Boone died testate in London, England. In his will dated 5 May 1657 he named four of his children: Thomas, John, Doll [Mary], and Susanna. (Co. Kent Wills, PCC Wooton, 604, Public Record Office, London). He also had a daughter Dorothy. His brother, Thomas Boone, stated in his will dated 16 March 1678: "I give unto John Boone the sonne of John Boone my brother deceased all the monies which he owes me...if he returns to England. (Co. Devon Wills, PCC Bath 71, Public Record Office, London.) Christopher Boone made a bequest in his will dated 18 March 1685 to his "cousin John Boone now at Florida." John Boone was transported into the Province of Maryland during the 1660's from England.[1] He settled at The Cliffs in Calvert County, Maryland, and purchased 100 acres of land from William Ireland 22 March 1675 which was a part of a 400 acre tract of land called Rockhold.[2]

He may have been one and the same as the John Boone who was named as a son of John Boone of Greenwich, London merchant, in the latter's will dated 5 May 1657,[3] and who was proved to be out of England and in the American colonies by the wills of Thomas Boone dated 14 March 1678[4] and Christopher Boone dated 18 March 1685,[5] merchants in London.

John Boone died intestate. His widow, Grace, was granted letters of administration 10 July 1689. An inventory of his estate was made 25 July 1689 by Francis Freeman and William Dorrumple, but was not exhibited in court until 1694. In the final settlement of his estate, John, Henry, Elizabeth, and Grace, were named as "orphans of the deceased."[6] His widow, Grace, married Robert Brooke and died testate. In her will, proved 30 October 1725 in Calvert County, she named two of her children by John Boone as John Boone and Grace Magill; and her two children by Robert Brooke as Robert Brooke and Elizabeth Fenwick. She also named five grandchildren in her will.

John Boone was a planter in Prince George's County, Maryland. He deposed in 1775 that he was fifty-seven years old.[7] His land included 500 acres of Brookwood, 130 acres of Hazard, 439 acres of Brooke's Discovery, and Boone's Folly, surveyed in 1735.

John Boone died intestate. His son, John, died testate and acknowledged in his will, dated 19 July 1787, that he inherited from "his father, John Boone, deceased," Brookwood, Brooke's Discovery, Hazard, and part of Boone's Folly.[8] In an indenture dated 2 March 1743, John Boone named Henry as his son and conveyed portions of Brooke's Discovery and Hazard to him with fatherly love. Elizabeth, his wife, relinquished her dower rights.[9]. In 1745 John Boone conveyed 100 acres of Brookwood, except the one acre where the chapel stood, to his son, Charles. On 1 October 1751 Henry Boone and Charles Boone signed the inventory of James Boone, deceased, as "nearest of blood."[10] Henry Boone also settled the estate of Francis Boone, deceased, 17 December 1776. The "Father of the deceased" was designated as "Representative" or heir, and Charles and Martha Boone signed the inventory as nearest of kin. Records indicate that John Boone was approximately ninety-eight years of age in 1776.

James Boone of Prince George's County, Maryland, was a planter judging from the final account of his estate which included his crop of tobacco as well as wheat and corn.

James married Mary Page. Her father, Daniel Page, bequeathed one shilling to his daughter, Mary Boone, in his will which was written 23 February 1768 in Prince George's County.[11] In a bill of sale dated 13 May 1771 Henry Boone conveyed property to Mary Boone, widow and relict of James Boone, deceased.[12]

James Boone died intestate and his estate was appraised 1 October 1751 by Thomas Evans and William Young.[13] His widow, Mary Boone, swore to the authencity of the inventory in court in March 1752. As administratrix, she made a final account in the prerogative court 28 November 1753 in the amount of £206.10.00, and requested an allowance to pay funeral expenses and just debts. She named the heirs and children of James Boone, deceased, as Eleanor and Henrietta Boone, the eldest being seven years of age and the other three years of age. Henry Boone and Charles Boone acted as her security.[14] Mary L. Boone, Daniel Page, John Boone, Jr., Henry Boone and Charles Boone signed the guardian bond of the orphans of James Boone, and obligated themselves to pay to Eleanor and Henrietta Boone, orphans of James Boone, deceased, the amount of £107.18.09 from the estate of James Boone, deceased.[15]

Henrietta Boone accompanied her husband, Clement Gardiner, from Maryland, to the wilderness of Kentucky about 1800. They dreamed for years of establishing a first-rate school for girls in their neighborhood near Fairfield, Kentucky, in Nelson County. After the death of Clement Gardiner, Henrietta set about fulfilling those dreams, and a girls school called Bethania was established in December 1821. She lived in a small brick cottage which was constructed for her in close proximity to the convent. A colony of sisters from the Loretto Society served as teachers for the girls, and for several years the school prospered. However, sickness and death plagued the sisters until they were recalled by the superiors of the Loretto Society. Grieved by the nonrealization of her dreams and hopes, Henrietta accompanied the sisters to the convent of Loretto and lived the remainder of her life in retirement and prayer.[16]

The names of the children of Henrietta Boone and Clement Gardiner are on file in the NSDAR records in Washington, D. C.[17] They are also named in the book The Centenary of Catholicity in Kentucky by Benjamin J. Webb.

JAMES BOONE, SON OF JOHN BOONE AND FATHER OF HENRIETTA BOONE
Letter written by Marguerite (Jenkins) Wathen, Rocky Ford, Colorado

30 December 1959

Dear Sir:

Your letter of the 23rd received and it is interesting to hear from another one interested in their ancestors.

I, too, have been interested for many years in family research and all the history connected therewith.

My first "Jenkins" grandfather in Kentucky married Ann Gardiner, daughter of Clement Gardiner and Henrietta Boone, their youngest child.

In a list of Clement Gardiner's children there is an "Ellen" who married James Spalding in Maryland. Ellen is probably short for Eleanor. Webb's "Centenary of Catholicity in Kentucky" (1886) is a reference. My membership in NSDAR lists all of Clement Gardiner's children.

Henrietta Boone and her sister Eleanor were the children of James Boone, son of John Boone II and Elizabeth Bevon.

James Boone's wife was Mary, but Mary who? [Mary Page]

Henrietta's father James Boone, died when she was very young, perhaps two or three years.

Sincerely yours,
Marguerite (Jenkins) Wathen

Grace married first John Boone of the Cliffs of Calvert County, Maryland, when she was about fifteen or sixteen years of age, and she was widowed by his death when she was twenty-seven years of age. As John Boone died intestate, she was granted letters of administration 10 July 1689 for the settlement of his estate.[1]

She married Robert Brooke, possibly in 1690, and continued to live in Calvert County, Maryland. Her second husband died testate leaving a will dated 17 January 1715 and probated 10 April 1716. Grace was named as executrix and received one-third of Brooke Place Manor containing 300 acres of land.[2]

In a deposition in 1720, Grace stated she was then fifty-eight years of age, and the widow of Robert Brooke.[3]

Grace died testate. In her will, proved 30 October 1725, she made bequests to her children whom she named as John Boone, Grace Magill, Robert Brooke, and Elizabeth Fenwick. She also made bequests to her grandchildren Arthur Magill, Mary Magill, Betty Fenwick, Cuthbert Fenwick, and Mary Brooke, and appointed her son Robert Brooke as executor and residuary legatee.[4]

John Bowen began his migration toward the West in the early 1830's. According to the 1850 census report of Clark County, Missouri, the eldest child, Catherine, was born in Maryland in 1831. The second child, Eliza, was born in Pennsylvania during 1834, and the two younger children, Martha A. and Glenn, were born in Clark County, Missouri, in St. Francisville, during the 1840's.

John purchased a town lot in St. Francisville, 27 April 1840,[1] and built a house. That same year, he was one of the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church when land was purchased and plans were made to build a church.[2] He was one of the founding members of Des Moines Lodge, no. 16 of I.O.O.F. in 1846.[3]

As plaintiff, he brought suit 21 August 1866 against Young and McDaniel for a sum of money which was due to him on a promissory note dated 10 May 1862.[4]

He was a carpenter and cabinet maker in St. Francisville. According to family tradition, he participated unsuccessfully in the California Gold Rush, and was murdered and robbed of a large payroll in a city in Iowa after the Civil War.

John Bowen died intestate. Record of his marriage to Jane Eliza Glenn is on file in Baltimore, Maryland.[5] The names of their children and their respective ages were recorded on the 1850 census report of Clark County, Missouri.

He participated in the battles of Fort Donaldson, Shilo, 1st Corinth, 2nd Corinth, Iuka, Black River, 1st Vicksburg, 2nd Vicksburg, Jackson, and Lookout Mountain, and was discharged from service, 22 June 1866, in Sioux City, Iowa.[6]

He was employed for many years as an accountant with the Cober and Mayo Coal Company, and with the Moller-Vandenboom Lumber Company in Quincy.[7]

Glenn Bowen died intestate. A certificate of his death, filed in Adams County, Illinois, gave his date of birth and age at the date of his death, his place of burial, the names of his parents, and the name of the state in which they were born. His date and place of birth, his date of marriage, the name of his wife and her date of death, the names of his children, and the date of birth of each, except Mabel, were given in a pension application and supplemental papers filed 31 March 1908 and 19 March 1915.[8]

Anna Eliza Bowen was a saleslady in the Halbach-Schroeder Department Store in Quincy, Illinois, prior to her marriage to Bertie Clay Zimmerman in 1907.[9] She and her husband settled on a farm south of Lewistown, Missouri, which was their home for nineteen years. She was a farm resident of Lewis, Knox and Randolph counties in Missouri after her second marriage.

Anna was active as a farm wife, and joined in the work of the Community Extension Club in Knox County. She was a member of the Methodist Church many years, and in later years transferred to the Central Christian Church at Moberly, Missouri.

Her lifetime hobby was playing the piano and singing. She was characterized by an independent spirit and was outspoken.

8 Edward Cocke, b. 1665; d. 1734

Lt. Col. Richard Cocke immigrated to Henrico County, Virginia, from England. Richard Cocke, purser of the ship Thomas and John, made a deposition at a court held at James City 19 November 1627.[1] Another record shows that he served as attorney for Patrick Canada at Elizabeth City in 1628.[2] Richard Cocke was elected as a representative to the House of Burgesses from Weyanoke in 1632, and from Henrico County in 1644 and 1654. In the year 1655 he was appointed sheriff and resigned his seat in the House of Burgesses. He was commandant of the Henrico County militia and held the rank of lieutenant colonel.[3]

The following four patents issued to Richard Cocke for land in Henrico County do not include any land which he may have acquired by purchase. Bremo, his home, lay in the Curles of James River, and Malvern Hills followed Turkey Island Creek nearly to its beginning. The land patented in 1664 lay south of Chickahominy Swamp. His original patent dated 6 March 1636 for land due for the transportation of sixty persons[4] was reissued 10 March 1639. He surrendered 1,000 acres of the original patent to Ann Hallum and retained 300 acres of land identified as Bremo and 1,700 acres of land identified as Malvern Hills.[5] The patent was again reissued 10 October 1652 naming these two estates and allowing him 328 acres for the transportation of eight persons, and 100 acres of land due by patent to Temperance Baley 20 September 1620.[6] A patent dated 21 July 1664 was issued jointly to John Beauchamp and Richard Cocke.[7] According to his will, his share of the Beauchamp-Cocke patent amounted to 1,750 acres of land.

Records indicate that Richard Cocke married Temperance Baley, who was probably a daughter of Sisley Jordan.[8] Temperance may have been previously married as the minutes of the Colonial Council indicate that Richard Cocke married the widow of John Browne and was assigned the guardianship of her children. According to his will, he stipulated that he was to be buried by his first wife at Bremo with burial rites of the Church of England.

Richard Cocke died testate. In his will, dated 4 October 1665, he devised to his wife, Mary, one-third of his estate excluding the deeds of gift on record at Henrico courthouse of Malvern Hills to his son, Thomas, and of Bremo to his son, Richard the elder. He devised land to his sons, William, John, and Richard the younger, and bequeathed £100 Sterling to his daughter, Elizabeth. To distinguish between his two sons named Richard he referred to them as Richard the elder and Richard the younger, but he signed his will "Richard Cocke, Sen^{r}." and appointed his son "Richard Cocke, Sen^{r}." as one of his executors. He admonished his son, Thomas, to use the mill at Malvern Hills for the benefit of the younger children.[9] He also had a posthumous son named Edward.[10]

Richard Cocke of Bremo inherited the 640 acre plantation in the Curles of James River according to the terms of his father's will. He was also willed 500 acres of land, a portion of the patent of 2,093 acres of land issued to Richard Cocke, Sr., and John Beauchamp 21 July 1664. This tract of land which lay between Western Branch and Chickahominy Swamp was "deserted" and a patent was issued 25 April 1701 to John Pleasants, a son of John Pleasants and Jane Larcome.

Near neighbors of Richard Cocke were his brother, Thomas Cocke of Malvern Hills; William Randolph of Turkey Island Plantation; and John Pleasants, planter, who came to Virginia in 1665 as factor for Paggens, London merchants. Richard and Thomas Cocke were justices in Henrico County, Virginia, in 1678 and 1680, and Richard was listed as a justice in 1699. The brothers were associated in various enterprises and in the 1680's they established and operated Cocke's Ferry on James River. They also operated an ordinary at Varina, then the county seat of Henrico County.[11] William Randolph of Turkey Island Plantation was a witness to the will of Richard Cocke in 1706, and Richard's daughter, Martha Cocke, married Joseph Pleasants, a son of John Pleasants and Jane Larcome.

In his youth, Richard was known as Richard the elder and his brother was known as Richard the younger. As the executor of the estate of his father, Richard Cocke, Sr., he was also cited as 11. The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, vol. 3, 1896, p. 410.

Richard Cocke, Sr. In 1669 he signed his name "Mr. Richard Cocke, Senr."[12] for by that time he also had a son named Richard Cocke. He witnessed for Henry Randolph in a conveyance of land 1 August 1687 in Henrico County, and witnessed for William Randolph and his wife, Mary, in a conveyance of land dated 1 April 1678.

The boundary line which lay between the plantations of Richard Cocke and William Randolph was quite crooked. In a survey made for Randolph 10 September 1687, the surveyor, in the presence of Richard Cocke, Sr., straightened and marked the boundary line with the consent and agreement of Cocke.

Cocke accused John Woodson, Jr., of tresspassing on his land which was known as Curles Swamp, 15 October 1691, and that Woodson "did hunt and shoot contrary to the 71st Act of the General Assembly." Woodson pleaded not guilty and in his defense produced a patent issued to Nathaniel Bacon, deceased, to prove that Cocke did not own Curles Swamp.[13]

Richard's father wrote in his will: "I do hereby acknowledge that all the Cattle of my elder Son Richards & the hogs being of a distinct mark & all known by Cozen Daniel & two Negros do properly belong to him by a gift from his Mother which I hereby confirm..."

Richard Cocke died testate. In his will, dated 18 November 1706 and proved 2 December 1706, he named his children as Richard Cocke, Elizabeth Cary, and Martha Pleasants. He made bequests to his grandchildren whom he named as Tabitha, John, and Martha Cocke; Thomas and Nathaniel Cary; and Joseph, Elizabeth, and Jane Pleasants.[14] John Cocke was named as Richard's son in Cockes and Cousins. Richard Cocke was buried in the Cocke family cemetery at Bremo, near James River, and his gravestone, though flat on the ground, is partially legible. The burial site of the Cocke family at Bremo was enclosed with a stone wall and marked with a commemorative plaque by Cocke descendants in 1933.

Edward Bennett, m. Martha Cocke, widow of Joseph Pleasants, 5 February 1727 at Curles Meeting House, Henrico County.

Martha Cocke, a member of the Church of England, and Joseph Pleasants, a Quaker, and residents of Curles, obtained a license 15 May 1699 to marry.[15] Joseph made a public declaration 10 November 1699 in the presence of a meeting of Friends that he had caused "great grief to my Tender Mother and my own shame—as Taking my wife by a priest which I utterly condemn..."

Joseph was duly forgiven by the Quakers and subsequently was one of the leaders of the sect. By 12 July 1700 Martha had embraced Quakerism for on that date she was among the Friends who witnessed the exchange of marriage vows of Benjamin Woodson and Sarah Porter.[16]

In the record books of the Henrico Monthly Meetings of Friends, references to Martha continue through the year 1732. She witnessed weddings, attended women's monthly meetings, and the weekly meetings held each Sunday and Thursday.

Martha was named in several wills. Richard Cocke of Henrico County, made a bequest of £20 Sterling to his daughter Martha Pleasants in his will dated 18 November 1706. Joseph Pleasants named his wife, Martha, as the executrix of his estate, and willed to her the use of his manor plantation during her lifetime. In the event of her remarriage she was to receive one-third of his estate. Jane Pleasants made a bequest in her will dated 19 September 1726 which reads: "to mother Martha Pleasants, mare my Grandmother Jane Pleasants bequeathed to me in her last will and testament."

The intention of marriage of Martha (Cocke) Pleasants and Edward Bennett was published the first time at the Henrico Monthly Meeting 7 January 1727, and their marriage vows were exchanged 5 February 1727 at Curles in the presence of eighteen witnesses.[17]

At a court held at Varina for Henrico County, Virginia, the first Monday in November 1728, Martha Bennett, executrix of the estate of Joseph Pleasants, deceased, presented an inventory of his estate in the amount of £126.01.00. On the same date Edward Bennett presented an inventory of the remaining part of the estate of Joseph Pleasants which totaled £587.06.09.

Martha's children, Joseph, Elizabeth, and Jane, were named as grandchildren in the will of her father, Richard Cocke, dated 18 November 1706,[18] and as children of Joseph Pleasants in the will of his mother, Jane (Larcome) Pleasants, dated 2 January 1708.[19] Martha's husband, Joseph Pleasants, named their children, Joseph, John, Richard, Thomas, Robert, Jane, and Martha, in his will dated 9 September 1725.[20] Martha was present as a witness for the exchange of marriage vows of her son, John Pleasants and Martha Woodson 7 November 1731, and of her son, Joseph Pleasants and Elizabeth Woodson 5 November 1732 at the Curles Meeting House.

Ann, b. about 1640; m. John Craycroft, before 22 February 1665 in England.

2 Ignatius Craycroft, d. 1707

John Craycroft of Hackthorn Parish in County Lincoln, England, immigrated to the Province of Maryland prior to 1665. Under the headright system he demanded land for transportation of himself and his wife 22 February 1665.[1] He simultaneously assigned his right and title to the two "Rights" to Humphrey Yates.

He leased a plantation called Plymhimmon in Talbot County from the heirs of the estate. Prior to the termination of the lease the heirs desired possession of the plantation and employed John Burdit to act on their behalf as casual ejector. He ejected Craycroft from possession of Plymhimmon "causing great damages to John Craycroft and contrary to his peace." John brought suit 24 June 1677 for damages in the amount of thirty thousand pounds of tobacco.[2]

John Craycroft settled in Calvert County but was a landowner in other counties as well. Craycroft's Purchase, a 300 acre tract of land, was surveyed for him 5 February 1683 in Baltimore County. This tract of land on the Gunpowder River was a part of the 900 acre tract of land owned by his son, Ignatius Craycroft, in 1707. In a conveyance of land 7 October 1693, John Craycroft of Calvert County purchased land from Philip Lynn of St. Mary's County. The several tracts of land lying in St. Mary's County included 100 acres of land called the Governor's Field and 1,500 acres of land called St. Michaels Manor which had originally been granted to Leonard Calvert, Esq. Trinity Manor of 600 acres of land and 900 acres of land known as St. Galwith's were also described as being in St. Mary's County. A tract of land in St. Mary's County was named Hackthorn Heath by him in honor of his birthplace in England. The indenture from Lynn also included 1,000 acres of land on the Isle of Kent called Kent Fort Manor. Two tracts of land in Piscataway Parish of Charles County consisting of 450 acres of land called Doggs Neck and another unidentified 200 acres of land completed the 4,850 acres of land bought by John Craycroft from Philip Lynn and his wife in a single deed.[3]

John Craycroft served as coroner of Calvert County and requested that his son, Ignatius Craycroft, be allowed to continue in that office after his own death. He was appointed gentleman justice 20 December 1679[4] and re-appointed 30 May 1685.

In 1683 he attended court in St. Mary's County as coroner of Calvert County. He was arrested by the sheriff on the basis of a writ issued by the court of St. Mary's County. It was "quashed," however, and he was allowed two days to return to his home in Calvert County.

He was frequently in court in cases as a plaintiff. In one suit in 1676 he lost the value of four thousand pounds of tobacco as his attorney, Robert Carvile, settled the case with the defendant out of court.

John Craycroft died intestate, in Prince George's County, Maryland. An administrator's bond was issued to his son Ignatius Craycroft 7 June 1698 and he gave bond for £1,000 Sterling. A list of debts due to the deceased "good or bad" amounted to £44,495. His personal estate was inventoried at £1,222: 04: 03 and his real estate was not listed. Some items of interest gleaned from the inventory were a suit of fine black broad cloth and a Carrolina hat.

John Craycroft's wife Ann was named in his demand for land 22 February 1665. He named Ignatius Craycroft as his son in his request that Ignatius be continued in the office of coroner, and Ignatius was named as a son of John Craycroft in the administrators bond.[5] John Craycroft's place of birth, Hackthorn Parish, Lincolnshire, and the name of his son and heir, Ignatius Craycroft, were cited in Heraldic Marylandiana.

Ignatius Craycroft was a large land holder in Prince George's County, Maryland. In addition to his home plantation of 450 acres of land, he owned Gallwiths, a 235 acre tract of land; Little Hatchett, consisting of 189 acres of land on Canady's Branch; Nutwell's Branches, a tract of 200 acres of land; and The Denial, a tract of 400 acres of land. In Baltimore County, Maryland, he owned 900 acres of land lying on the Gunpowder River.

He was named as a son of John Craycroft in at least two records. His father requested that Ignatius, his son, succeed him as coroner of Calvert County 31 December 1687 and a commission was issued to him. He was named as the son of John Craycroft, deceased, in the administrator's bond issued 7 June 1698 in Prince George's County.[6]

Ignatius Craycroft died testate. In his will, dated 9 August 1704 and probated 23 September 1707, he appointed his wife, Sophia, as executrix and his son, John, as joint executor.[7] He named each of his children, except Benjamin, in his will. Benjamin Craycroft died testate and named his brothers and sisters in his will dated 31 December 1771 in Charles County, Maryland.

Ann Craycroft was named as a daughter of Ignatius Craycroft in the latter's will dated 9 August 1704. She subsequently married Luke Gardiner and they were the parents of at least four children. At a court in 1747 Ann Edelen gave her age as fifty-eight and she declared she was then the wife of Richard Edelen.

She died testate in Charles County, Maryland. In her will, dated 12 May 1765 and probated 17 October 1765, Ann appointed her sons, Ignatius and Richard Gardiner, as her executors, and made bequests to her daughters whom she named as Mary Chunn and Jean Edelen. Personal bequests included one oval table made from cherry wood and two iron pots to her son, Ignatius Gardiner; a looking glass, a small oval table, and a draft horse to her son, Richard Gardiner; her clothing, one cow, two feather beds, a bolster and a bedstead to her daughter, Mary Chunn; and the gray horse which was her riding horse to her daughter, Jean Edelen. To her grandchildren, Henrietta, Clement, and Mary Smith, children of her daughter, Mary Chunn, she devised one cow apiece. She made provision for the education of her grandson, Joseph Mudd. To her grandson, Richard Edelen, son of her daughter, Jean Gardiner, and Philip Edelen, she devised a bay mare, a counterpin, and chest.[8]

Margaret Jane Davis reported her place of birth as Pennsylvania on both the 1860 and 1870 census reports for Clark County, Missouri. Her mother, Mary, was born in Pennsylvania in 1794, and was enumerated as a member of the household of John Gilkerson in 1860. Robert D. Davis, a brother of Margaret Jane Davis, was born in Pennsylvania in 1838, and was also enumerated in the household of John Gilkerson in 1860.

Margaret's sister, Jane W. Davis, was born 22 February 1834 in Allegheny City, Pennsylvania, and was married 2 April 1857 in Keokuk, Lee County, Iowa, according to the Demarest family Bible. It was stated in Jane's obituary that she came to Keokuk in 1855. John and Margaret were residents of Missouri as early as 1845. They frequently co-signed deeds in Clark County, Missouri, and several transactions were signed solely by Margaret, indicating that she conducted the business in her husband's absence, Census records indicate that she accompanied her husband on several trips to Louisiana.

Robert Davis was a resident of Tennessee for at least forty years, according to information recorded on the census reports. In 1850 he reported he was born in North Carolina, and he was living in Montgomery County, Tennessee, in 1816 when his daughter, Elizabeth, was born.

Along with his son William H. Davis and his son-in-law James P. Morrison, Robert was appointed on 6 December 1847 as guardian of his grandchildren, the children of Asa Hulen Jett, deceased.[1] About 1848 he was authorized by the Circuit Court of Montgomery County to serve as administrator of an estate.[2]

Robert Davis died testate in Montgomery County, Tennessee. His will, dated 9 May 1859, was recorded during the June term of court in 1859. According to the terms of his will, his daughter Elizabeth, the widow of Asa Hulen Jett, was to receive a tract of 30 acres of land lying on the road adjoining E. H. Davis. The balance of his estate, including land, stock, and household goods, was devised to his wife during her natural lifetime, and was to be equally shared among their children at the date of her death. In his will he named his two sons and five daughters as follows: E. A. Jett, E. H. Davis, Lucretia Elliott, S. M. Morrison, W. H. Davis, Amanda A. Elliott, and Janis R. Elliott. He appointed James Morrison and Elijah Davis as the executors of his estate.[3]

Elizabeth A. Davis was named as Elizabeth A. Jett, widow of Asa H. Jett, in the administrator's account of the estate of Asa H. Jett, deceased. She was designated as E. A. Jett by her father, Robert Davis, in his will dated 9 May 1859.[4]

She was enumerated on the 1850 census of Montgomery County, Tennessee, as head of the household of her five children.

Elizabeth married secondly a former neighbor, William Dillard Halliburton, who had moved to Randolph County, Missouri. After the death of his first wife, he returned to Tennessee to marry Elizabeth, and they lived the remainder of their lives in Randolph County, Missouri.

The names of the children of Elizabeth A. Davis and Asa Hulen Jett were cited in the guardianship set up in their behalf after the death of their father.[5]

Elizabeth Dillard might be a daughter of James Dillard (1727-1794). Martin Halliburton wrote in his family Bible that Frances Turner, daughter of John Turner and Elizabeth, his wife, was born 17 September 1784, and that he, Martin Halliburton, and Frances Turner were married 20 January 1803.[1] The Rev. John Turner died testate and named his wife, Elizabeth, in his will, proved in Dickson County, Tennessee, in 1824.[2] Therefore, Elizabeth was the wife of the Rev. John Turner spanning the years 1784 through 1824.

Minnie McLeskey Halliburton named the wife of John Turner as Elizabeth Reynolds but did not cite the source of her information. There were several early marriages between the Halliburton and Reynolds families, and some confusion may have resulted.

In a letter dated 19 May 1904, a grandson wrote that his grandparents were the Rev. John Turner and his wife, Sukie Dillard.[3] Either Elizabeth was affectionately called Sukie, or the Rev. William Allen Turner confused the wife of George Turner who was named Susannah, Sukie being a nickname for Susannah.[4] The name Dillard occurs in the names of Elizabeth's male descendants to this day.

THE DUYTS FAMILY

1 Laurens Duyts, b. in 1610, Holstein, Denmark; d. 14 January 1668, Bergen, New Jersey.
Ytie Jansen, b. about 1620, probably in Oldenburg, Germany; m. Laurens Duyts, about 1638.

2 Margariet Laurens, bap. 23 Dec. 1639
3 Jan Laurenszen, bap. 23 Mar. 1642
4 Hans Laurenszen, bap. 28 Sept. 1644

Geertye Jansen, b. probably in Oldenburg, Germany; m. Laurens Duyts, 1 January 1666.

Laurens Duyts, a native of Denmark, immigrated to New Netherland aboard the ship De Brant van Troyen in company with the Danes, Capt. Jochem Pietersen Kuyter, Jonas Bronck, and Pieter Andriessen. His board was paid by Mr. Jonas Bronck who in turn was to collect fl. 49:12 from Duyts. Bronck entered into a contract with Duyts and Andriessen 21 July 1639 whereby they were to clear a track of five hundred acres of land which he had purchased from the Indians. Duyts and Andriessen were allowed to use the land to plant maize and tobacco and they were to clear new land every two years. They were to reimburse Bronck for their board with their first available money.[1] Thus Laurens Duyts was one of the first white settlers in the area of New York City which is known today as the Bronx. He was known among the Dutch as Laurens Grootschoe, or "Great Shoe."

The name of Laurens Duyts appeared frequently in the court records at Fort Amsterdam, both as a plaintiff and as a defendant. In November 1643 he appeared before the court to claim a piece of leather which had been stolen from him. The defendant admitted guilt.[2] Duyts appeared as plaintiff 8 December 1653 demanding pay for twenty loads of hay delivered to the defendant. The defendant stated he had received only nine and one-half loads of hay from the plaintiff, and the case was placed in the hands of arbitrators by order of the court. In another case, Francoys Fyn had received a patent from Director General van Twiller for a tract of land lying on Long Island "over against Hog Island." Duyts, claiming the land was his, sold it without Fyn's knowledge. He attempted to defend himself in court in 1657 by displaying a patent for the land which was sealed but had never been signed. In the spring of 1658 Duyts was sued by Anneke Jans for failure to pay the full rent of two hogs for the lease of one of her farms. He argued that Anneke had released him from the rent and that he had paid one hog. He was condemned by the court and was ordered to deliver the second hog to Anneke for the full amount of the rent.[3]

Duyts had no more respect for the laws of decency than for the laws of equity. Gov. Stuyvesant ordered that Duyts have "a rope tied around his neck, and then be severely flogged, to have his right ear cut off, and to be banished for fifty years." This severe sentence was pronounced 25 November 1658 by Stuyvesant to punish Duyts for selling his wife, Ytie Jansen, into adultery, and for himself living in adultery.[4] He left New York and settled in Bergen, New Jersey.

Laurens Duyts died in debt. During the week following his death in January 1668, Duyts' widow and Paulus Cornelissen transported fifty schepels of wheat from New Jersey to New York. Upon the advice of the widow, Thomas Lourens removed the wheat from the canoe as part of the order he had given Duyts, and over the protests of Cornelissen who claimed the wheat belonged to him in payment of wages of fl. 380. In the ensuing suit of Cornelissen vs. Lourens, the widow declared it was the true intent of her deceased husband to deliver the wheat to Lourens, the baker, who in turn was to pay Cornelissen the money which Duyts owed him. The court ordered that one half the wheat be given to Thomas Lourens and the other half be given to Paulus Cornelissen in part payment of what was due them from the estate of Lourens Duyts.[5]

Laurens Duyts was cited as the father of Margariet, Jan, and Hans in the baptismal records of the Reformed Dutch Church of New Amsterdam.[6]

Hans Laurenszen, son of Laurens Duyts, was generally known as Hans Laurens. He was living in Richmond County, Staten Island, New York, as early as 19 January 1678[7] and as late as 27 October 1708. He was enumerated on the 1706 census for Staten Island and reported he was then sixty-three years of age.

He was among the free holders chosen for public office in Richmond County. At a general town meeting 1 April 1699 Hans Laurens was chosen collector for the South Division. He was chosen collector again in 1702 and assessor 1 April 1703.[8]

As a farmer he was assigned a set of crop marks to be placed in the ears of his livestock for the purpose of identification of the livestock. At a meeting 27 October 1708 the commissioners for highways instructed that a road be laid out between the swamp and Hans Laurens' fence, thence to the ferry.

Hans Laurenszen took two of his children to the Reformed Dutch Church in New York for infant baptisms. The mother of James was recorded in the church register as Marritje Satyrs, and the mother of Catherine was recorded as Ytie Jans.[9] His third wife and the mother of his son, John, was Sarah Vincent, the widow of Mr. Fontaine.[10]

James Hans Dey served as a corporal in Capt. James Pollion's south company of militia in Richmond County, Staten Island, New York, and also served as a surveyor of highways.

Dey and James Felcheth leased a lot of land in Richmond County 6 March 1696 for a period of fifty years to the Dutch congregation. The lot lay on Fresh Kill Road and King's Road on Staten Island.[11]

James Hans Dey died testate at Machaponex in Middlesex County, New Jersey. In his will, dated 22 October 1744 and proved 26 November 1745, he made bequests to his wife, Margaret, to his daughters, Mary and Sarah, and to his sons, James and Lawrence. He named his sons, James and Lawrence, and his son-in-law, Peter Perrine, as his executors.[12] Margaret, the wife of Peter Perrine, James, John, and Isaac were named as his children in a family history,[13] as was his son, William. Mary and Catherine and their husbands served as witnesses for Lydia Dey.[14]

Lydia Dey probably lived her entire life on Staten Island. She married Samuel Kierstede who moved to Richmond County on Staten Island.

The names Dey and Deuy were used interchangeably by Lydia, her sister, Catherine, and her father, James, who signed his will as James Deuy. Her sister Margaret, and her brother, William, each named a daughter Lydia.

Lydia Dey and Samuel Kierstede were listed as the parents of Samuel Kierstede whose baptism was recorded 27 March 1720 in the register of the Reformed Dutch Church at Port Richmond. Her sister, Catherine Dey, and Catherine's husband, Jacobus Egberts, stood as witnesses. She was cited with Samuel Kierstede as Lydia Deuy for the baptism of their son, Johannes, 14 April 1723, and for the baptism of their daughter, Lydia, 14 February 1725. The witnesses for the baptism of Johannes were Lydia's sister, Maria [Mary] Deuy, and Maria's husband, Francois Bodine.[15]

James and Elizabeth Greene were named as the parents of Catherine, Mary, Elizabeth, Charity, James, Rebecca, and Thomas in the parish register of St. John's.[5] James Greene died testate and named three sons: James, Thomas Edelen, and Basil, in his will dated 15 November 1774.[6] His widow, Eleanor, renounced her claim as executrix in favor of her "son-in-law" [step-son], Basil Greene. In her will, dated 31 May 1783, Eleanor named four grandchildren of James Greene and Elizabeth Dyer: Charles and Anne, children of Thomas Edelen Greene; and Joseph and Basil, sons of James Blandford.[7] John Greene was named as a son of James Greene and Elizabeth Dyer in a biographical sketch.[8]

THE EDELEN FAMILY

1 Richard Edelen of Pinner Marsh, Parish of Harrow-on-the-Hill, County Middlesex, England, b. about 1530 at Pinner Marsh.

2 Richard Edelen

Richard Edelen lived in the town of Pinner, a chapelry of the Parish of Harrow-on-the-Hill which now lies within the shadow of London. Thomas Reding, son of Richard Reding, a groom of the Privy Chamber of King Edward VI, was at that time a resident of Cannons in the town of Pinner, and his daughter, Joane Reding, married a Richard Edelen. It is highly probable that she was married to this Richard Edelen of Pinner Marsh, grandfather of the Rev. Philip Edelen of Alverstoke, and that Philip's sister, Joane, was thus named for her grandmother which was customary at that time.

The family of Edelen was an armorial family and used the seal Ermine, a fess vaire, or and gules, which had been assigned to their family, many, many years before. Upon the occasion of the Visitation of Hampshire in 1686, the Rev. Samuel Edelen of Silchester presented his seal and designated his great grandfather as Richard Edelen of Hatchend, Pinner, Parish of Harrow-on-the-Hill, born about 1530; and his great, great grandfather as Roger Edelen of Hatchend.[1]

Richard Edelen, a grandson of Richard Edelen of Pinner Marsh, died testate in 1669 and sealed his will with the identical seal presented by his contemporary, the Rev. Samuel Edelen of Silchester in the Visitation of 1686, thus proving they were distant cousins. Richard Edelen of Hatchend, born about 1530, was probably a first cousin of Richard Edelen of Pinner Marsh, The College of Arms in London determined that the Richard Edelen, immigrant to Maryland in 1664, was a son of the Rev. Philip Edelen of Alverstoke and great grandson of Richard Edelen of Pinner Marsh. They accordingly granted arms, 23 June 1962, to a lineal descendant, Crolian William Edelen of New Jersey, with a cross patonce azure for a difference.[2]

2 (1) Richard Edelen (Richard[1]), b. about 1565, Pinner Marsh, Parish of Harrow-on-the-Hill, County Middlesex, England; d. in 1616 between 5 August and 27 August, bur. in Parish of Sturkeley, County Buckingham, England.
Margaret, b. about 1570; m. Richard Edelen, about 1595.

3 Philip Edelen, d. 1657
4 Richard Edelen, d. 1669
5 Alice Edelen
6 Joane Edelen, d. 1643
7 William Edelen, d. 1639

Richard Edelen identified himself in his will as Richard Edlyn of Pinner Marsh, Parish of Harrow-on-the-Hill, County Middlesex. The relationship between Richard Edelen of Pinner and the Richard Edelen, immigrant to Maryland in 1664, has been established by the College of Arms in London.

Richard Edelen died testate. In his will, dated 5 August 1616 and proved 27 August 1616 in the Peculiar Jurisdiction of the Archbishop of Canterbury in the Deanery of Croydon, he made bequests and divided his property among members of his family whom he identified as his wife Margaret, his sons Philip, Richard, and William; and his daughters, Alice and Hanna. The witnesses to his will were his son-in-law, Richard Nicholas, and Henry Edelen.[3] Hanna signed her will as Joane Nicholas and she appointed her brother, Mr. Philip Edelen, and her son-in-law, John Edelen, as executors. In the will of her husband, proved the same day, 28 February 1646, Richard Nicholas named his brother-in-law, Mr. Philip Edelen, and his son-in-law, John Edelen, as overseers of his will. Richard Edelen's son Richard died testate and sealed his will, dated 6 June 1669, with the Edelen coat-of-arms: Ermine, a fess vaire, or and gules.[4] The Rev. Philip Edelen died testate in 1657 and named the latter Richard Edelen, who died in 1669, as his brother.

8 Christopher Edelen, bap. 24 Feb. 1631
9 Anne Edelen, b. 28 Sept. 1633
10 Richard Edelen, b. 1639; d. 1695

Philip Edelen was admitted as a pensioner at Emmanuel College, University of Cambridge, 28 June 1614, and was incorporated at Oxford in 1617. He was listed as a scholar in Alumni Cantabrigienses and held three degrees. He was graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1618, with a Master of Arts degree in 1621, and with a Bachelor of Divinity degree in 1628.[5]

Rev. Philip Edelen was honored by a commemorative mural monument on the south side of St. Mary's Church in Denham. He is depicted in a kneeling position with a book supported on his left knee. A tribute to his integrity as a minister is inscribed in the stone and includes the date of his death and his age.[6]

Edelen was ordained 17 March 1622 as a minister of the Established Church of England,[7] and it was to its precepts which he clung in the face of Puritanism and persecution. He was a protege of the sequestered minister, Dr. Seaton. Edelen was assigned as rector of North Cray in County Kent in 1628, and he lectured at Gray's Inn. The collation of the Rev. Philip Edelen to the parish of Alverstoke, County Hampshire, on Sunday the 24th of December 1631 marked the beginning of his ministry at Alverstoke. He continued in that pastorate until 1635. He next served the church of St. Zachary in London but was forced to flee in 1642 from the persecutions of the Puritans. He was instituted at Bushy but was not allowed to remain for he was proceeded against before the Committee of Scandalous Ministers. It was pleaded on Edelen's behalf that he was a man of most admirable learning and piety, to which White, the chairman replied he "was the more dangerous for that." Sentence of deprivation was passed against him although the worst that could be said against him was that he had said: "His Majesty had gotten one victory over his enemies. Ere long he would overcome them all." This, on the testimony of a maid servant of his own family, was sufficient to deprive him of his ministry.[8] He was among those ministers who were "justly sequestered from their pastoral charges by reason of the contagious infection of the Prelaticall pride and Malignancy of their owne Spirits, since the year 1641 to this present yeare 1647."[9] He was elected as rector of St. Michael Bassishaw, probably in 1652, after a number of intercessions on his behalf with Lord Whitelock and the Lords of the Council, Commissioners of the Great Seal.

The Rev. Philip Edelen died testate. In his will, dated 11 March 1656 and proved 6 April 1657 in London, he identified himself as Philip Edelen of the Parish of St. Andrew's Undershaft, London, Clerk and Minister of the Parish of St. Michael Bassishaw. He named his brother Richard Edelen and referred to his three sisters, one of whom he named as sister Mason, and another as the wife of his brother Richard Chase. He also mentioned his cousins Richard Coggs, Phil Bockett, and a woman named Norland. He called Christopher Edelen his eldest son; Richard Edelen his youngest son; and Anne Hilles his daughter. He also mentioned his son-in-law James Hilles, his godson Philip Hilles, and requested that his body be interred according to the Church of England.[10] Catherine Offley was named as the wife of Philip Edelen of Middlesex by her brother, Francis Offley of London, in the Visitation of London, 1633-35.

Richard Edelen immigrated to the Province of Maryland in 1664.[11] He assigned his rights to 100 acres of land due to him for the transportation of himself and his wife into the Province to Daniel Jenifer 9 February 1665. Later that year he declared before the Provincial Court that he would return to England.

After a brief sojourn in England, Richard and his wife Elizabeth re-entered Maryland with their son, Philip.[12] Richard was appointed deputy surveyor of the Province by Baker Brooke, the surveyor general, in 1670. Being a Catholic, he was disfranchised when the Church of England was established in Maryland as the state church. However, in 1693 Richard was requested by an order of the Council to continue in his work as surveyor until further notice.[13]

Richard Edelen, Gent., appraised several estates. In 1674 he was appointed by the Prerogative Court to appraise the estate of Capt. William Boarman. He was appraiser of the estate of Daniel Russell in 1675; of the estate of John Clarke in 1686; and of the estate of Dennis Husculos in 1688.

Richard Edelen died testate. In his will, dated 5 March 1695, he named as his children Richard, Edward, Christopher, Katherine, and Thomas.[14] Philip was named in a demand for land in 1669.[15]

Christopher Edelen established his dwelling plantation in Prince George's County, Maryland, on a tract of land called Dublin which he had inherited from his father. He added a tract of land to his holdings called Major's Choice and paid quit rents on these two tracts of land during the 1750's. He and his wife deeded Edelen's Addition and Edelen's Folly to their son, Richard, 8 August 1748.[16] Christopher conveyed Piscataway Manor to John Edelen of Prince George's County 7 September 1765 for the consideration of 1,012 pounds of tobacco. The land adjoined the line of Joseph Boarman.

Edelen's name appeared in court records frequently. He was surety for Mary Sewell in 1718; for Henry Tolson in 1731; for Sarah Queen and Anne Jenkins in 1734; and for Thomas and Elizabeth Clarkson in 1736.

Christopher Edelen died testate. In his will, dated 22 September 1770 and proved 19 December 1771, he named as his children Christopher, John, Richard, and Catherine Edelen, Ann Garner [Gardiner], and Elizabeth Wheeler.[17] His children Jane and Benjamin were among his six children baptized in King George Parish.[18]

Anne Edelen was named as a daughter of Christopher and Jane Edelen in the record of her birth 1 September 1710 which was recorded in the church register of King George Parish in Prince George's County, Maryland.

Anne Edelen was named as Anne Garner in her father's will dated 22 September 1770 in Prince George's County, Maryland. She was appointed executrix of her husband's will dated 17 January 1777 as his wife Anne. The names Gardiner and Garner were oftentimes used interchangeably as in the case of the will of Ignatius Gardiner. He began his will as Ignatius Gardiner and signed his name to his will as Ignatius Garner. The variant spelling makes no difference in the true identity of Anne's husband.

The Gardiner family lived in Charles County, Maryland, and the names of the nine children of Anne Edelen and Ignatius Gardiner were listed in the latter's will dated 17 January 1777.

Anne refused to act as executrix of her husband's will, 21 February 1777. She gave quit claim to all that was devised to her and requested her one-third of the real estate and personal property of her deceased husband.

John Edelen was born at Dublin, his father's estate in Prince George's County, Maryland, and record of his birth was recorded in the King George Parish Register.[19]

John purchased Piscataway Manor from his father 7 September 1765 for 1,012 pounds of tobacco. He devised the manor to his daughter, Jean Edelen, during her single life and after her marriage or death the land was to be sold and the money equally divided among his sons Thomas, William, John, Christopher, and Benjamin. He specified that in the event that his son John married either of the daughters of John Haley, or if his daughter Jean married Joseph Blandford, their respective bequests would revert to his other children.

John Edelen died testate. In his will, dated 15 September 1786 and proved 22 November 1786, he named each of his ten children; his granddaughters, Ann Mudd, Elizabeth and Susanna Lindsay; and his grandsons, John Spalding and Robert Edelen. POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

"910 Yoncalla, Douglas County, Oregon, January 28, 1885. I, Daniel William Elledge, was born June 6, 1813, and will be 72 years old at my next birthday. I was born in the state of Kentucky, in what was then Floyd County. My father's name was James Elledge, the son of Isaac Elledge, he being a Baptist preacher. My father was born in North Carolina in Wilkes County on the Yadkin River. He came to Kentucky with Daniel Boone in the 18th year of his age. His mother was an Irish Lady by the name of Jinny Linn. My grandfather died in Kentucky before I was born. My grandmother lived to the great age of 102. I remember seeing her die at my father's home in Kentucky. My mother's name was Elizabeth Mansley (Wamsley). Her father's name was Thomas Mansley (Wamsley) from Wales. His wife's maiden name was Comfort Ingramand was of French descent. My grandfather Mansley enlisted in the Revolutionary War, was one of Washington's lifeguards. He was a Methodist. He also died before my recollection. My grandmother I remember well, she was a fine looking old lady. My father removed from Kentucky to Illinois when I was sixteen years old...It has been said that Elizabeth Wamsley (Mansley) was a cousin to Daniel Boone." (Letter written by James R. Brown, 17 July 1969, Minneapolis, Minnesota.)

Will of James Elledge: mentioned daughters Jane Wells, Polly Davis, Eleanor Davis, and Julia Ann Kidwell; sons D. W. Elledge and Alfred Elledge. (Letter written by Dean V. Burkybile, Clerk of the Circuit Court, Clark County Courthouse, Marshall, Illinois.)

The Elledge family is my mother's...James Elledge did have other children who are not mentioned in his will. On the 1820 census he has five sons...It is true that James' wife was Elizabeth Warmsley (Wamsley). I have never heard of the Mansley name. The narration from Daniel William Elledge is partly true. One of the errors I find is about Thomas Warmsley being in the Revolutionary War. Other than that, most of the data is true. (Letter written by Dorothy Fortune, 9 December 1975, Denver, Colorado.)

1 Elizabeth Elledge, b. 5 June 1799 in Kentucky; d. 26 April 1869, Macon County, Missouri, bur. in Salem Cemetery near Jacksonville, Randolph County, Missouri.

6 Daniel Peyton, b. 9 July 1827; d. 7 Apr. 1893

Elizabeth Elledge and Ashcraft Peyton were married 16 July 1815 by the Rev. Daniel Williams in Floyd County, Kentucky.[1] Elizabeth made application for bounty land 28 July 1855 in Macon County, Missouri, and deposed that she was the widow of Ashcraft Peyton, a soldier in the War of 1812.

In 1860 Elizabeth Peyton was enumerated on the census for Shelby County, Missouri, as a member of the household of her son-in-law, Matthew P. Holley. She reported she was then sixty years of age and that she was born in Kentucky.

Elizabeth Elledge and her husband, Ashcraft C. Peyton, were the parents of six children. In an article entitled "The Early Settlement of Macon County and the Lives of the Pioneers," the Rev. John Peyton wrote of the house of A. C. Peyton in which his family of eight persons lived.[2] Elizabeth Elledge was cited as the wife of A. C. Peyton and the mother of Dr. Daniel Peyton of Stockton, California, in a county history which was published in 1890. The Rev. John Peyton was named as a brother of Dr. Daniel Peyton in the same sketch.[3] On 6 March 1894 the Rev. Walter Toole, a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church South in Macon, Missouri, stated under oath that he knew the family intimately, and that Elizabeth was the mother of John Peyton.[4]

Greene Peyton was named as a brother of John Peyton, Margaret Reynolds, Daniel Peyton, and Kitty Holley in a letter written in 1956 by a granddaughter of John Peyton.[5]

Dr. Daniel Peyton is buried in Odd Fellow's Cemetery in Salem, Marion County, Oregon.[6] Elizabeth [Elledge] Peyton, the Rev. John Peyton, Kitty A. [Peyton] Holley, Mary D. [Peyton] Enyart, and Greene Peyton are buried in Salem Cemetery in Randolph County near Jacksonville, Missouri. On Memorial Day in 1953 a great-niece found the fallen stone of Greene Peyton in the cemetery,[7] but it is no longer there. Elizabeth's gravestone is inscribed: "Elizabeth Peyton, wife of A. C. Richard Ewen was one of ten commissioners appointed 22 July 1654, by Bennett and Claiborne, to direct the affairs of Maryland under Oliver Cromwell, Lord Protector of England.[1] The Puritans called a General Assembly at Patuxent in 1654, barring Catholics and those who bore arms against Parliament, and passed The Act of Recognition 20 October 1654 enacting laws for the governing of the Province.[2]

Ewen served twice as speaker of the Lower House. He served as speaker in the session of the General Assembly called 24 September 1657,[3] during Cromwell's rule in England. He was a burgess from Anne Arundel County in the session of the Assembly called at Lord Baltimore's direction 28 February 1660, and served as speaker of the Lower House for the second time.[4] It was during this session and under Ewen's leadership as speaker that it was resolved that the Assembly should continue as a bicameral legislative body.[5]

Capt. Richard Ewen was one of the commissioners present at a Provincial Court 13 August 1655.[6] He subsequently was commissioned as a major of the militia 12 July 1658.[7] On 22 July 1658 he was asked to take an oath of office but Maj. Ewen desired to be

Richard Ewen immigrated to Virginia and transported Nicholas Ewen and Christopher Roades. He received a patent for 150 acres of land in Norfolk County, Virginia, 14 August 1638 for his own personal adventure and the transportation of two persons.[8] He assigned his right to this tract of land to John Wright in July 1643.[9]

He entered Maryland in 1649 and was granted 1,000 acres of land in Herring Creek Hundred on West River.[10] He received a grant of 350 acres of land south of Patapsco River 19 November 1652,[11] and a grant of 600 acres of land on the Severn River 26 November 1652. The latter tract he called Scotland.[12] Subsequently three other tracts of land totaling 650 acres were surveyed for him on West River.

During the Cromwellian regime in England, Gov. William Stone was displaced from his authority in Maryland. He attempted to reestablish himself as governor and entered the northern stronghold by boat. In the ensuing Battle of the Severn, Capt. Richard Ewen commanded one of the "Trayn Bands of Patuxent," a company of militia.[13] Three days following the defeat and capture of Stone and fifty of his men, Ewen was one of the eight members of the council of war who condemned Stone and eight other men to death, four of whom were executed.[14]

Maj. Richard Ewen died intestate. He named five of his children, Elizabeth, Richard, John, Susanna, and Ann, in his demand for 1,000 acres of land in 1650.[15] One of his daughters, Susanna Billingsly, died testate and named each of her brothers and sisters, including her sister Sophia, in her will dated 7 December 1663.[16]

Elizabeth Ewen was one of the nine persons transported by her father in 1649 from Virginia into Maryland. In his demand for land 11 May 1650 due to him for transportation, she was listed as Eliza: Davy.[17] This would imply that she had married in Virginia.

The Ewen family settled in Herring Creek Hundred in Anne Arundel County, Maryland, in a Puritan colony. Almost without exception, the families of Herring Creek Hundred listed in Descendants of Richard and Elizabeth (Ewen) Talbot[18] were families also listed in Cavaliers and Pioneers with the implication that this group of Puritans was a part of the five-hundred families re-settled in Maryland by Gov. William Stone in 1649.[19] Col. William Burgess, who was later the step-father of Elizabeth Ewen, transported one hundred-fifty persons in his boat from Virginia to South River.[20]

During the middle of the 1650's Elizabeth Harris visited the Puritan colony in Anne Arundel County, Maryland, and quietly converted a number of Puritans to Quakerism. Both of Elizabeth Ewen's husbands were well known and ardent Friends,[21] and it is reasonable to assume that Elizabeth was also converted.

Elizabeth Ewen married Richard Talbot of Poplar Knowle, now Tulip Hill. Her marriage is proved in the assignment of the right of 50 acres of land by Maj. Richard Ewen to his son-in-law, Richard Talbot, 2 August 1659.[22] Elizabeth's home, Poplar Knowle, was proved in the will of her husband, Richard Talbot, as he devised "this seat of Land I now live upon Called Poplar Knowle."

Elizabeth, widow of Richard Talbot, married William Richardson and was designated as the executrix of Richard Talbot of Anne Arundel County.[23] After this marriage Elizabeth lived at Watkins Hope, now known as Woodstock. William Richardson was a Quaker minister in his later life and Quaker meetings were held at Watkins Hope until his death in 1697. "William Penn, during his visit to Maryland in 1682, visited the house of William Richardson [and Elizabeth Ewen] on West River, from which, in company with Lord and Lady Baltimore, all proceeded to the yearly meeting at Tredhaven in Talbot County."[24]

The names of the children of Elizabeth Ewen and William Richardson and the date of birth of each were recorded in the West River Friends' Register of Births and Burials.

The Talbots of Calvert County are descendants of Richard Talbot and Elizabeth Ewen through their son, John. Elizabeth Talbot, daughter of Richard Talbot and Elizabeth Ewen, married Benjamin Lawrence of the Deserts of Calvert County, Maryland.

Richard Talbot died testate and named his wife Elizabeth and their four children, Elizabeth, Richard, Edward, and John, in his will dated 21 April 1663.[25]

Henry Beedle, b. in 1648 in England; d. in 1674, between 29 May and 4 August, Anne Arundel County, Maryland; m. Sophia Ewen, widow of Richard Wells, in 1671, between 9 June and 13 November, Anne Arundel County.

19 Sophia Beedle

Sophia Ewen was born in the Province of Maryland as she was not named by her father, Richard Ewen, 17 May 1650 in his demand for land due to him for the transportation of his family in 1649 from Virginia into Maryland.[26]

Richard Wells died testate, and his will was probated 9 June 1671. He devised his plantations known as Wells, Little Wells, and Wells Hills to his wife, Sophia, during her widowhood, provided she had male issue.[27] As there were no children by this marriage, Sophia received no part of the estate.

Sophia married Henry Beedle before 13 November 1671,[28] and their daughter, Sophia, was born before Henry's death in 1674.[29]

Sophia died testate before Henry Beedle's will was probated, and the two wills were jointly administered by Henry's step-father, William Coursey, 4 February 1675. In her will, dated 30 December 1674, Sophia devised Beedle's Outlet to her daughter, Sophia Beedle, and assigned her to the care of her mother-in-law Juliana Coursey, wife of William Coursey. In the event of the death of her daughter, Sophia devised her personal estate and money due to her from England to be equally divided between her brother, Richard Ewen, Jr., and her "Sister Richardsons Children the Talbots."[30]

Sophia Ewell was cited as the wife of Col. William Burgess in a book published in 1907.[1] In another reference it shows the wife of Col. William Burgess was Sophia Ewell Ewen, widow of Col. Richard Ewen.[2] A third reference published in 1877 stated that Elizabeth Ewen was a daughter of Maj. Richard Ewen and Sophie Scarborrough.[3] A fourth reference states that "sometime after 1658 William Burgess married secondly Sophia, the widow of Maj. Richard Ewen, but their marriage was of short duration inasmuch as by 1660 or thereabouts he married his third wife, Ursula.[4]

Maj. Richard Ewen named his wife Sophia in his demand for land 17 May 1650 and was granted land for transporting her from Virginia in 1649.[5] He was serving his second term as speaker of the Lower House of the General Assembly as late as 14 March 1660.[6]

He died shortly thereafter.

Susanna Ewen married James Billingsly and died testate. In her will, dated 7 December 1663, she made bequests to her brothers, Richard and John Ewen, and to her sisters, Anne Ewen, Sophia, Elizabeth Talbot, and Susanna Burgess.[7]

It resolves, therefore, that Sophia became the widow of Maj. Richard Ewen after 14 March 1660, and soon married Col. William Burgess as his second wife. Sophia was in her late forties, being probably as old as forty-seven or forty-eight, at the time of the birth of her daughter, Susanna Burgess, in 1661. She evidently died soon thereafter and her widower, Col. Burgess, married his third wife during the early 1660's. Susanna Burgess grew to womanhood and married Maj. Nicholas Sewall.

Edward Field was issued a warrant for 100 acres of land in the Province of Maryland 19 January 1679. He received 50 acres of land in his own right for his time of service performed in the Province, and the other 50 acres of land was assigned to him by Robert Joy who had completed thirteen years of service within the Province.[1]

One of Edward Field's daughters married John Spalding. She died about 1720, for during that year John Spalding married secondly Priscilla Smith, the widow of William Smith of Charles County, Maryland.[2]

Edward Field died testate. His will, dated 6 October 1724, was probated 4 November 1724. He devised 60 acres of land, being a part of Batchellor's Rest, to his son Edward during his lifetime with entail to William, his grandson. He devised personalty to his daughter Monica Mohany, and appointed Edward Field and Samuel Mohany as the executors of his estate. He devised 40 acres of land, it being a part of Knotting, to his grandson William Field with provision that it be willed to his grandson, Edward Field, if William should die without issue. To his son [in-law], John Spalding, he bequeathed one shilling. Witnesses to the will were Clement Gardiner, William Joseph, and Samuel Wood.[3]

Gideon Freeman, Sr., was listed on the tax list in Dinwiddie County, Virginia, in 1782. In that year he sold his land in Dinwiddie County to Charles Booth of Amelia County, and on 7 November 1782 he purchased 500 acres of land in Granville County, North Carolina, from William Booth of Amelia County.

He moved with his family to North Carolina and was enumerated in 1786 in the Dutch District with seven males and three females in his household, and with nine slaves. He was enumerated on the 1790 census with eight members in his household, five slaves and 1,388 acres of land.

Gideon Freeman served in the North Carolina militia during the Revolutionary War.[1]

Freeman deeded land to John Freeman in 1797; to Gideon Freeman, Jr., in 1821; to Richardson Freeman in 1828; and to George Bullock, husband of Mary Freeman, in 1838. The marriage records of his children, Gideon, Jr., Mary, Richardson, Charles A., and Edmund are extant in Granville County, North Carolina. All of his children were named in an article on the Freeman family.[2]

He died testate in Granville County. In his will, dated 13 May 1817 and probated during the August term of court in 1817, he devised property to each of his children. His wife, India, evidently predeceased him, and was not mentioned in his will.

Edmund Freeman named his children as follows: daughter Phoebe Ann Baker; son Marting Freeman; son James Archer Freeman; daughter Elizabeth Freeman, son Hatsville Freeman; and daughters Evelina, Sarah, and Cynthia.

He made bequests of 50 acres of land to Phoebe Ann; 200 acres of land to Martin; 200 acres of land to James Archer; and the home plantation of 235 acres of land to Hartsell. He devised slaves, furniture, and money among his children, and made provision for the education of Evelina, Sarah, and Cynthia, his minor daughters at the time of his death. Richard Gardiner demanded 600 acres of land 31 March 1640 for the transportation of himself and seven other persons into Maryland.[1] He then demanded a grant of a manor of 1,000 acres of land 4 December 1640, due to him for his immigration and the transportation of his wife, four of their children, and two servants into the Province in 1637. A warrant was issued the following day authorizing the surveyor to lay out a manor south of Patuxent River. The surveyor's certificate was returned 6 December 1640, and on that day St. Richard's Manor was registered in the name of Richard Gardiner.[2] He also acquired a 200 acre tract of land south of the Patuxent called Sacaweykitt.[3]

Richard Gardiner, alias Richard Garnett Senior, of Mattapanient, planter, took his seat in the General Assembly held at St. Mary's in St. Mary's County 25 January 1637,[4] and served almost without interruption through 1642. Entries in the original proprietary record books show that Gardiner was a member of the Lower House of the General Assembly and was therefore one of the freemen who was influential in formulating democratic laws in the early history of Maryland. He served as election judge in Mattapanient Hundred 14 February 1638 and again 16 July 1642.[5]

In 1643 an assessment of 4,000 pounds of tobacco was levied upon the citizens of St. Mary's County to defray the expense of the defense of the Province against the assault of the Sesquilhanowe Indians the previous year. Richard Gardiner Senr was assessed thirty-five pounds.[6]

The names of Richard Gardiner Senr and Richard Gardiner Junr were recorded 27 March 1638 when Richard Senr was appointed administrator of the estate of John Brian.[7] Richard Senr gave security in the amount of 1,000 pounds of tobacco and Richard Junr gave security in the amount of 500 pounds of tobacco for his father. In the final settlement, Richard Senr allowed himself 25 pounds of tobacco for "five daies travaile and neglect of his other business, to follow the administration."

During Claiborne's Rebellion, members of the Gardiner family and other followers of Calvert sought refuge in Virginia. Luke Gardiner and his sister, Julianna, returned to St. Mary's County, Maryland, in 1647 and found the manorial rights to St. Richard's Manor had been usurped. He immediately took steps to recover St. Richard's Manor and Sacaweykitt. Gov. William Stone received a letter from Cecilius, Lord Baltimore, dated 26 August 1651 in London, England, which included the following directive: "And also to pass another grant to Luke Gardiner and his heirs (he being the son and heir of Richard Gardiner), of the manor of St. Richard's containing 1,000 acres, which we find was formerly passed by patent to said Richard Gardiner and his heirs by the name of Richard Garnett, his name being mistaken in the said grant..."[8]

Richard Gardiner died intestate. He immigrated to the Province of Maryland in 1637 and transported his wife, Elizabeth, his son Richard aged twenty-one years; his son John aged four years; his daughter Elizabeth aged nineteen years; and his daughter Julianna aged six years.[9] His son, Luke Gardiner, demanded land in 1650 and named his father and each of his brothers and sisters in the demand.[10]

Luke Gardiner was transported into the Province of Maryland by Thomas Copley, 8 August 1637.[11] Following Claiborne's Rebellion, Luke and his sister, Julianna, returned to their home in Maryland in 1647 after a sojourn in Virginia where the Gardiners had sought refuge during the political strife and warfare in Maryland. In 1650 Luke demanded land for the transportation of himself and Julianna from Virginia. He was granted 100 acres of land and was designated an "Adventurer into the Province."[12] The lands of his father had been usurped, and Luke made applications to regain his father's estates. He received a warrant for Sacaweykitt 9 August 1652.[13] A directive written by Lord Baltimore, dated 26 August 1651 in England, specified that a grant be issued to Luke Gardiner for St. Richard's Manor, and the grant was issued 31 December 1652 in Gardiner's name.[14]

Luke was one of the wealthy landowners of Maryland with the title of gentleman. St. John's Manor in St. Mary's County was surveyed for him 28 August 1668.[15] He conveyed St. Richard's Manor to Luke Barber in exchange for Barberton Manor of 1,200 acres 22 September 1662.[16] In 1673 his home plantation was Cannon Neck near Newton, Maryland, and other land which he owned included Hillilee, Gardiner's Land, and Grimditch.

He was also active in the political and civil life of Maryland. Luke was commissioned justice for St. Mary's County 19 June 1661, and received subsequent commissions in 1664 and 1666.[17] As justice, he presided over the court in St. Mary's County, and was styled "Gentleman Sheriff" in court proceedings 26 April 1672.[18] As sheriff in 1673, Luke was charged to imprison John Maltby, and Luke confined him to his plantation, Cannon Neck. After Maltby escaped, Luke was charged with allowing him to make his escape. He was sued for damages but was acquitted.[19]

In 1659, Luke Gardiner was elected to the Lower House of the General Assembly as burgess representing St. Mary's County. He was re-elected in 1661, 1662, and 1671.[20] He was one of the gentlemen appointed to the Quorum of St. Mary's County in 1668.

On 28 January 1660, he was commissioned as a lieutenant in charge of a Company of Foot. The following year he received a commission as captain.

Luke Gardiner died testate. His will, dated 4 December 1673, was proved in court in St. Mary's County, Maryland, 12 August 1674. As no executor was named in the will, the judge considered Luke Gardiner was dead intestate and therefore ordered letters of administration be granted his widow, Elizabeth. Robert Carvile testified that on 6 July 1674 Luke Gardiner was then able to walk out of doors, and that he, Robert Carvile, had discourse with Luke and his wife concerning the terms of the will whereby none of his sons would be able to sell or dispose of his bequest until he had attained the age of twenty-five, and that both he and Luke's wife advised him to change the age to twenty-one. Luke named each of his sons in his will and divided his estate among them.[21] Elizabeth Gardiner was named as a daughter of Luke Gardiner in Colonial Families of the United States of America.

Richard Gardiner, a planter in St. Mary's County, was the third Gardiner in succession to serve in the General Assembly in the Province of Maryland. He was elected as burgess representing St. Mary's County in 1681,[22] and served continuously until his death in 1687. In November 1688 it was written into the minutes of the Assembly proceedings that since the last session Mr. Richard Gardiner, a member from St. Mary's County, had died.[23]

He received his first commission as gentleman justice for St. Mary's County 30 April 1677,[24] and was re-commissioned in 1678, 1679, 1680, and 1685.[25] Richard Gardiner was commissioned as a member of the Quorum for St. Mary's County 28 April 1686.[26]

An act for the advancement of trade was passed during the October-November session in 1683, and Gardiner was appointed by the Assembly to act as one of the commissioners of St. Mary's County to lay out towns, ports, and other public places. He was re-appointed commissioner 31 August 1685.[27]

In Chancery Court Proceedings it was recorded that Richard was commissioned coroner of St. Mary's County 27 June 1676.[28] The following year, 12 June 1677, Clement Hill and Richard Gardiner were commanded to determine the ownership of the disputed land in Brittain's Bay.[29]

Richard Gardiner succeeded to Barberton Manor in Charles County, Maryland, according to the terms of his father's will probated 12 August 1674.[30] This estate lay on the north side of Piscataway Creek in the area later included in Prince George's County. Another manor of 1,400 acres of land called Friendship was surveyed 14 June 1675 for Richard Gardiner and Clement Hill in Prince George's County. In a conveyance of land, Richard and his wife, Elizabeth, transferred a tract of 2,502 acres of land 9 April 1686 to Clement Hill. This land was originally patented 6 June 1666 by Maj. John Weire, Richard's father-in-law, and lay in Richmond County, Virginia, on the north side of the Rappahannock River in Sittenbourne Parish. Clement Hill of St. Mary's County, Maryland, conveyed this tract of land 2 June 1693 to Elizabeth Gardiner, "widow and Relict of Richard Gardiner late of St. Mary's County in the Province of Maryland, Gentleman, deceased."[31]

Mrs. Honoria Weire Jones, widow of Maj. John Weire, bequeathed twenty shillings to Richard in her will dated 9 November 1685.[32]

Richard Gardiner died testate. In his will, dated 19 April 1687 and probated 3 December 1687, he devised the plantation near Rappahannock River in Virginia to his wife Elizabeth. His plantation, Barberton Manor in Charles County, Maryland, was devised to his son John. He entailed the grist mill and land to his son Luke, and his two sons were to share equally in other lands. Other bequests included his plantation called St. John's to his brother Luke; personalty to his stepfather Clement Hill, to his brother Luke, to Luke's wife Monica, and to Luke's daughter, Elizabeth. His bequests included ten pounds to the Catholic priest at Newton Chapel and six pounds to each of the other priests then dwelling in Maryland. He appointed his uncle, Col. Henry Darnell; his step-father Clement Hill, and his brother Luke Gardiner as his executors.[33]

Luke Gardiner settled in Prince George's County, Maryland. He was named as a son of Richard Gardiner in the latter's will dated 19 April 1687.

According to the terms of his father's will, he inherited the grist mill at the head of St. Clement's Bay and all the land that belonged to his father on both sides of the Run. Luke and his brother, John, were joint heirs to a plantation lying in Virginia near the Rappahannock River.[34]

Luke was also mentioned and identified in other wills. Honoria Jones, widow of Maj. John Weire and maternal grandmother of Luke Gardiner, bequeathed to Luke silver spoons and a silver salt trenchard.[35] Clement Hill, second husband of Elizabeth Hatton, Luke's paternal grandmother, willed to Luke a share of a tract of land called Friend's Hope.

He was one of the leaders of a small group of Catholic families who spearheaded the migratory movement from Charles County, Maryland, to the Cox's Creek settlement in Nelson County, Kentucky. They arrived in Kentucky in 1798 and settled not far from Bardstown in a community later known as Fairfield. Clement's first home in Kentucky, erected from logs, contained a large room built for the purpose of accomodating Catholic services, and mass was held in this room at Gardiner's Station for several years. Clement donated the land for the church site and cemetery plot, and contributed the major part of the money for the erection of the first church in Fairfield. He subscribed liberally to the support of the clergy and the construction of churches in Kentucky.[39]

The names of the children of Clement Gardiner and his wife, Henrietta Boone, are given in The Centenary of Catholicity in Kentucky and in the NSDAR records of his descendants.[40]

Thomas Gassaway was a resident of the older section of London which was called London Town during the 1600's.

The only knowledge of the life of Thomas Gassaway known to the compilers is that part of his life that was touched by St. Margaret's Church Westminister. There were several churches in the parish, but this, the largest, was built adjacent to Westminister Abbey and was the peoples' church. Thomas would therefore have lived near the present site of Westminister Abbey.

Two daughters and one son of Thomas Gassaway were baptized in St. Margaret's Church Westminister, and one was buried prior to 1631. In that year Thomas Gassaway married Anne Collingwood, his second wife. Of the five children of this marriage whose baptismal records are extant in St. Margaret's Church Westminister, only two, Nicholas and Anne, survived early childhood. The burial dates of both Thomas and his wife, Anne, were recorded in the parish registers at St. Margaret's Church Westminister. The original manuscript registers are in the custody of the church. A transcription has been published under the title Memorials of St. Margaret's Church Westminister.

Nicholas Gassaway stated 21 September 1663 that he came to the Province of Maryland in the year 1650. He was transported by Richard Owens, and was one of more than a dozen persons in 1663 who assigned to Thomas Bradley his rights to land due to him for service performed within the Province.[1] The assignee of Richard Owens declared 26 August 1651 that "Richard Owens hath transported himself and Nicholas Gassaway Anno 1649."[2]

Regardless of the exact date of his entrance into Maryland, Nicholas Gassaway became one of the outstanding Marylanders of his day. He settled in the South River Hundred of Anne Arundel County among neighbors of Puritan faith who had moved to Maryland from Virginia. There is no record of Nicholas Gassaway in Cavaliers and Pioneers, but as Richard Owens had been transported into Virginia it is reasonable to assume that the two migrated from Virginia into Maryland with the Puritans in 1649.

Then sixteen years of age and an indentured servant, he is credited with becoming one of the wealthiest men of his day. Nicholas acquired large land holdings. The following surveys were made for him: Poplar Ridge, 150 acres of land surveyed 30 April 1663; Addition to Poplar Ridge, 70 acres of land surveyed 27 August 1668; Gassaway's Ridge of 500 acres of land; and Gassaway's Addition, 280 acres of land surveyed 24 September 1683. His purchases included the tracts of land known as Hall's Inheritance, Wrighton, and Love's Neck. The latter was devised to his son, Nicholas, in his will, and 300 acres of land called Charles' Purchase was devised to his son, John. He purchased 80 acres of Bessenton from his brother-in-law, John Besson, for 3,000 pounds of tobacco. On 19 October 1672 Capt. Thomas Besson deeded to him 160 acres of Bessendon for the natural love and affections which he held for "my well beloved son-in-law Nicholas Gassaway and Anne his wife."[3]

Periodically the General Assembly held at Preston's Freehold on the Patuxent voted to distribute "Severall Sumes of Tobacco due from the Publick to the Severall Inhabitants." In September 1657 Nicholas Gassaway received 600 pounds of tobacco at Patuxent River,[4] and other payments were made in 1669,[5] and 1681.[6]

He was also active in the militia. Capt. Nicholas Gassaway and Lt. Thomas Francis directed a letter from the head of South River dated 13 September 1681 to the Council held at St. Mary's in which they reported the murder of one man and the wounding of two others by the Indians. Nicholas deplored the lack of ammunition in his company of nineteen men and in the company of Col. Burgess, and stated "the head of the River will be deserted if we leave them...we have noe orders but to Range and Defend the Plantations, the which we shall doe to the best of our skill."[7] By 22 July 1687 he had been commissioned a major for as Maj. Nicholas Gassaway he was ordered to report on officers in his command.[8]

Hanslap, Edward Burgess, Richard Hill, and Edward Dorsey signed a letter directed to Col. William Digges in which they expressed their concern of eminent danger to the protestant citizens. They wrote: "Its reported the Indians are designed to kill all the protestants in this province not without the assistance of some called Christians in greate power...wee have heard this day That Majr Ninian Beale is either engaged with the Piscattoway Indians or every minute in expectation to put in operation their wicked and malicious designe...wee remaine in a posture of defence for the generall safety of all..."[9] After the ensuing rebellion led by Capt. Coode, Col. Nicholas Gassaway was appointed one of the Committee of Twenty who governed Maryland until the arrival of a royal governor from England.[10]

At a council held at St. Mary's City 30 May 1685 Maj. Gassaway was appointed as one of the four members of the Quorum for Anne Arundel County,[11] and 28 April 1686 he was again appointed a member of the Quorum of the commissioners for the peace and trial of causes in Anne Arundel County.[12] In 1691 he was recommended by the merchants to be confirmed as a member of his Majesty's Council in Maryland.[13]

Col. Nicholas Gassaway died testate. In his will, dated 10 January 1691 and proved 27 January 1691, he made no mention of his wife. He named his sons Nicholas, John, and Thomas, and his daughters Anne Watkins, Hester Gross, Jane Gassaway, and Margaret Gassaway, the latter two of whom were then minors. He made bequests to his grandchildren John Watkins and Elizabeth Gross. He appointed his sons Nicholas and Thomas Gassaway as his executors. He bequeathed his legacy which he had received from his uncle, John Collingwood of London, and then in the possession of his cousin Samuel Beaver, to his granddaughter Elizabeth Gross.[14]

John Gassaway of Anne Arundel County, Maryland, died as a young man of perhaps twenty-three years of age. He was named as a son of Col. Nicholas Gassaway in the latter's will, probated 27 January 1692 in Anne Arundel County. John received from his father's estate a 300 acre tract of land known as Charles' Purchase situated on the north side of the Gunpowder River, and a plantation identified as that plantation on which his sister, Hester Gross, was then living in 1692, to him after her decease.[15]

The rent rolls for Anne Arundel County, Maryland, indicate that John and his brother, Thomas Gassaway, were joint possessors of 160 acres of land called Bessendon from the original survey of 450 acres laid out for Capt. Thomas Besson in 1658 on the south side of South River.[16]

John Gassaway died intestate. His widow, Elizabeth, was granted letters of administration 10 August 1698 with Richard Galloway and William Richardson as her security and warranty was granted to John Chappell and John Gaile to appraise the estate of her deceased husband. The inventory was recorded 20 October 1698. Elizabeth then married John Rigbie and died in 1700 leaving an infant daughter named Elizabeth Rigbie. It was Elizabeth Rigbie's husband, Peter Galloway, who assumed the administration of the estate of John Gassaway twenty years later, 27 January 1717.[17]

31 Rachel Gassaway

Nicholas Gassaway, only heir and son of John Gassaway and his wife Elizabeth Lawrence, was baptized 6 February 1697 at All Hallow's in Anne Arundel County, Maryland.

After he married he left South River Hundred and settled on a portion of Talbot's Resolution Manor on Elk Ridge in upper Anne Arundel County. He conveyed a tract of land to Thomas Gassaway 6 July 1720. His wife, Elizabeth, waived her dower rights, and he, "Nicholas Gassaway son and heir of John Gassaway, late of Anne Arundel County, deceased," transferred "the tract of land which I have claim to in Anne Arundel County either by descent from my father John Gassaway or by the last will and testament of my grandfather Col. Nicholas Gassaway."[18]

Nicholas Gassaway's daughters Anne Pierpont, Elizabeth Selman, Susanna Mansell, Hannah Porter, and Lucy Nicholson were married before 18 February 1757. His daughter, Mary Aldridge, was married before 25 February 1761. His son, Thomas, deposed in 1810 that he was aged eighty-six. His son, Nicholas Gassaway, married Margaret Pierpont 12 September 1749 at West River, and his son, James, was married by 1745. As Nicholas Gassaway married his second wife, Sarah Shipley, about 1738, it is logical to assume that these nine children were sons and daughters of his first wife.

Benjamin Gassaway was named as a son of "Sarah Gassaway now wife of Nicholas Gassaway of Anne Arundel County" by her father, Robert Shipley, in a deed of gift 19 September 1747.[19]

Benjamin, Robert, and Richard Gassaway were minors in 1757, and were joint heirs to the plantation Talbot's Resolution Manor. It is more likely they were full brothers rather than half-brothers. Sarah Gassaway was unmarried in 1761, and she was probably named in honor of her mother. It is therefore logical to assume that these four children were sons and daughter of Nicholas Gassaway and his wife, Sarah Shipley.

Nicholas Gassaway of Queen Caroline Parish in Anne Arundel County, Maryland, died testate. His will, dated 18 February 1757, was proved 21 April 1757. He made bequests "to my Deceased Daughter Ann Pierpont's Heirs...to my Daughter Elizabeth Selman ...to my Daughter Susanna Mansill...& to my son Nicholas Gassaway ...Bequeath all my Personel Estate to my wife & Children, Hereafter Nam'd Viz:[t] Thomas & James Gassaway Hannah Porter Mary Gassaway and Lucy Nicholson Benjamin Sarah Richard Robert & Rachel Gassaway."[20] Final settlement was made 25 February 1761 by James Sewall and wife Rachel, relict of Nicholas Gassaway.

Benjamin Gassaway was heir to the plantation, Talbot's Resolution Manor, which had come down through the Lawrence family. His father's will reads in part: "I give and bequeath to my three Sons Benjamin, Richard & Robert Gassaway all my Tract or Parcell of Land Call'd Talbot's Resolution manner Containing three Hundred Acres more or Less, Equally to be Divided between them, Each to Have one Hundred Acres, only my son Benjamin to have his first Choyce after being Divided, if Either of my Said Sons Should die before they Come to the age of Twenty one years, then to goe to the Survivour two now mentioned, to be Equally Divided between them, or the whole to one, if two Should Die before they come to the age of Twenty one years's, to their, or his heirs for ever."[21]

Robert Shipley, in a deed of gift dated 19 September 1747, conveyed 72 acres of Sary's Dowry to his "daughter, Sarah Gassaway now wife of Nicholas Gassaway of Anne Arundel County and heirs of her body lawfully begotten" and then to her son Benjamin Gassaway.[22] This land was a portion of Shipley's Choice which was surveyed on the Severn River in Anne Arundel County for Adam Shipley 30 March 1681.

Benjamin Gassaway died intestate in Frederick County, Maryland. His widow, Ruth Gassaway, filed the final account of his estate 15 May 1793.[23]

35 (27) Nicholas Gassaway (Benjamin,[5] Nicholas,[4] John,[3] Col. Nicholas,[2] Thomas[1]), b. about 1775 in Maryland, probably Anne Arundel County; d. probably in early 1840's in Missouri.

Susan Priest, dau. of Peter Priest and Sarah McCoy, b. in 1799 in Tennessee; d. after 1850; m. Nicholas Gassaway, 11 January 1827, Barren County, Kentucky.

41 Jereme Gassaway, aged 18 in 1850
42 Sarah F. Gassaway, aged 17 in 1850
43 Eliza A. Gassaway, aged 15 in 1850
44 Henry C. Gassaway, aged 13 in 1850
45 Henrietta Gassaway, aged 7 in 1850

Nicholas Gassaway and his brothers, Samuel and Benjamin, migrated to Barren County, Kentucky, about 1797, for in that year the name of their mother, Ruth Gassaway, was recorded in the records of Cooper's Run Baptist Church in Bourbon County, Kentucky. Nicholas Gassaway was enumerated on the 1810 and 1820 census reports in Barren County, Kentucky, and by 1820 he had three sons in his household.

The name of Nicholas Gassaway was recorded continuously on the Kentucky tax list in Barren County from 1801 through the year 1821, and was again entered on the tax list in 1826 through 1829. The tax list for the next three years are missing and 1833 was the last year he was taxed in Barren County.

He purchased 100 acres of land on Beaver Creek in Barren County from John Mayfield 22 December 1804.[24] In another transaction dated 1 October 1822, he sold the land to Campbell McGuire. The latter brought suit 4 February 1831, and the same tract of land was sold at the court house door in public auction. McGuire purchased the land and an indenture was made bearing that date.[25]

24. Barren Co. Deeds, Book AA, p. 83, Courthouse, Glasgow, KY.

Nicholas Gassaway and his two families of children moved to Lewis County, Missouri, about 1833. He entered land in Section 4, Township 61, Range 8 W, 2 October 1837.[26] He and his wife, Susan, sold this tract of land 22 February 1838 to Elijah Harper, the husband of Mary Ann Gassaway.[27]

No record of a will or the settlement of the estate of Nicholas Gassaway has been found. Records show he married twice. His first wife, Nancy, relinquished her dower rights in the conveyance of land in 1822 to Campbell McGuire in Barren County, Kentucky.[28] He married his second wife, Susan Priest, 11 January 1827 in Barren County, Kentucky.[29]

Nicholas Gassaway of Lewis County, Missouri, was one and the same as the Nicholas Gassaway of Barren County, Kentucky. This is proven by the deposition in the settlement of the estate of William M. Gassaway in Lewis County, Missouri, in which the declarant stated that William M. Gassaway was the son of Nicholas Gassaway formerly of Barren County, Kentucky.[30]

Considering marriage dates and census reports, in 1833 Upton Gassaway was about twenty-three years of age; Mary Ann Gassaway was twenty-one; Thomas A. Gassaway was aged seventeen; and Martha C. Gassaway was ten. Martha was just eighteen at her date of marriage in 1842 when her guardian gave his consent. Nicholas Gassaway, father of William M. Gassaway, was the only Gassaway in Lewis County old enough to be the father of Upton, Mary Ann, Thomas A., and Martha C., and there were no other Gassaway families in Lewis County or any of the neighboring counties.

40 (35) Martha C. Gassaway (Nicholas,[6] Benjamin,[5] Nicholas,[4] John,[3] Col. Nicholas,[2] Thomas[1]), b. 25 December 1823 in Kentucky; d. 11 March 1868 near Lewistown, Lewis County, Missouri, bur. in Lewistown Cemetery, Lewistown, Missouri.
George Washington Harper (Henry,[3] Jacob,[2] Nicholas[1]), b. 7 June 1814 near Midway, Woodford County, Kentucky; d. 8 August 1882 near Lewistown, Missouri, bur. in Lewistown Cemetery; m. Martha C. Gassaway, 3 March 1842, Lewis County, Missouri.

46 Henry Harry Harper, b. 9 June 1843; d. 7 Mar. 1914
47 William H. Harper, b. 22 Dec. 1845; d. 24 Oct. 1909
48 Mary A. Harper, b. 26 Oct. 1848; d. 12 Apr. 1936
49 George Washington Harper, b. 21 Nov. 1855; d. 1 June 1894
50 John Harper, b. 9 May 1861; d. 11 Mar. 1862

Martha C. Gassaway was born in Kentucky. According to a statement made by her granddaughter, Martha was born in Shelby County, half way between Frankfort and Lexington. This is highly possible as the name of her father, Nicholas Gassaway, was not recorded on the Kentucky tax list for Barren County during the years 1822 through 1825. She migrated to Lewis County, Missouri, with other members of the Gassaway family in 1833.

Martha was less than four years of age when her mother, Nancy, died. Her father married Susan Priest in 1827. From the census records, Martha had at least five brothers and nine sisters, and two half-brothers and three half-sisters. Mary Ann Gassway married Elijah Harper in Lewis County, Missouri, in 1836, and it was in their household that Martha was enumerated on the 1840 census. She was then seventeen years of age.

Sisters married brothers as Martha C. Gassaway married George Washington Harper, a younger brother of Elijah Harper. Their marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Eastham Ballinger 3 March 1842 and it was stated on the marriage bond "Martha being a minor her acting Guardian being present giving consent."[31] As Martha was then eighteen years of age, this was probably only formality, or perhaps it signified that her father, who was living in 31. Lewis Co. Marriages, Book 1, p. 31, Courthouse, Monticello, MO.

1843, had moved from Lewis County. His widow, Susan, was enumerated on the 1850 census in Benton County, Missouri, with five minor children.

Martha and her husband, George Washington Harper, lived on the Middle Fabius north of Lewistown, Missouri. The last traces of the grist mill and the general store have disappeared and only one broken stone remains in the family cemetery. The sunken road bed marks the ford used below the mill by travelers from Lewistown to Midway.

Martha and her husband, George Washington Harper, were enumerated on the 1850 census in Lewis County, and reported the names of three children: Henry H., William H., and Mary A. Harper. A granddaughter, Mary (Zimmerman) Brown, supplied the names of Martha's children and the dates of birth and death of each. Two children died in infancy.

R^{t} Hon^{ble}

The 12th Instant at a Plantation of Maj^{r} Welch's the Indians have killed a Negro and wounded with Tomahawks two English men, one mortally to all probability at y^{e} same plantation. We have brought off the wounded and buried the dead and are ranging and quartering our men some of them upon this frontier plantation, the people being in great distress, the Indians hollowing round their plantations, attempting their dwelling houses chiefly of Mr. Duvall and Richard Snoden. I have but 19 men of all the Co^{ll} Troops and can gitt no more. Men are sick, and of them half have no ammunition, nor know where to gitt it, there is such a parcell of Col. Burges foot Company in the like condition for Ammunition. The head of the River will be defeated if we leave them, and they have no other relief. We marched in the night to their relief else they concluded to be cutt off, and tis probable they might have sustained great Damage. Major Lane sent to our Relief about thirty fœote more but we have noe orders but to Range and Defend the Plantations, the which we shall doe to the best of our skill, and I suppose that if Baltemore County wants Assistance, that at this time it cannot be well supplyed from Anne Arrundell. We have stood to our Armes all night and need enough. Just now more news of three familyes robbd at Seavern. We desire your L^{spp} in the behalf of the poore Inhabitants to send Ammunition & full ord^{rs} men are afire to see their neighbours murdered and robbd thus, and ord^{r} for to doe nothing but to range, soe desireing your L^{spp} pardon for what is amiss in our writeing Wee subscribe ourselves yo^{r} Hon^{rs} humble Serv^{ts}

Dread Soveraign,

Your Majestie's most gracious letter to this Province of the ffirst of ffebry last came most acceptably to our hands the 30th of May last, The receipt whereof wee the Grand Committee (constituted by the Representatives of this Province in a Generall Convention for the Administration of publick Affaires till your Majties knowne pleasure or the next convention) have with all humility undertaken, By which wee perceive wee are qualified and empowered to continue and maintaine the peace and administration of the Lawes here, pursuant to which wee have done and proceeded according alsoe to your Majties most prudent directions of permitting the Lord Baltemore's Agents from thence forth to collect and receive his Lordshipp's part of the publick Revenues here humbly conceiving your Majties said instructions had noe retrospect to what had been by us already and before the receipt thereof done in that particular, whereby wee thought fitt to return and remitt to your Majesties' Receiver Generall the whole imposition excepting onely what is necessarily expended or reserved for your Majesties and the countrys immediate service, An account whereof wee have sent to your Majesties' said Receiver thereunto with all humility referr, Wee have also herewith sent coppy of the Act of Assembly by which the same became due to his Lordshipp and whereby it will appeare that the One moiety at least is for defraying the publick charges and provideing of publick and private Magazines in the respective Counties for their Defence and safeguard which not being complyed with lyes at his Lordshipp's door to answer and make good. All publick charges haveing generally (and more esspecially since the present Lord Baltemore's accession to the Proprietary-shipp of this Province, been defrayed and paid by an equall assessment upon the Inhabitants by which it will appear that his Lordshipp is considerably in arrears to us your Majesties subjects here, Upon which account (Your Majestie haveing been most graciously pleased to take on you the immediate paternall princely care of Us) Wee have been induced to remit the whole duties into the hands of your Majestie's Receiver Generall as aforesaid there to be lodged untill a full determination of what shall lye before your Majestie in dispute between his Lordshipp and Majestie's people here, not in the least doubting of full satisfaction from your most sacred Majestie in the measures of distributive justice; nor in the least presuming to determine the Proprietarie's Right untill your Majestie's pleasure therein. As to what may be offered to your Majesties from our adversaries in these parts, wee humbly appeale to our Innocency and your Majestie's gracious result upon respective pretended proofes that may appeare against us, humbly presuming to assure your Majesty that wee have enacted, nothing by any unjust restraint of persons or injury to property, Of all which we have made bold by means of Captain John Coode Commander in Chief of your Majestie's Forces here to render a more particular account in severall letters to your Majestie's Forces here to render a more particular account in severall letters to your Majestie's principall Secretaries of State.

As to Affaires relateing to your Majestie's service in the Northern parts of this Continent, haveing received certain information and account of great inroades and massacres committed by the Cannada French and their confederate Indians, and being requested by Mr Jacob Leisler your Majesty's Commander in Chiefe at New York to afford that Province some assistance for your Majestie's service, wee resolved and concluded to comply with the same to the best of our Abilitys. But since that one James Heath his Lordshipp's Agent sent hither upon the account of his Revenue (who endeavored to impose upon us by his Lordship's Order beyond and contrary to your Majesty's direction) hath used his utmost diligence & endeavors to raise disturbances and dissatisfactions amongst the people and by that means especially obviated what on our parts we thought convenient and necessary for the common safety, butt blessed be God the great & good success of your Majestie's subjects there have rendered our noncomplyance therein unprejudiciall. An account of the murder of Mr. John Payne your Majestie's Collector by severall messages from hence Wee hope is by this time before your Majestie. The murderers themselves immediately upon the same flying into Virginia became (as still they continue) out of our reach and power of securing for Justice; although we have not failed of our duty in our frequent and repeated applications to the Government of Virginia for the same purpose without any satisfactory returns more than that they waite your Majestie's pleasure therein, which wee all in like manner humbly solicit and desire to the great and generall satisfaction of all your Majestie's good subjects here.

In relation to all which and what else may be proper and necessary for us to offer to your Majesties most princely and prudent consideration, we humbly referr to the severall particular Papers and Letters thereunto relateing, and also to the conduct and mangement of our trusty Friends Captain John Coode, Commander in Chief of your Majestie's forces here, Mr. Kenelm Cheseldine speaker of the late convention of the Representative body of this Province and Major Robert King one of the said Representatives whome for their knowne loyalty and integrity wee humbly recommend to your Majesties gracious Reception, As our Agents and Deputies, humbly praying your Majesty to grant faith and credence to whatever shall by them be offered or laid before your Majestie on our behalfe, which with ourselves our lives and fortunes wee humbly prostrate at your Majestie's Royall Feete, waitinge your most gracious doome on –

Elizabeth Gibbes married Philip Peyton 13 September 1638 in Cirencester, England, the day after Philip filed a marriage allegation in Bisley.[1] They lived in Bisley parish in County Gloucester, England.

An Elizabeth Gibbes, daughter of Thomas Gibbes and his wife, Anne, was baptized in Cirencester 26 December 1625.[2] In all probability this Elizabeth Gibbes married Philip Peyton, even though she would have been approximately thirteen years of age.

The names of the children of Elizabeth Gibbes and Thomas Peyton were recorded in the baptismal records of Bisley parish with the exception of their son Philip.[3] In his will, dated 9 January 1669, Philip Peyton named each of his children except Thomas and devised to his wife "all of the goods which she brought with her."[4]

John Gilkerson reportedly had three places of birth. He reported on the census returns that he was born in New York, which was probably his port of entry if he immigrated. In his obituary, his widow stated that he was born in Virginia, which is probably most likely. The note found in the Bible of his youngest daughter, Edna (Gilkerson) Shank, which shows he was born at Parispen, White Gate Poat Street, Donegal, Ireland,[1] probably relates to his father.

He was living in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, in 1835 at the time his son, Hiram, was born. He probably married Margaret Jane Davis in Allegheny County.

John was a captain on the riverboat Natchez which plied the Mississippi between St. Louis and New Orleans. He was listed in the St. Louis city directories in 1845 and 1847 as a riverman, and in 1848 as a steward. He was designated as Capt. John Gilkerson in his obituary, and at the age of eighty-five he was credited with being the oldest riverman in Quincy, Illinois. Four of his children reported on census reports that they were born in Louisiana thus indicating that the family accompanied him on the trip to New Orleans in 1844, 1846, 1851, and 1853, the years in which Anna Eliza, John, Maria, and the twins, Nancy and Josephine, were born.

Margaret Jane Gilkerson purchased land from James Ewing 29 May 1854 in Lee County, Iowa.[2] John and his wife jointly sold this tract of land, which coincides with the description of the farm presently known as the Lee County Farm, 25 July 1855.[3] They evidently moved to Clark County, Missouri, at this time and made a final sale of their land in Iowa 2 April 1857 through their attorney in fact.[4]

John Gilkerson was enumerated on the 1860 and 1870 census reports as a resident of Clark County, Missouri. He and his wife dealt briskly in buying and selling land, and his property was valued at $15,000 on the census returns. Even so, he contracted a debt with his brother-in-law, Robert D. Davis, in 1861, and mortgaged all of his personal property described as his household furniture including a French piano, his machinery, livestock, and all hay in stacks.[5] One chest of drawers from this household of furniture is presently in the possession of the compilers.

John Gilkerson died intestate. A quit claim deed 14 April 1899 settled the estate of John Gilkerson, deceased.[6] The names of his fifteen children, and the date of birth of each, his own date of death and the date of death of his second wife were recorded in the family Bible of his youngest daughter, Edna (Gilkerson) Shank.

23 Mabel Bowen, b. 1887; d. 1887

Anna Eliza Gilkerson, the eldest of twelve children, was less than five feet in height. She had dark brown hair and brown eyes.

According to family tradition, she was crying as she washed the family laundry in a stream nearby her home in Clark County, Missouri, when a young Union soldier chanced to pass that way. He immediately fell in love with her, despite her tearful appearance, and ere long, she and Glenn Bowen were married in her home near Winchester by the Rev. Reuben Turner.[7]

She was a talented pianist and taught piano lessons for a number of years. She was also a fine seamstress.

She lived most of her adult life in Quincy, Illinois. A month before her death, she and her husband had returned from a visit with their daughter, Edna, in California.

The names of Anna's children, except Mabel, the date of birth of each, her date and place of marriage, and the date of her death were recorded in the application for pension by her husband, Glenn Bowen, 19 March 1915.[8] Notice of her death was printed in The Lewis County Journal.[9]

JOHN GILKERSON DIED IN 1896
Letter written by Emma A. Whiting, 24 March 1949

Grandfather died in November of 1896 and grandmother on July fourth a year or two following. They were buried in Quincy, Illinois and I always thought in a cemetery lot owned by your grandparents, Glenn and Anna Eliza Bowen.

Grandfather was eighty-six years when he died and that will be fifty three years ago in next November...

I am not sure but I think my mother said Grandfather was born in New York City. I do not know where grandmother was born, nor do I know when they were married or where...

If my mother was living she would be 111 years old in July and there were two children older than she...

LETTER WRITTEN BY ALICE (HUISKAMP) CURRIER, PORTLAND, OREGON, 23 FEBRUARY 1956

There is very little information I can give you regarding the Gilkerson family history. However, I have a few memories.

Mother [Hannah (Gilkerson) Huiskamp] told of the Civil War days when she was a small girl. The family lived on a farm near Winchester which was on the Mason-Dixon line. Grandfather [John Gilkerson] was a petty officer on a large steamboat running from St. Louis to New Orleans. He was a Southerner in his sympathies while grandmother [Margaret Jane Davis] was an out spoken Yankee. Consequently the family was a frequent victim of marauding soldiers from both sides. Their livestock was run off and crops destroyed and their lives often threatened. Finally the family was moved to St. Louis. I do not know how long they lived there. I am quite sure they were living on a farm not far from Keokuk when my mother and father were married.

My early and only recollections of the grandparents are seeing them in Quincy. He was in a wheel chair – paralyzed for eighteen years. I can remember having him point to a much prized picture on the wall – a picture of the famous race between the steamer the Robert E. Lee and the Natchez.

I do not know where he was born but I thought he was a Southerner.

Of Mother's sisters, Aunt Anna was the only one I ever really knew. Aunt Virginia's family lived in Winchester. Fanny, her daughter, died quite young, and after her husband's death, she lived in Quincy.

Sincerely yours,

Alice H. Currier

THE GLENN FAMILY

1 Jane Eliza Glenn, b. about 1808 in Maryland, probably Baltimore County; d. in 1858, St. Francisville, Clark County, Missouri. John Bowen, b. about 1805 in Maryland, probably Baltimore County; d. after 1866 in Iowa; m. Jane Eliza Glenn, 25 August 1829, Baltimore County, Maryland.

2 Catherine Bowen, aged 19 in 1850

4 Martha A. Bowen, aged 9 in 1850
5 Glenn Bowen, b. 22 Mar. 1846; d. 12 July 1935

Jane Eliza Glenn was mentioned briefly in two records. She was married to John Bowen in Baltimore County, Maryland, 25 August 1829,[1] and she was enumerated on the 1850 census report as a resident of Clark County, Missouri.

Reading between the lines, the newly married Bowens remained in Maryland for more than two years before they began their trip to the West. With their small daughter, Catherine, they proceeded as far as Pennsylvania by 1834, as the census report indicates that Eliza was born in Pennsylvania during that year. Sometime thereafter the family resumed their westward trek and arrived in Clark County, Missouri, by 1840. On 7 April 1840, her husband, John Bowen, acted as one of the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Francisville in Clark County, Missouri.[2] It is reasonable to assume that Jane was also a member of the same church. The two younger children of the Bowens were born in Clark County, Missouri. The family, including the parents John and Jane Bowen, and their children, Catherine, Eliza, Martha A., and Glenn Bowen, were enumerated on the 1850 census report as residents of Clark County.

Jane died before the census of 1860. She was described by her son as being a very gentle person. From other statements made by him, she died in 1858 when he was twelve years of age.

3 Thomas Greene

Sir Robert Greene, Knt., displayed the arms, Gules a crosslet ermine within a bordure gobonated argent and sable, which were the arms granted to his great grandfather, Sir Thomas Morton, alias Greene, Knt., by Henry VIII.[1]

Robert inherited the estate of Bobing from his father, which was the country seat in County Kent which had also been granted to Sir Thomas Morton by Henry VIII. Subsequent to the knighting of Sir Thomas, he was granted "Bobbinge" and numerous other grants from the monastic properties which were divided by Henry VIII[2] and which were bestowed upon his henchmen.

Sir Thomas adopted the achievement of the ancient family of Morton of Kent with the added bordure gobonated to indicate illegitimacy based on the premise that he was the illegimate son of Sir John Morton of Northwood, K.B., a prominent esquire, who recognized Thomas as his son.

Sir Robert Greene, Knt., of Bobing had at least two sons, Robert and Thomas, both of whom immigrated to the Province of Maryland. The younger, Thomas, immigrated in 1633,[3] and was destined to become the second Governor of Maryland. Sir Robert Greene's heir and namesake, Robert Greene, Esq., was granted land in Maryland in 1648,[4] but remained there a comparatively short time as he returned to England to claim his inheritance. Before returning to England, he assigned his land rights in Maryland to his brother, Thomas.[5]

Thomas Greene was one of the adventurers who emigrated from England to the Province of Maryland aboard the Ark in 1633.[6] On his death bed, Gov. Leonard Calvert requested 9 June 1647 that Thomas Greene be his successor in the governorship.[7] Accordingly Greene was appointed governor and served in that capacity until 26 April 1649. Due to the fact that he supported Charles II, Greene was deposed 26 April 1649 by Lord Baltimore's appointment of Capt. William Stone as governor of Maryland.

Greene received large land patents which proved to be cumbersome to him. In a letter to Cecilius, Lord Baltimore, dated 3 April 1638 Father Copley wrote: "Mr. Greene one of the Gentlemen that came in the Arke, reflecting that besydes the losse of his halfe share of trucks [harvest] he was now to pay tenne barrels of Corne for his 10,000 acres and that only he had three men to raise that and maintaine himself and his wyfe confidently told me that he must necessarily deserts the Colonye." Thomas probably permitted this burdensome manor to escheat to the Lord Proprietary. In 1639 he patented 55 acres of land in St. Mary's County,[8] which may have been the nucleus for his plantation known as Greene's Rest on which he resided. In 1650 Lord Baltimore assigned 500 acres of land on Kent Island and 1,000 acres of land on Poplar Island to Thomas Greene. He sold the island manor 8 February 1651 for 10,000 pounds of tobacco, and evidently died soon thereafter. He received a certificate for 500 acres of land called Plume Point in 1651 and the patent was issued to his widow later the same year.

His first wife, Mrs. Anne Cox, was also a passenger aboard the Ark.[9] Prior to their marriage she received a special grant of 500 acres of land from Lord Baltimore.[10] Thomas Greene married secondly Mrs. Winifred Seyborne. In his land rights applied for 15 September 1647, Greene included a claim for "100 acres more being the right of his wife Mrs. Winifred Seyborn for Transporting herself into the Province in 1638." [11]At the same time he proved rights for "100 more for Transporting 2 children in the year 1644 vizt Thomas and Leonard." As his sons were to receive their designated shares of his estate as they came of age, they were minors in 1650 at the time Thomas wrote his will. It is therefore to be concluded that his two eldest sons were by his first wife and that he had sent them to England for schooling.

Gov. Thomas Greene died testate. In his will, dated 18 November 1650, he assigned his entire estate to his friends Henry Adams and James Langworth as trustees, and Henry Adams appeared in court 20 January 1652 as trustee of the Greene estate. In his will Gov. Greene named Winifred as his wife, and Thomas, Leonard, Robert, and Francis as his sons. According to the provisions of his will, Winifred was to have one-fifth of his estate after expiration of ten years and she was to assign one-fourth of the clear estate to his son Thomas at that time. Successively, Leonard was to receive his share at the expiration of thirteen years; Robert was to receive his share at the expiration of fifteen years; and Francis was to receive his share at the expiration of seventeen years.[12]

Robert Greene of St. Mary's County, Maryland, was named in various wills in Maryland. He was named as a son of Gov. Thomas Greene in the latter's will dated 18 November 1650.[13] Gov. Greene's trustee, James Langworth of Charles County, willed personalty to Robert Greene whom he named as his kinsman in his will dated 18 August 1660.[14] Robert was named as a brother of Leonard Greene in the latter's will dated 10 January 1687.[15] He was also named as a brother of Francis Greene in the latter's will dated 16 September 1706.[16] A legacy was paid to Robert Greene as per the account of the estate of Maj. William Boarman dated 7 April 1711 presented in court by Boarman's widow, Mary (Jarboe) Sanders.[17]

Gov. Thomas Greene received a warrant for 2,500 acres of land but had died before the patent was issued. In 1665 the land was re-surveyed and granted to his three sons, Leonard, Robert, and Francis Greene, and was called Greene's Inheritence. This tract of land adjoined Robert's plantation called Rowling Road in Piscataway Hundred.

In 1676 Robert Greene received 1,500 pounds of tobacco for services rendered to the Province of Maryland, which may have been pay for participation in an Indian expedition.

Maj. William Boarman of Charles County made a deed of gift 16 July 1679 of 450 acres of Boarman's Manor to Mary, wife of Robert Greene, which they called Greene's Rest.

Robert Greene died intestate. In a deed of gift dated 9 November 1702 Robert Greene conveyed 100 acres of land lying on Port Tobacco Road adjoining John Thompson's plantation to Andrew Simpson in consideration of a marriage which was about to take place between his daughter, Elizabeth Greene, and the said Andrew. In another deed of gift dated 8 June 1703, Robert Greene conveyed a tract of land from his one-third part of Greene's Inheritence to his daughter, Mary, who was then the wife of John Thompson. Thomas Greene was named as the eldest son and heir of Robert Greene and his wife, Mary, in a conveyance of land to Francis Ignatius Boarman 25 June 1713.[18] Sarah, wife of Patrick McAtee, declared 30 August 1721 that she was formerly Sarah Greene and sister of Thomas Greene. Letters of administration were granted to Thomas Greene 14 October 1749 for the administration of the estate of Robert Greene and Anne (Greene) Clark was among those who signed the inventory of the estate of Robert Greene. The date of birth of William Greene was recorded as 28 December 1694 and William was cited as a son of Robert Greene in The Maryland Semmes and Kindred Families. James Greene and Thomas Federick of Prince George's County jointly purchased a tract of land called Strife in Prince George's County 1 May 1701. In 1709 Thomas Federick died testate and devised 100 acres of Strife to his godson James Greene; 100 acres of Strife to his godson, Thomas Greene; and 200 acres of Strife to Mary Greene. Federick also willed that at the time of her death, his widow, Mary Federick, was to divide his personal estate among Jane Greene, Jr., Thomas Greene, and Elizabeth Greene.[19]

James Greene, Sr., died testate. In his will, dated 14 February 1727 and proved 17 February 1734, he devised 300 acres of Strife to his son, James; 200 acres of Strife to his daughter, Mary Bowling, and reserved the residue of the land in the west end of Strife for his wife as long as she remained his widow; and the remainder of Strife to his son, William. The tract of land known as Air was equally divided between his son, Roger Greene, and his daughter, Elizabeth Thompson. Roger was also given a small tract of land called Cooper. In his will, James Greene named Charity as his wife, and he named as his sons, James, William, and Roger Greene, and as his daughters, Mary Bowling, Elizabeth Thompson, and Anne, Eleanor, Charity, Jane, Sarah, and Margaret Greene.[22]

James Greene inherited 300 acres of land called Strife from his father, James Greene, Sr., according to the terms of the latter's will probated 17 February 1734. James made Strife his home plantation in lower Prince George's County, Maryland.

James Greene died testate. His will, dated 15 November 1774, was proved 23 August 1776 in the Orphans' Court of Prince George's County. His widow, Eleanor, renunciated her responsibility as executrix of his estate in favor of his son Basil 29 May 1776. James was designated as a planter in his will and he made bequests of two tracts of land. To his son, Basil, he bequeathed the plantation called Strife that had come to him by inheritence. To his son James, he devised 100 acres of land in Mattawoman Swamp.[23] His son, John, was named in "Governor Thomas Greene and His Descendants."[24] The names and birth records of seven of the nine children of James and Elizabeth Greene were recorded in the register in St. John's Piscataway Parish now called King George.

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

The surname Hagan is associated principally with the province of Ulster in Northern Ireland. The family seat was located at Tullahogue in County Tyrone, where the head of the family held the hereditary right of inaugurating each O'Neill as king or overlord of Ulster. In the Gaelic language of Ireland the name is rendered O hAodhagain, descendant of Aodhagan (a diminutive form of Aodh or Hugh.) (Maryland Catholics On The Frontier, by Timothy J. O'Rourke, 1973, p. 547.)

Thomas Hagan was transported into the Province of Maryland under the headright system. He and George Keith proved their right to 100 acres of land 25 July 1670 for service performed in the Province for Capt. Luke Gardiner. A warrant was issued to the two of them effective 25 October 1671.[1]

Hagan settled in Charles County, Maryland, and was a neighbor of Maj. William Boarman who willed 65 acres of land to him.

Thomas Hagan and his wife, Mary, both died testate. In his will, dated 9 March 1714 and proved 21 February 1715 in Charles County, he appointed his wife, Mary, sole executrix of his will and bequeathed to her the home plantation of 300 acres called St. James and the 75 acres of land which he purchased from Maj. Boarman. Upon her death the bequest was entailed to his son William. The 650 acre plantation called Good Intent was divided by Hagan among his sons, James and Ignatius, and his daughter, Mary Baggott. The 250 acre tract of land called Clare, which he purchased from Lord Baltimore, was devised to his son, Thomas Hagan. He devised 150 acres of land lying in St. Mary's County to his sons, Thomas and Ignatius; and to his daughters, whom he named as Sarah Edelin, Charity Greene, Ann Smith, and Elizabeth Clarkson, each was bequeathed ten shillings.[2]

Katherine Hall was one of the three servants transported into the Province of Maryland in 1667 by Richard Banks, aboard the ship Thomas and Mary. He received a warrant for 150 acres of land 15 March 1668 for transporting Katherine Hall, Ellen Harvey, and Ralph Cooke, according to the "Conditions of Plantations."[1]

Katherine Hall was assigned as a servant to the household of Lt. Col. John Jarboe. It was judged in court 10 January 1668 that she should serve Col. Jarboe until she attained the age of twenty-two years.[2] It was therefore necessary for her to spend five or six years in the Jarboe home as a servant.

She completed her term of servitude and married about 1674. As the wife of Thomas Spalding, 27 July 1674 Katherine proved her right to 50 acres of land due to her for her time of service performed in the Province to Lt. Col. John Jarboe. A warrant for the 50 acres of land was issued to her husband, Thomas Spalding.[3]

Katherine was evidently dead prior to March 1710 as she did not sign the deed with her husband conveying 42 acres of land to their son William. Katherine and Thomas Spalding had at least five sons, namely: John, William, Thomas, Peter, and Edward.[4]

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

"...My most cherished relic – the cane. It is very old and worthless save only to our blood. No one alive now can estimate its age, and I suppose that no other Halliburton knows that I have it, for I have had it for half a century. All that I recall is that grandfather Thomas J. Halliburton gave it to me when I was only a little boy, telling me that the original Thomas James Halliburton, Domine of a church in England or Scotland, cut it at a place then called 'Burton on Trent' many, many years ago and that it has been handed down from generation to generation, each time going to a grandson named Thomas Halliburton." (Letter written by Thomas J. Hallyburton, 11 December 1929, Atlanta, Georgia.)

Thomas J. Hallyburton was descended from David Halliburton who came to America in 1746 as follows: Thomas J.,[6] John C.,[5] Thomas J.,[4] Robert,[3] Thomas,[2] David.[1]

1 David Halliburton, Sr., b. about 1727 in Scotland; d. in 1767 between 3 January and August, Orange County, North Carolina. Amey Humphreys, b. about 1735; d. about 1790, probably in Caswell County, North Carolina; m. David Halliburton, about 1752 in Virginia.

2 David Halliburton, Jr., b. 11 Oct. 1753; d. 13 Jan. 1843
3 John Halliburton, d. Sept. 1843
4 Charles Halliburton, d. 1797
5 William Halliburton, b. 1760; d. 25 June 1847
6 Thomas Halliburton, b. 1763; d. June 1843
7 Margaret Halliburton, b. 1767

David Halliburton emigrated from Scotland to America in 1746 and disembarked at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Extant records show that David Halliburton was a resident of Virginia before he established a plantation in North Carolina. He witnessed a deed 25 November 1752 in Lunenburg, now Mecklenburg County, Virginia,[1] and witnessed a deed as late as 5 April 1757 in the same County. His son, David Halliburton, Jr., acknowledged the transfer of a tract of 368 acres of land 4 January 1792 which Richard Ragsdale had "bought of my Father" for £125 on Little Blue Stone Creek in Mecklenburg County, Virginia.[2]

David Halliburton moved his family to Orange County, North Carolina, during the early 1760's. He settled near Crooked Fork of Aaron Creek and acquired a plantation of 867 acres of land which he devised to his sons in his will.

David Halliburton, Sr., died testate. His will, dated 3 January 1767, was proved in the Orange County Inferior Court in August 1767. In his will he named his sons David, John, Charles, William, and Thomas and devised property to each. He made alternate plans for his unborn child, bequeathing 100 acres of land if the child should be a boy, and personalty in the event of the birth of a girl. He named his wife executrix and George Moore as executor.[3]

David Halliburton, Jr., known as David the Hunter, was a landowner in North Carolina prior to his adventure into the wilderness of Tennessee. He inherited one-half of his father's 477 acre tract of land lying on Crooked Fork of Aaron Creek in Orange County, North Carolina.[4] Land records show that he also owned land in Orange County on the West Branch of Elibus Creek,[5] and a tract of 600 acres of land on Blue Wing Creek in Caswell County.[6] He moved to Wake County, North Carolina, following the Revolutionary War, and completed the legal transaction 4 January 1792 involving the sale of the land previously owned by his father in Mecklenburg County, Virginia.[7] David was a resident of Wake

County, North Carolina, as late as 5 February 1806.[8] He received a grant of 254 acres of land on Big Richland Creek in Humphreys County, Tennessee, 24 May 1808.[9]

In Humphreys County, Tennessee, David served as justice of peace and was subsequently high sheriff of the county in 1811.[10]

He referred to himself as Jr. when relating to his father in 1792,[11] and as Sr. when relating himself to his son David in 1801.[12] Sometimes his name was recorded in records as Halli Burton or H. Burton.

During the Revolutionary War, David Halliburton served under Gen. Greene in the South Carolina campaigns. David was listed on a North Carolina payroll 22 August 1792.[13]

Martin Halliburton, of Dickson County, Tennessee, wrote to his son, Simeon, of Randolph County, Missouri, 22 July 1839: "I got home last night, left your Uncle Thomas Halliburton's yesterday morning. Heard from all our relations on that side of the river. They were generally well, your grandfather with the rest." Martin wrote 11 October 1840: "I recently heard from the relations in the Western District. Your old Grandfather was alive, hobbling upon his staff. This day, if alive, he enters his 88th year." Martin addressed a letter to Simeon 9 May 1843: "There has been much sickness during the winter and spring, a good many deaths...your Grandfather, I hear for one, I am told since Christmas."

David Halliburton died intestate 13 January 1843, aged eighty-nine. The names of his children were listed in a family Bible which was in the possession of his grandson, Col. William Henry Halliburton of De Witt, Arkansas. Martin Halliburton wrote in his family Bible that he was a son of David and Lucy Halliburton. In his letters written during the 1830's and 1840's, Martin Halliburton named John, William, Samuel, Ambrose, and Thomas as his brothers, and Amy Wilson and Gilly Dolahite as his sisters.

Martin Halliburton was well educated and was concerned about education on the frontier. He taught school in Orange County, North Carolina, in 1801, and in Person County the following year.[14] Nearly forty years later at the age of sixty-three, he was teaching in Dickson County, Tennessee.

He settled in Wake County, North Carolina, subsequent to his marriage in Person County. In 1804 Martin moved his wife and child to Tennessee and settled on Leatherwood Fork of Yellow Creek near his relatives in Dickson County. He established a large plantation and remained in Dickson County until 1852, at which time he moved to Randolph County, Missouri, after appointing his son, Reuben Pickett Halliburton, his attorney-in-fact.[15]

His letters, written to his sons from 1839 through 1849, contain interesting items and signs of the times. He wrote of the marriages, births, and deaths of members of the family and their state of health; the weather and crops; politics and religion; the price of farm products and food prices; his affection for members of his family; and his concern for their education and prosperity.

During the War of 1812, Martin served as a sergeant in the company of Capt. Joseph Williams in Dyer's First Tennessee Regiment. He enlisted 28 September 1814 in Dickson County, Tennessee, and was discharged 27 April 1815. He participated in the siege of Pensacola, Florida, and the Battle of New Orleans under the command of Gen. Andrew Jackson.

Martin was a participating citizen. In Dickson County, Tennessee, he served as a juror and as a member of the grand jury. He surveyed land, was a staunch member of the Democratic party, and was a member of the Missionary Baptist Church.

He died testate. He prefaced his will with the statement, "I Martin Halliburton, was born in Wake County, North Carolina, 28 July 1776." In the administration of the estate, Martin Turner Halliburton, one of the executors, listed 27 February 1860 the names and respective residences of the eleven living children of Martin Halliburton, deceased.[16] In his family Bible, Martin recorded his date of birth, the names of his parents, the date of birth of his wife Frances and the names of her parents, his date of marriage, the name and date of birth of each of his eighteen children, and the dates of death of the seven children who preceded him in death. He entrusted the Bible to his wife in his will.[17]

Reuben Pickett Halliburton was born in 1803 in Orange County, North Carolina.[18] In 1804, his father, Martin Halliburton, moved the family to Dickson County, Tennessee, and Reuben P. was a resident of Dickson County for nearly fifty years. He established his plantation on Leatherwood Fork of Yellow Creek, adjacent to the plantation owned by his father.[19]

Extant records furnish a glimpse into his life. Reuben P. was elected justice of peace in Dickson County for a number of years, and he performed numerous marriage ceremonies while holding that office. He also kept records of various business transactions in leather bound account books. He distilled and sold a bit of whiskey while in Tennessee, some of which he sold to his relatives.

He was appointed an attorney-in-fact by his father 12 October 1852 in order that he might conclude his father's business after the latter moved to Missouri. In January 1854 he assumed the responsibilities of collecting taxes in the 9th District in Dickson County, Tennessee.

He was enumerated on the 1830 and 1850 census reports as a resident of Dickson County, Tennessee, and as a resident of Sullivan County, Missouri, on the 1860 and 1880 census reports.

Reuben P. Halliburton owned a fine prairie farm in Sullivan County. He went alone to Missouri and made his first entry of land in Sullivan County 6 November 1854. Within six months his entries totaled 480 acres of land.[20] By 1876 he had acquired 765 acres of land, 345 acres of which remained in his estate at the time of his death. Reuben P. began his improvements in 1855 and built a log cabin and dug a well before he returned to Tennessee.

In the fall of 1855, he walked to Tennessee and then made preparation for the move to Missouri. He moved his family, furniture, feed, and farm implements in ox-drawn wagons, and the cattle were driven by his boys, James and John, and a slave boy, Bent.

Reuben P. was well educated, fond of poetry, and a student of the Bible. Shortly after he settled in Sullivan County, he donated the land for a building site and the logs for a schoolhouse.

He was a member of the Masonic Lodge at Pollock, Missouri, one of the early frontier lodges in Sullivan County.[21]

Reuben Pickett Halliburton died intestate. His son, James Washington Halliburton, was appointed as administrator of the estate 15 August 1882. An appraisement of the estate, filed in the probate court of Sullivan County, Missouri, bears testimony to Reuben's competency and thrift. The wife and the living children of Reuben Pickett Halliburton, deceased, were named by the administrator and the place of residence of each was given.[22] In his family Bible he recorded his date of birth, the names of his parents, his date of marriage, the name of his wife and her date of birth, the names of her parents, and the names of his ten children and the date of birth of each.

Thomas White Halliburton was born, reared, and married in Tennessee. He served as a witness to a deed 8 December 1846 in Dickson County, Tennessee, when his father, Reuben Pickett Halliburton conveyed a tract of land on Leatherwood Fork of Yellow Creek.[23]

He was enumerated on the census reports as a resident of Dickson County, Tennessee, in 1850, and as a resident of Randolph County, Missouri, in 1860, 1870, and 1880. According to a letter written by his grandfather, Martin Halliburton, Thomas and his wife, Martha, were living in the household of his uncle, Thomas McMurry, in Dickson County in 1847.[24] Thomas moved to Randolph County, Missouri, in 1854 and settled on a 220 acre farm in Salt River Township.

24. Letter written by Martin Halliburton, 7 July 1847, Dickson Co., TN.

Thomas White Halliburton corresponded with his relatives in Sullivan County, Missouri. In a letter dated 13 January 1873, Thomas acknowledged receipt of a letter from his father and brother dated 15 December 1872. Thomas wrote that his uncle, Simeon Halliburton, had just returned from a trip to Tennessee and had brought word that their relatives were well. He also wrote that his son, John Alexander Halliburton, then twenty-one years of age, was teaching school and doing fine.

Thomas and his wife, Martha, were members of the Union Baptist Church near Cairo, Missouri.

He wore a chin beard, was slight of build, and was said to have resembled his father, although he was smaller.

In addition to their own ten children, Thomas and Martha reared three of their granddaughters, Lillie, Maud, and Myrtle Halliburton, daughters of their deceased son, John Alexander Halliburton.

Thomas White Halliburton died testate. In his will, dated 24 May 1894 and probated 11 August 1894, he devised his estate to his wife during her lifetime.[25] As his wife, Martha, lived until 20 February 1908, the estate was not settled until 2 March 1908. On that date, George Dillard Halliburton, appointed executor by his father, was granted letters of administration by the probate court in Moberly, Missouri. In the settlement papers the administrator stated the date of death of his mother, Martha E. Halliburton, deceased, the name and the place of residence of each of her nine living children, and the names of four of her granddaughters, the daughters of John Alexander Halliburton, deceased.[26] The names of five of the children of Thomas White Halliburton and the names of the children of his two deceased sons, John Alexander Halliburton and William Evan Halliburton, were given in the settlement of the estate of Edward Rogers Halliburton,[27] and the date of birth of each of his children was recorded in his biographical sketch published in 1884.[28]

John Alexander Halliburton was a schoolmaster in Missouri. He attended McGee College at College Mound, Missouri, and subsequently taught school near Cairo in Randolph County. He was teaching in 1873 and was getting along fine.[29] One of his students, many years later, often commented to one of the compilers that John was a fine teacher. All of his friends in the community called him Jack Halliburton.

In 1887, John was suffering from poor health, and he moved his wife and four daughters to Arkansas seeking relief in a more mild climate. The month long journey was made in a covered wagon. After a year in which he saw no improvement in his health, he returned with his family to Randolph County, Missouri, and died within a short time.

The four living daughters of John Alexander Halliburton, deceased, were named by Callie Halliburton in the settlement of the estate of Edward Rogers Halliburton 20 June 1930 in Randolph County, Missouri.[30]

Myrtle Halliburton was born in Randolph County, Missouri, and her birth was recorded in the record of births for Randolph County for the year 1884. She was named as a daughter of John Alexander Halliburton and his wife Kittie.[31]

Her marriage ceremony was performed by Elder James A. Berry in Moberly, Missouri, 25 January 1905.[32] Myrtle and her husband, William Nathaniel Rutherford, were farm residents in Cairo and Salt River Townships of Randolph County.

Myrtle was well known for her wit and sense of humor. She was challenging competition in the neighborhood spelling bees of her younger days. She enjoyed recreational reading all of her life. She and her husband were active members of the Liberty Christian Church near Cairo, Missouri.

Myrtle Halliburton's date of birth, her date of marriage, the name of her husband and his date of birth and date of death, the names of her three children who lived and the date of birth of each, and the name and date of birth of her first grandchild were recorded in the family Bible. Her eldest son, born prematurely, died a few hours after birth 15 September 1905.

LETTER WRITTEN BY WESTLEY HALLIBURTON, SULLIVAN COUNTY, MISSOURI, TO DR. WILLIAM DILLARD HALLIBURTON, RANDOLPH COUNTY, MISSOURI, 11 MARCH 1889

Some time in the 18th Century, our great grandfather (whose name I forget) then a lad came to America. There were two brothers lads came together. It is said their father had a second wife, with whom these boys did not agree very well. Their father a citizen and native of Scotland, had his two sons at College in Edinburgh about the time a large Emigration was going from the Mother country to the Colonies in America. These two boys caught the fever of go, and shipped on an Emigrant ship as Indentured Emigrants (do not know a better word)...After reaching years of maturity, each was married. The younger brother died leaving one child, a daughter. Our great grandfather died leaving five or six sons. Our grandfather David Halliburton, the oldest among them, married and in middle age, emigrated to Tennessee (Humphreys County) where he died. He had seven sons and six daughters who all lived to be married. In 1823 my father Ambrose Halliburton came to Missouri and your father and grandpa somewhere in the forties [1850's].

LETTER WRITTEN BY NELLIE (NICHOLS) CONNER, DALLAS, TEXAS, TO NELL (WILSON) REEVES, MADISON, CONNECTICUT, 11 AUGUST 1941

David Halliburton, 1st, born in, or near, Edinburgh, Scotland, together with his two brothers – William and Thomas – came to America when mere boys. They were of those families of England and Scotland who were given choice of exile, or the gallows, for their support of Charles (II) Stuart...

David II's wife – Lucy (Reynolds) Halliburton had died in Tennessee and he, though old, went to DeSoto County, Mississippi where he died in 1843. I have the original letters written by my great-great-grandfather – Martin Halliburton – to his brother Ambrose in Missouri, telling him of their father's death on 13 January 1843...

GENEALOGICAL HISTORY OF OUR ANCESTORS

LETTER WRITTEN BY MARGARET WINIFRED HALIBURTON TO L. H. HARRIS

Connelly Springs, N. C.
Aug. 23, 1909

L. H. Harris, Esq., Salisbury, N. C.
My dear Mr. Harris

Most of the information I can give you came from my father's mother, Margaret Hadley Meroney Halliburton. She was nearly ninety years old before I ever attempted to write down any of the interesting facts she was so delighted to give. Oh, the regrets I have suffered since for losing the many opportunities I had to gain these valuable facts! She died at the age of 94. She was the daughter of a noted Presbyterian minister by the name of W. B. Merony, who is buried at Meroney's Chapel in Caswell County, N. C. Her father died when she was very young. She was reared, partly, in the family of Thomas Halliburton (known in Person Co., as "Squire Burton"). She married "Squire Burton's" youngest son, John Camp (abbreviation for Campbell, I am sure) Halliburton. She died in Guilford Co. in 1898 at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Robert Dick.

To the information she gave me I have added extracts from other old letters and Scott's biographical sketches, etc., but I have been a very busy woman, teaching since I graduated at 17 years of age, and carrying the heavy burdens that usually fall to the "spinister aunt" of a family when that aunt has an undying love for and pride in her family. Had I had leisure I should have sought the help of such relatives as I believe you to be, and by this time a clear and connected Halliburton genealogy and family tree would have been made. I will write you as much as I have strength for. I should like very much to know you.

Your cousin (I am sure)
Margaret Winifred Haliburton

One David Halliburton came from Scotland to America about the year 1746. A younger brother (my grandmother Margaret Meroney Halliburton thinks his name was Thomas) came with him (David) to America. This younger brother married, but died without children.

The Halliburtons were banished from Scotland for taking the part of "Charles the Pretender" as the English called him. At one time I thought that our ancestor David and his brother were the only Halliburtons to come to America. I am now convinced that there were others of the same name and of the same old Scottish clan, who came to America at different times and settled in different parts of the country.

I shall speak of David who came from Scotland as "David the First" to distinguish him from the other Davids referred to.

"David the First," who came from Scotland and lived in the eastern part of this state, married a Miss Humphreys, or Humphries, or Humphrey. I can't remember just how Grandma spelled it. They had five sons and one daughter. My grandmother, Margaret Meroney Halliburton, knew them all. They were: David II, John, Thomas, Charles, William and Margaret.

The descendants of David II, or, as he was called, "David the Hunter," were seven sons and six daughters, all of whom lived to grow up, marry, and have children. The sons of David II were: John, Martin, David (III), Ambrose, Samuel, and Thomas.

John, the eldest son of David II, moved from Wake Co., N. C. to Davidson Co., Tenn. in the fall of 1796. David II, or "David the Hunter," and the rest of his family left Wake Co., N. C. and followed his eldest son, John, to Davidson Co., Tenn.

Some of the family died in what is called Middle Tennessee. Others went to different states. Two went to Missouri, two to Arkansas, and one (the youngest daughter), who married a Dalahite, went to Texas before it was received into the Union.

"The Halliburtons in Missouri are the descendants of Ambrose and Martin Halliburton," says old Col. John H. Halliburton of Tenn. in a letter to my uncle Dr. Thomas Camp Halliburton (my father's brother).

Col. John H. Halliburton says in a letter to Dr. Thomas C. Halliburton (my uncle) that Judge Wesley Halliburton of St. Louis, Mo. is the son of Ambrose Halliburton...

David II, or David the Hunter's eldest son was John. John had a son named Charles Augustus. This was his oldest son, and the brother of Col. John H. Halliburton of Tenn., who wrote to my uncle Dr. T. C. Halliburton.

David I, who came from Scotland, had as his second son John. Grandmother says this John Halliburton married a Miss Tinsley. He lived and died in Person Co., N. C. He had several sons and two daughters...

David I had as his third son Thomas Halliburton, who lived in Person Co., N. C., and died on Bluing Creek, Person Co., N. C., within a mile of his brother John, second son of David I...

"Squire Burton" married a Miss Humphreys (or Humphries)...

"Squire Burton" had five sons and two daughters...

"Polly White" (Squire Burton's daughter, my grandfather's sister and your great grandmother's sister) must be the daughter who married a Farthing, and who was so madly loved by her cousin, Martin Halliburton. (Oh, if I had only made written notes of the quaint old romances that dear old grandmother used to tell me over her knitting!)...

I have corresponded with the Halliburtons in Arkansas as well as with those of Tenn., Missouri, Ga., and Miss., and have always been able to trace them back in an unbroken line to David I of Scotland...

EXCERPTS FROM LETTER WRITTEN BY ANDREW JACKSON HALLIBURTON, HAYWOOD COUNTY, TENNESSEE, TO WESTLEY HALLIBURTON, SULLIVAN COUNTY, MISSOURI

Perhaps you have heard that grandfather D. H. sold his land during the revolutionary war and received pay in "Continental" money as it was called. It went down to almost nothing. He paid $600 for a sow and pigs.

Cousin R. L. Halliburtons wife is his cousin and the granddaughter of Reubin Picket, the man that baptized Uncle Martin when he was a boy and the man that Reubin P. Halliburton was named after.

...have seen your old home place once since Dec. 1832...Wish I could see you and talk about these things. Could tell much more than I can write. I have seen none of Uncle Martin's family since Feb. 1839.

Mr. W. [Westley] Halliburton: Dear Cousin,

Perhaps you have heard that grandfather D. H. [David Halliburton] sold his land during the Revolutionary War...I put the matter in this way, your grandfather, being broken up by the war, moved down to Wake Co. [N. I, Martin Halliburton was born in Wake County N. C., July 28th, 1776 being thus far advanced, my physical powers have much failed, and I am full of internal complaints, but of sound mind, and equally as desirous to do equal justice as I was in the prime of life, knowing I must ere long go the way of all flesh, do avail myself of the offered opportunity of making this, my last will and testament: whereas my children are grown and married, before and since married, I have proportioned to them such equal portions of my property as conveniently I could spare, yet having property which I design after the death of myself and my wife, to be equally divided among all my children excepting that which I herein bequeath to my wife.

Item 1st., My will and desire is, that my executors herein named pay and justly, all legal debts and claims against me, or my estate.

Item 2nd., I will and bequeath to my wife my negro man Peter, the saddle called hers, my big bible, and testament, and she dispose of the same at her decease at her discretion.

Item 3rd., My will and desire is that my wife have during her natural Life, all the residue of my property, here, or elsewhere, either real or personal perishable, except horses. I think it best to sell all but two; my wife having privilege to select them, and at and after the decease of my wife all the property be sold on a twelve months credit and the net proceeds thereof equally divided among all my children; Witness Martin Halliburton, I herein and hereby ordain and appoint my sons, William and Simeon, Martin T. and David my sole executors to this my last will and testament and that no Court shall require security of them.

LETTER WRITTEN BY MARTIN HALLIBURTON, DICKSON COUNTY, TENNESSEE, TO AMBROSE HALLIBURTON, RANDOLPH COUNTY, MISSOURI

Dickson County
July 9th 1848

Brother Ambrose

I Received a few lines from you, enclosed in a letter Simeon sent, was glad to hear from you and much pleased with the subject of communication Viz The Religion of Jesus, and that you had not like the rest of my Brethern forgotten or neglected me, I can say I am of the faith which I imbraced 46 or 47 years ago, there hath no changes taken place in me, tho, I feel to lament my lukewarmness times as respects Religion among the Predestinarian Baptist are dull, little or no ingethering. Yet the preachers sounds the Gospel Trumpet as strong, and as loud as usual and the layaty contends as strong for the faith once delivered to the saints as I ever knew them; as to the health of myself and family we are all about, though some of us are complaining myself and wife often are so far advanced in years we ought not to expect any thing but debilitation In fact I can scarcely write, almost every letter I fear it will be the last — I have recently read a letter from Martin Halliburton Directed R. P. Halliburton; he gave a tolerable detail of our Relatives; Bro. Saml. is dead, some two or three years. Sister Amy lives in Haywood County; Thos. I think in Arkansas. Jas. Dolihite and sister Gilly in Texas; Mordica in Arkansas, Bro. William's son Benjamin Franklin is dead. Old Kizzy is dead Mordica, David, and Samuel are all Missionary preachers. Martin writes his Father, himself with all his Brothers, sisters, Brothers in law and Sisters in law are Missionaries, and that he is in favor of a protecting tariff, United States Bank and home protection, instead of a Subtresary I thought not of mentioning Politics, but, as I have Related my Nephews, I say how averse Relatives opinions and principles can differ though alike interested for I am quite the reverse, and hope that at least a majority of the Missourians will support Cass and Butler in the present depending Canvass. There is strong probability I never shall vote again. I have been 51 years eligible to the Ballet-box. Give my love to sister Polly, and your children. Tell Westly I think he ought to write me. My children and their families are about. I have so many grand children I cannot say without counting by tribes, I have five Great grand children. I shall hasten to close remaining affectionate

2 Jacob Harper, b. 6 Oct. 1726; d. 1803

Nicholas Harper immigrated to America in 1741. At that time he was thirty-six years of age and he brought with him his wife and at least one son, Jacob. Other Harpers who immigrated and settled on the South Branch of the Potomac about this period of time were Adam, Hans, Matthew, and Michael Harper. The records of Augusta County, Virginia, show that Hans was a son of Michael,[1] but the relationship of the others is not clear. Nicholas may have been a brother of Adam, Matthew, and Michael, and he was probably an uncle of Lt. Nicholas Harper who married Elizabeth Penninger.

Nicholas is credited with the service of a patriot during the Revolutionary War. He was appointed road overseer from Peter Flesher's land to Conrad Woolry's mill 18 August 1779.[2] Several of his descendants are members of NSDAR on this record.[3]

He entered 36 acres of land on the South Branch of the Potomac River 31 March 1772,[4] and a tract of 200 acres of land lying at the mouth of East Dry Run was conveyed to him in 1774 by Adam Harper.[5]

Nicholas Harper died intestate in Woodford County, Kentucky. Although he and his wife were both in their eighties, they accompanied their son Jacob and his family to the bluegrass region of Kentucky, and he was enumerated on the 1790 and 1800 census reports of Woodford County.

Jacob Harper, youthful emigrant from Amsterdam, was one of the settlers on the south side of the Potomac River in Augusta County, Virginia, now Pendleton County, West Virginia. He entered a tract of land in this area 21 November 1765.[6] In 1797 he purchased 1,500 acres of land in Woodford County, Kentucky, from the heirs of Gen. Mercer. This splendid tract of land cornered on the north with the present town of Midway. He built a large two-story house which faces the Harper cemetery in which Jacob and his wife Mary, and his parents were buried.

This entire Harper family, including Jacob's elderly parents migrated to Kentucky and were enumerated in Woodford County on the 1790 and 1800 census reports.

Jacob Harper died intestate in 1803. In a series of indentures in 1800 he conveyed tracts of land to his sons Nicholas, Adam, John, William, and Henry and to his daughters Mary and Elizabeth. All of his children were named in a family genealogy,[7] and in a county history.[8]

Henry Harper purchased 115½ acres of land on the waters of the south fork of Elkhorn in Woodford County, Kentucky, from his parents, Jacob and Mary Harper, 17 June 1800.[9] Henry conveyed this tract of land to Adam Harper in July 1826,[10] and subsequently moved his family to Marion County, Missouri. He entered a tract of land in Marion County, and began the construction of a mill. He died before the dam was completed and his son, Elijah, purchased the mill site of 1½ acres of land from the other heirs, stating that the unfinished dam would be swept away by the rains if it were not immediately completed.

Henry Harper died intestate. The settlement of his estate is on file in the probate court office in Marion County. His wife, Mary, administratrix, and his son, Elijah, administrator, named the children of Henry Harper, deceased, as Elijah, Juliann the wife of Robert Gardiner, Alexander, Ratio N., George Washington, Henry H., Margaret, John, Martha, and Claiborne, all of Marion County except Juliann who resided in Woodford County, Kentucky.[11]

George Washington Harper purchased 10 acres out of the NE¼ SW¼ of Section 32, Township 62, Range 8 in Lewis County, Missouri, 9 October 1866 from James Harper.[12] This narrow strip of land spanned the Middle Fabius about two and one-half miles north of Lewistown and was the location of the Harper Mill. George built a dam across the Fabius and operated a grist mill.

George was listed as a miller on the 1850 census report for Lewis County, and was enumerated on successive census reports as a resident of Lewis County through 1880.

He volunteered 4 October 1837 at Palmyra, Missouri, for military service during the Florida War.[13] He served as a private in Capt. Curd's Company L of Cole Gentry's Regiment of Missouri Volunteers and was discharged 9 April 1838.[14]

George Washington Harper died intestate. The names of his children and their dates of birth and death were supplied by one of his granddaughters.

HARPER HISTORY
History of Cherokee County and Representative Citizens, p. 456

Henry H. Harper was born in Marion County, Missouri, June 9, 1843...

The Harpers, who are of English descent, came to America in colonial times. The grandfather of Mr. Harper was a slaveholder, and at one time sold ten slaves in order to pay a security debt. He [Henry Harper] died one year after going to Missouri, leaving a widow and fourteen [ten] children, and many slaves. The grandmother [Mary] died in Quincy, Illinois [Lewistown, Missouri], during the Civil War, at the age of eighty-six. She was born in North Carolina, was of German descent, and became one of Kentucky's pioneers. Among her varied experiences was that of flying to forts for refuge when the Indians made their raids. At one time, in company with a sister, she was captured by the Indians.

George Washington Harper, the father of Henry H., was a native of Bourbon [Woodford] County, Kentucky...He died at the age of sixty-seven years. He was a veteran of the "Florida War," where one of the greatest battles against the Indians was fought, and many brave officers were killed. Missouri found him among her settlers [in 1829]. The mother of Henry H. Harper, Martha Gassaway, was born in Kentucky, between Lexington and Frankfort, and was the youngest of a large family of children. She died in Lewis County, Missouri, at the age of fifty-five years. She had seven children, four of whom lived to maturity, namely: Henry H., William, of East St. Louis, Illinois; Mrs. Mary A. Zimmerman, of Lewis County, Missouri; and George W., who died in Hot Springs, Arkansas.

OBITUARY OF MRS. MARY A. (HARPER) ZIMMERMAN
Lewis County Journal, 16 April 1936, Canton, Missouri

Mary A. Harper, daughter of George W. and Martha Harper, was born near Lewistown on October 26, 1848 and died in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Albert Brown, near Edina, April 1, 1936.

On December 24, 1876, she was united in marriage to James H. Zimmerman in the old Union church in Lewistown. To this union were born five children, three of whom survive, namely, Clyde of Lewistown, Mrs. W. C. Nicely of Hannibal, and Mrs. Albert Brown of Edina. Her husband preceded her in death as did her eldest son, B. C., in 1926, and another child in infancy. She also leaves seven grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

In early life she united with the Christian church but later joined the Methodist church, with her family, in which she remained a faithful member until death.

Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. A. W. Kirby, in the M. E. Church Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. Burial was at Lewistown Cemetery.

October 25 1601 Thomas Hatton son of Mathew
August 28 1605 Richard Hatton son of Mathew
(Memorials of St. Margaret's Church Westminister, 1914, pp. 66, 71)

These sons of Mathew Hatton are probably the Richard Hatton who died about 1649 in London, England, and his brother, Thomas Hatton, secretary of the Province of Maryland, who died in the Battle of the Severn in 1655.

THE HATTON FAMILY

1 Richard Hatton, probably a son of Mathew Hatton, b. in England, probably in 1605 in Parish of St. Margaret's Westminister, London; d. about 1649, London, England.
Margaret, b. about 1610 in England; m. Richard Hatton.

2 William Hatton, d. 1713
3 Richard Hatton, d. Feb. 1675
4 Barbara Hatton
5 Elizabeth Hatton
6 Mary Hatton
7 Eleanor Hatton, b. 1642; d. 1725

Richard Hatton died in London, England, about 1649, for in that year Margaret, his widow, their six children, and a servant were transported from London, England, to Maryland by Thomas Hatton, the secretary of the Province of Maryland. In his request for land 1 March 1649, Thomas Hatton claimed 800 acres of land for their transportation, and named Margaret as a widow and as his sister-in-law.[1]

Richard Hatton was named as the brother of Mr. Thomas Hatton in a conveyance dated 15 August 1655 in which Thomas Hatton named Margaret as the wife of Lt. Richard Banks and the widow and relict of Mr. Richard Hatton deceased. At this time he conveyed the 800 acre tract of land which he received in 1649 for the transportation of Margaret, her servant, and her family of children, to William and Richard Hatton "in Consideration of the Naturall Love and affections which I bear to the said William and Richard Hatton my Nephews, Sons of the said Margaret...Do hereby Convey make over and unto them the said William and Richard Hatton all my Right and Title to the Land before Mentioned, Viz[t]· five hundred acres thereof to the said William Hatton...and three hundred acres to the use of the said Richard Hatton..."[2]

The children of Richard Hatton were named by Thomas Hatton in the land records dated 1 March 1649 and 15 August 1655 as William, Richard, Barbara, Elizabeth, Mary, and Elinor.

Elizabeth Hatton was transported from England into the Province of Maryland in 1649 by her uncle, Mr. Thomas Hatton, the secretary of the province. She was named as the daughter of Margaret, widow of Richard Hatton, in a conveyance of land dated 15 August 1655.[3]

Elizabeth married soon after her arrival in the province. She and her husband, Capt. Luke Gardiner, settled in St. Mary's County, Maryland. She was not an estranged wife living apart from her husband, but was living with him as is clearly shown in his will.

Capt. Luke Gardiner wrote his will 4 December 1673 and made bequests to his wife, Elizabeth, and their four sons whom he named as Richard, John, Luke, and Thomas. On 6 July the following summer, Elizabeth and a lawyer, Robert Carvile, advised Luke to make certain changes in his will. He died within the following month. He devised the home plantation lying on Canoe Neck to Elizabeth, and named their four sons in his will.[4] His daughter, Elizabeth, married Zacharay Wade and lived on Piscataway Creek next to his brother-in-law, Thomas Gardiner.

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

The Haydens of England were traced in Genealogical and Personal Memoirs, vol. 1, 1910, pp. 441-442, by William Richard Cutter. Robert Hayden, in the fifteenth generation, married Joan Paulet, and among their children was Gideon Hayden.

Gideon Hayden, Sr., son of Robert Hayden, was born about 1586 in County Devon, England. He married 18 June 1603, Margaret Davy, daughter of John Davie and Margaret Southcott, and they were the parents of fifteen children whose baptismal dates were recorded in the parish registers of County Devon. Their children were: Robert Hayden, bap. 17 August 1604; Johanna Hayden, bap. 1605; John Hayden, bap. 2 November 1606; Mary Hayden, bap. 17 September 1607; Margaret Hayden, bap. 7 August 1608; Gideon Hayden, bap. 25 June 1609; Thomas Hayden, bap. 23 June 1611; Frances Hayden, bap. 1 September 1612; George Hayden, bap. 11 September 1614; Dorothy Hayden, bap. 9 May 1616; Amias Hayden, bap. 30 April 1618; James Hayden, bap. 17 May 1619; Nicholas Hayden, bap. 19 May 1620; Elizabeth Hayden, bap. 3 August 1621; and Richard Hayden, bap. 22 May 1623.

A descendant of John Hayden and Susanna Pullen, Richard Y. Smith of Murray, Utah, shows in his records on file in the Genealogical Library, Salt Lake City, Utah, that John Hayden, immigrant to Massachusetts in 1630, was baptized 2 November 1606 and was the son of Gideon Hayden and Margaret Davy.

THE HAYDEN FAMILY

8 Nehemiah Hayden, b. 14 Feb. 1648; d. 12 Jan. 1718

John Hayden immigrated to Massachusetts from England aboard the John and Mary in 1630 and disembarked at Dorchester.

He was admitted as a freeman 14 May 1634 and moved from Dorchester about 1640 to the town of Braintree now known as Randolph, Massachusetts. He was known as goodman Hayden.

A road was laid out 2 January 1656 between the land of Deacon Bass and John Dosset, down the hill past goodman Webb's to John Hayden's land to provide a highway for him to bring his corn out.[1]

John Hayden died testate. In his will, dated 31 October 1678 and proved 26 July 1682, he appointed his wife, Susanna, executrix, and named all of his children except Jonathan. He devised his estate to his wife and then to his son Joseph. Letters of administration were issued to his sons John and Jonathan 3 October 1684, at which time they declared their mother was then deceased. Final settlement of the estate was withheld until 4 April 1695 following the death of Joseph Hayden, the devisee.[2] The dates of birth and death of John Hayden's four youngest children and the date of death of his son, John, were recorded in the town records of Braintree.[3]

17 Jonathan Hayden, b. 1695

Nehemiah Hayden lived his entire life in Suffolk County in the area of Braintree, Massachusetts. His date of birth, his date of marriage, and his date of death were recorded in the Braintree town records.[4]

During his life span, he actively participated in governing the town of Braintree and thus aided materially to the growth of the community. His name was written into the records of Braintree as Nehemiah Hayden, Mr. Nehemiah Hayden,[5] Sergeant Nehemiah Hayden,[6] and Nehemiah Hayden, Sr.[7]

He was listed as one of the freeholders of Braintree 10 January 1698.[8] He was elected as a selectman 3 March 1707[9] and served continuously in that capacity until his death. The town meeting which he attended 2 December 1717 seems to have been the last meeting which he attended, and on that date he was chosen to serve as moderator of the meeting.[10]

In the town meetings, Nehemiah Hayden was appointed as surveyor of highways[11] and as a tithingman.[12] He was instrumental in providing for schools, meeting places, the improvement of the town commons, the supervision of the town meadows, and the settlement of boundary disputes.[13]

He and his wife joined the church 7 August 1694 and attended the middle precinct church. They were present in 1711 at the ordination of the Rev. Samuel Miles.[14]

Nehemiah and his two brothers, Samuel and Ebenezer, participated in King Philip's War in 1675. Nehemiah served in Capt. Prentice's Company and drew pay 2 August 1675. In October 1696 when bounty land was divided, he drew Cedar Swamp lot.[15]

He received land and one end of a house from his father, and the transfer was confirmed in his father's will.[16] He acquired considerable land during his lifetime as is evidenced in his will.

Nehemiah Hayden died testate. In his will, dated 6 January 1718 and probated 28 February 1718, he appointed his wife, Hannah, as executrix, and Nehemiah, his eldest son, as executor. He named each of his children in his will except Mary. As she had died the previous year, he named his son-in-law, Samuel Hayden, in her stead. Nehemiah, during his lifetime, had allowed each of his sons who were of legal age a house and a portion of his land. He devised land to his sons, Ebenezer and Jonathan, who were minors at the time of his death. His daughter, Rachel, received a bequest of twenty pounds, and his dwelling house and adjacent land were willed jointly to his sons, Nehemiah, Samuel, Benjamin, and John.[17] The dates of birth of his children, Nehemiah, Hannah, and Benjamin, and the date of death of Benjamin were recorded in the town records of Braintree.[18]

Samuel Hayden was cited as a son of Nehemiah Hayden 1 March 1714 in his appointment to help regulate meat in Braintree.[19]

Samuel and his wife, Priscilla, signed a quit claim deed 6 June 1727 and conveyed their interest in the mill of "father Peter Webb, late of Braintree, dec'd."[20] This conveyance to John Webb is proof that Samuel Hayden married a daughter of Peter Webb. In 1751, Samuel brought suit against his sister-in-law, Mary Webb, widow of John Webb, deceased, for the share due his wife from the estate of Peter Webb.[21] A tract of 2½ acres of land, a part of the estate of John Webb, deceased, was conveyed to Samuel Hayden, a miller, 10 March 1752 by John's sister, Susanna Webb.[22]

The name of the eldest son of Samuel Hayden was gleaned from The Hayden Family and his date of birth was cited by Cutter.[23] The names of the other eight children and their dates of birth were recorded in the town records of Braintree.[24]

Elizabeth, m. William Hayden, about 1795, probably in Hampshire County, Virginia.

William Hayden moved from Braintree, Massachusetts, about 1745 and settled in Morris County, New Jersey, at Morristown. Forty years later, 12 November 1785, he received a grant of 950 acres of land on Timber Ridge, lying on the Great Cacapon River in Hampshire County, Virginia, now West Virginia.[25] Other land grants which he received included 425 acres of land on the Kentucky River in Fayette County, Kentucky, issued by Patrick Henry and bearing the date 11 July 1783.[26] Two other land grants in Fayette County bearing the date 15 June 1784 were issued to William over the signature of Benjamin Harrison at Richmond, Virginia. One tract of land lying on the Kentucky River contained

1,000 acres,[27] and the other tract of land lying on the North Fork of the Elkhorn in Fayette County contained 242 acres.[28]

William Hayden and five of his sons, John, Stephen, Enoch, Noah, and Hosea, served in the Revolutionary War. William entered military service 17 February 1778 and was on the muster roll of Capt. Samuel Colston's Company in the 5th Virginia Regiment of Foot commanded by Col. Josiah Parker. He was paid at Camp Valley Forge 1 June 1778 and at Brunswick 5 July 1778. He was ill for three months, and his name appeared on the roll at West Point in September 1778. Hayden was transferred to the company of Maj. Lucas in the 3rd Virginia Regiment of Foot and was discharged 28 February 1779 at Middlebrook.[29] In April 1779 at Harrodsburg, Kentucky, William Hayden joined the militia and fought the Indians at Chillicothe.[30]

In a conveyance of land dated 9 April 1794, William Hayden and his wife, Lydia, transferred 300 acres of land in Hampshire County, Virginia, now West Virginia, to their son, Belemus.[31] The next year, Hayden conveyed 500 acres of land on the Cacapon to Elias Poston. In this deed dated 11 August 1795, William Hayden referred in the text of the deed to his wife, Elizabeth, thus signifying that Lydia was dead and that he had re-married.[32] He moved to Fayette County, Pennsylvania, and he deeded property to his wife, Elizabeth, 8 August 1799 at Georgetown.[33]

Records of the baptisms of six of the children of William Hayden and Lydia Kierstede are extant in the Parish Register of Christ Church at Shrewsbury, New Jersey.[34] A family record page from a family Bible which is on file in the archives of the General Society of Mayflower Descendants lists all of the children of William Hayden except Stephen, and he was among those baptized at Shrewsbury.

Dr. Enoch Hayden, one of the first physicians in Warren Township of Marion County, Missouri,[35] practiced medicine in the area of Hardy and Grant counties, Virginia, during the 1780's. In conveyances of land, the residence of Enoch Hayden was designated as Loudoun County, Virginia, 24 May 1787; Fairfax County, Virginia, 7 March 1788; Bourbon County, Kentucky, 5 June 1793; Bourbon County, Kentucky, 21 October 1829.[36] and Marion County, Missouri, 18 May 1830.[37] Enoch and his wife, Rebecca, signed deeds jointly as early as 7 March 1788 and as late as 7 April 1813. After much research, descendants of Elizabeth Hayden concluded that Mary Shobe was the first wife of Dr. Enoch Hayden.[38]

38. Letter written by Charlotte Groff, 22 August 1977.

In addition to being a physician he speculated in land. Enoch and Noah, twin brothers, acquired a treasury warrant for 400 acres of land in Mercer County, Virginia. The location of this land on Hayden's Creek of Chaplain's Fork on Salt River, Mercer County, Virginia, is the same tract of land sold by Enoch in Mercer County, Kentucky, 5 June 1793. The land grants of Kentucky show that he entered land between 22 May 1780 and 8 October 1791.[39]

Enoch Hayden wrote a letter to his son, Peyton Randolph Hayden, 14 June 1843. Written from Lees Creek in Marion County, Missouri, when he was eighty-eight years of age, his letter attests to the fact that his mind was alert, his hand steady, and that his education had been thorough. He wrote: "I now wish to acquaint you with my intentions as I had not an opportunity of doing so at our last interview. I have not done as much for you as I have for my other children, though it has ever been my intention, and if you can help me out of my difficulties I shall have enough left to give you what I have always intended (and more than enough)..." In closing his letter he wrote: "I have little to write that is new, however, your nieces Elizabeth Griffith and Ann Spalding have married since you were here."[40]

In writing his grandfather's obituary, Benjamin Franklin Hayden stated that as a physician Dr. Hayden had but few equals, and that he was an honest man.

Enoch Hayden died testate. In his will, dated 14 June 1843 and probated 18 July 1843, he stipulated that his slaves were to be emancipated and were not to be sold for any purpose other than to pay his debts. He named as his sons and daughters, Peyton R. Hayden, Catharine Mays, Benjamin, Elijah, Enoch, Sarah Griffith, Rebecca Harden, Hannah Garner, Barbara Lenex, and Joanna Davis.[41] The names of his children by his first wife were listed in a family Bible.

51 Susan Garner, b. 1834

Hannah Hayden married Thomas James Spalding with the consent of her father.[42] The marriage ceremony was performed by William C. Stribling, and she and her husband established their home on Simpson Creek near Bardstown, Kentucky. After she was widowed in 1828, she migrated to Missouri.

Dr. Enoch Hayden dated his will 14 June 1843, and named Hannah Garner as one of his daughters.[43]

She married William Garner, Jr., in Marion County, Missouri,[44] and they were the parents of one daughter, Susan Garner. The household was enumerated on the 1840 census and Hannah would have been the wife between thirty and forty years of age, and Susan would have been the female child between five and ten years of age. Hannah was not enumerated on the 1850 census. Her husband, then a grocer, was enumerated with three slaves, and her daughter Susan, then sixteen years of age, was enumerated in the household of the child's grandfather, William Garner, Sr.

Hannah Garner, William Garner, Jr., and William Garner, Sr., conveyed a tract of land 27 February 1846 to John Baryman.

Rebecca Ann Spalding, daughter of Hannah Hayden and Thomas James Spalding, was named in the will of James Spalding dated 23 January 1847 as "My granddaughter Rebecca Ann Moss."[45] She was to receive a child's share of the estate of her grandfather as her father was deceased and she was heir in his stead.

Her grandfather, Dr. Enoch Hayden, wrote a letter to his son, Peyton Randolph Hayden, and stated "...your nieces Elizabeth Griffith and Ann Spalding have married since you were here."[46] In his will, Dr. Enoch Hayden named each of his children, three of whom were Peyton Randolph Hayden, Hannah Garner, and Sarah Griffith.[47]

The two marriage records of Hannah Hayden, the will of her father, Dr. Enoch Hayden, his letter written to her brother, the will of her father-in-law, James Spalding, and the marriage record of Rebecca Ann Spalding, prove that Rebecca Ann Spalding was the daughter of Hannah Hayden and Thomas James Spalding.

Kentucky, March 20, 1850

Dear Sir:

I have received information that you have addressed a letter to my brother Jacob Hayden, desiring some information concerning your relatives in general. Jacob moved to Iowa last October. Your letter was listed by Jepa S. Taylor, my sister's grandson. He gave me the contents and from them, I proceed: Your grandfather was born and raised on Long Island; your grandmother on Staten Island. Her name was Lydia Casted [Kierstede]. They emigrated to Pennsylvania and died in Fayette County, on the banks of the Monongahela. They had eight sons and three daughters; the sons as follows: John, Stephen, Enoch, Noah, Hosea, Webb, Belemus, and Lot; the daughters: Pamelia, Percina, and Charlott. As to our aunts, I have but little information. I have seen some of their children but made no particular acquaintance with them. My father's name was John; he died at the age of ninety or thereabouts, and was buried in the graveyard with his father and mother. He had two wives and some twenty-two or more children; they are scattered from Pennsylvania to Iowa. Uncle Stephen died in Ohio at the age of eighty. His descendants are principally of that state. Enoch was your father's name and of course you know more about him than I do. Likewise Noah, Webb, and Hosea I have not heard a straight account of. Uncle Belemus paid me a visit at least once in every five years from the time I was married until his death.

His two sons, John and Anson, died in Virginia. It would take a volume equal to the history of Josephus to trace the pedigree of my grandfather, his brothers and their descendants. I will only give you a brief sketch as there are two distinct families of the Haydens, so you may know always to which one you belong, handed to me by my grandfather. At the first settling of Long Island, two brothers emigrated from England and settled there; they lived in perfect harmony for some time, but unluckily for them they embraced different sentiments in the matter of religion, one a Catholic, the other a protestant. The contest caused a separation. The catholic moved to the James River in Virginia, and them to a man stuck to the religion of their father. About the same information I have received from Edward and William Hayden, both catholics.

I was twice at your father's house in Bourbon, Kentucky, the last time soon after he gained the lawsuit for his land. I then lived in Harden County, Kentucky. My home is there. My wife raised 10 children all are alive but one. She died some years back; all of my children are married, and as to things of this world are all doing well.

My oldest sister was left a widow before her family was raised. She married a man by the name of Taylor. Her oldest son came to Harden, married and raised a respectable family. His oldest son is Jepa S. Taylor, who received your letter in place of my brother. He, Jepa, is a promising young man of good talents, by profession a lawyer. He talks of going to see your country, and if there is flattering prospects, locate in the state; and if you thought him worthy, he doubts but little that you will aid him in his first start. If you write to me, direct the letter to him.

I never expect to have any personal acquaintance with you as my age forbids me traveling. I am now seventy in June and at this time in good health. If there is any information that I am in possession of which you want, let me know and I will give it, so I conclude with best wishes to all of your father's family, and I subscribe myself to your relations.

WILL OF DR. ENOCH HAYDEN
Marion County Wills, Book B, pp. 196-198, Courthouse, Palmyra, Missouri

I Enoch Hayden Senr of Warren Township Marion County, Missouri being infirm in health and sensible of my liableness to sudden death do judge it best to make, and do hereby make, this my last Will and Testament.

It is my will that all my just debts and the charges of my funeral be paid by my Executors hereinafter named and appointed, out of my estate as soon as conveniently may be done after my death and I leave the charges of my funeral to the discretion of my said Executors. I give devise and dispose of all of my estate real and personal, save what be necessary to pay my just debts and funeral charges in the following manner:

1st It is my will that my Executors or the survivor of them do sell my farm on which I now live, in any way they may think best or most advantageous to my estate so as to enable them to pay my debts without selling any more of my personal property than I shall herein after direct.— It is my will and desire that my negroes Martin, Matilda, Louisa, Henry, Jane and George be emancipated.—and I leave to them the following property all my plows, Hoes, axes all the bacon corn and other provisions now on hand the remainder of my personal property I desire to be sold and applied to the payment of my debts. It is my wish that my negroes remain on the farm and occupy the kitchen and other buildings until my land is sold & they are then to give possession save the dwelling house which I intend my Executors to put such property in as my negroes are not to have,— provided nevertheless that my Tract of Land which I have above named is subject to several mortgages. If it doesn't sell for enough to pay my debts my personal property is all to be sold without reserve, save the negroes, and if my lands and that part of my personal property is not sufficient to pay my debts it is my desire that my negroes be hired out until my debts be paid, and if that cannot be done it is my will that my negro man Martin be sold and the money arising from the sale of him is not enough to satisfy my debts then Matilda is to be sold and the money applyed in the same manner and so on selling the oldest until my debts are all paid if any of my younger negroes are not sold for my debts it is my desire that my Executors bind them until they are twenty one years of age to good masters who will feed and clothe them well and raise them to industry they are not to be taken out of the County of Marion and state of Missouri so the apprenticies and if they are badly treated white-bound they shall be taken away from such masters and bound to others at the discretion of my executors and when they arrive at the age of twenty-one they are to be liberated, but if my land and other personal property is sufficient to pay my debts and none of my negroes are sold it is my will that all of them be emancipated that is to say Martin, Matilda, Louisa, Henry, Jane and George to be kept together as one family, unless my Executors do find it necessary to bind the young ones to masters as above mentioned.—

I do give and bequeath to my son Peyton R Hayden on the following conditions that is if my land and other property save my negroes do sell for more than will pay my debts my executors is to pay to him in money not exceeding five hundred dollars.

I do give and bequeath to my Daughter Catharine Mays to her and her heirs for ever on the same condition not exceeding One hundred dollars, if the money arising from the sale of my land and other property do not pay my debts and the amount I have given on the above conditions to my son Peyton R Hayden and my daughter Catharine Mays, I then give and bequeath them one dollar each to be paid by my Executors as a token of my remembrance of them. To my other children Benjamin, Elijah, Enoch, Sarah Griffith, Rebecca Harden, Hannah Garner, Barbara Lenex and Joannah Davis, having in my life time given to them what I considered their Just proportion of my estate to advance them in life and to discharge my parental duty to them I give and bequeath to them one dollar cash to be paid them by my Executors as a token of my remembrance to them. My true meaning and intention is none other that my negroes are not to be sold for any other purpose than to pay my just debts.

It is my will and earnest desire that they be Emancipated and set at liberty as above mentioned. I hereby constitute and appoint James W. Conn and Frances Payne or the survivor of them Executors of this my last will and Testament. I do hereby direct my said executors to sell all of my property which I have not specially bequeathed, collect all debts due me and the money therefrom arising to pay all my just debts costs of settling up my estate and the costs allowed to officers of court and all other necessary expenses and the balance if any to be paid in payment of my debts.— In testimony whereof I hereunto set my hand and seal this 14 day of June 1843.

OBITUARY OF DR. ENOCH HAYDEN
Printed in the Courier July 1843
Written by his grandson, Benjamin Franklin Hayden

Dr. Enoch Hayden
Born March 27, 1755. Died July 16, 1843.

Died – In this [Marion] County, on Sunday the 16th instant, after a long illness of four or five weeks. Dr. Enoch Hayden Sr. in the 89th year of his age.

The cold and chilly hand of death came not upon the deceased in an unexpected hour. He had been calmly waiting the approach of the enemy of man for sometime, under the conviction that he was within a few short days of his journey's end on earth, and he expressed, during the whole of his illness, almost an entire willingness to quit this vale of tears; and on Sunday evening last, at 2 O'clock, in the full possession of his reasoning powers, after having made a proper disposition of his property, he calmly, and to all appearances, willingly resigned himself to the cold embrace of death.

The deceased was a native of New Jersey, and was born on the 27th of March 1755. He spent the early part of his life in Virginia and soon after he arrived at the age of manhood, full of that pioneering spirit so prevalient in those days, he emigrated to the then wilderness of Kentucky, and finally located himself in Bourbon County.

Dr. Hayden was in the 21st year of his age at the time of the Declaration of American Independence and was not an idle spectator in the scenes which secured to the American people the inestimable blessings of liberty, during the Revolutionary War, he served as a volunteer in two companies against the enemy, in that portion of the army (if I'm not mistaken) under the command of General Wayne.

For many years after the deceased settled in Kentucky, he and his brother pioneers were engaged in an almost perpetual war with the Indians and it was by the most untiring perseverance that they were enabled to beat back the hordes of savages that infested the wilderness of that now noble State. The important service rendered our country by those unconquerable spirits whose fortune it was to live in those days of the Revolution, are too often forgotten or passed by as "tales of fancy," in these days of peace and happiness.

In October 1829 the deceased mainly for the purpose of settling his children, quit his beautiful farm in Kentucky, where he was surrounded by all those comforts so well suited to him in the evening of his days, and moved to Marion Co., Missouri.

As a husband and father, he was kind affectionate and indulgent almost to an excess. As a neighbor he was kind obliging. As a friend he was unusually warm, ardent and devoted, and as an opponent he was independent, candid, firm and frank. Owing to these distinguishing in his character, even in the early part of his life, his acquaintenances attached to him the name of "Enoch Blunt."

As a physician Dr. Hayden had but few equals; but, he is gone! after having pilgrimaged in this vale of tears for 88 years, 3 months and 19 days, his immortal spirit took its flight to the God who gave it, and his body lies to mingle with its mother earth.

It is however some source of satisfaction to his numerous relatives and friends, to know that he has left behind him indelibly engraved upon the hearts of all who knew him, that Doctor Enoch Hayden was an honest man.

LETTER WRITTEN BY DR. ENOCH HAYDEN, SHARPSBURG, MARION COUNTY, MISSOURI, TO HIS SON PEYTON RANDOLPH HAYDEN, BOONVILLE, COOPER COUNTY, MISSOURI

Lees Creek
March 29th 1843

Dear Son

Your letter came safe to hand which I intend to answer I feel thankful to you for your friendly proposition but it is impossible for me to sell out at this time for the pressure and scarcity of money seems to grow worse instead of better, property will not sell for half its value and I think it would be injudicious and unwise for me to offer to sell at this time there are many in this section of country, who are willing to sell at most any price but there is no purchasers,— I can rent my farm as high as I ever did for a grain rent and double the quantity of land I have in cultivation in that way but there is no renter who will pay the money.— You have some idea of my business and circumstances but perhaps it would be as well to state them to you (as I had not an opportunity when I seen you last) In the first place I am owing of Blakey who has promised to wait with me until it is convenient for me to pay him and I have no doubt but he will be as good as his word as I have made him safe by giving him a mortgage on my lands, also I mortgaged three of my negroes to D McLoud in order to obtain an indorser in the bank. This I done to keep him satisfied that I may not be put to further trouble in that respect. The money he paid for me in the bank I have not been able to raise, though I have paid him part of it, what I will be due McLoud and the discount on what I owe the bank will be sixty-two dollars which will have to be paid on the 28th of next month. You requested me to let you know in time and you would furnish the money which I hope you will be able to do as I believe it will be out of my power without sacrificing property, as respects the treasury. The payment I was due it was deferred but that will be due in August next but you know more about that than I can tell you that is to the time it will have to be paide. The amount when I seen you was two hundred dollars but there will be some interest which is ten per cent from that time until paide. I mention this through fear I may not be able to meete the call, if I can satisfy the bank and the treasury that is to say the sixty two dollars that I am due McLoud and the bank and the first call of the Treasury I shall feel on more safe footing, I think I shall be after that able to meet the calls myself.— I now wish to acquaint you with my intentions as I had not an opportunity of doing so at our last interview. I have not done as much for you as I have for my other children, though it has ever been my intention, and if you can help me out of my difficulties I shall have enough left to give you what I have always intended (and more than enough) and believe me it is my intention to do as liberal a part by you, for it seems I shall get no favours from any of the rest of my sons or sons in law, and therefore I hope it will be convenient for you to do so, as they seem to have no disposition to help me, as to any money you may furnish me I intend to pay you again with ten per cent interest thereon to make you safe I have three negroes, Martin, the oldest girl and one four years old that is unencumbered that I will give you a mortgage on, or I will secure you in any way that you may think best. I want you to write to me as soon as convenient and let me know whether you can help me or not, so that if you cannot that I may dispose of my property to the best advantage and sacrifice as little as possible, when you write I wish to direct your letter to Sharps and not to Palmyra as Benjamin is invariably in the habit of takeing my letters out of the office. The last you wrote me he took it out and I did not get it for sometime after. I have but little to write that is new, however, your nieces Elizabeth Griffith and Ann Spalding have married since you were here.

Yours respectfully

P. R. Hayden Enoch Hayden, Sr.

Robert Holmes is probably the earliest proven ancestor of this Holmes family. The family was ancient in England and other members of the Holmes family lived in County Lancashire and County Cheshire, England, prior to 1600. Robert's name was spelled as Hulme, Holme, and Holmes in the records located at Chester, Reddish, and Manchester, England. He was sometimes referred to as old Robert Holmes of Reddish.

He was a husbandman near Reddish in County Lancashire, and it was probably he who was mentioned in the will of John Reddish, Esq., as a tenant in 1569. He served as a witness to the will of "Otiwell Hulme of Redytch, husbandman" in 1598.

He predeceased his wife, Alice. She was buried at Manchester in County Lancashire 7 September 1610 as "Alyce wydow to Robte Hulme of Reddiche." She was buried at the Collegiate Church which is now the cathedral in Manchester, England.

Robert Holmes died testate. From his will, dated 11 August 1602 and proved at Chester in County Cheshire 28 January 1605, it is evident that he was a land owner as he devised his lands to his eldest son Robert Holmes. He named his wife Alice, two sons, Robert and John, an unmarried daughter, Jane, and a grandson, George Hoyd. He named his sons, Robert and John Holmes, as executors of his will.[1] He had at least one daughter not named in his will, the mother of George Hoyd. Robert Holmes was buried at Stockport, County Cheshire, England, 14 January 1605 as "Ould Robert Holme of Redich."[2]

Robert Holmes, a husbandman, was designated as Robert Hulme of Reddish in the baptismal records of Didsbury, the burial records of Stockport, and the matriculation records of Brasenose College at Oxford. He was named as a son of Robert Holmes of Reddish in the latter's will dated 11 August 1602.

The Rev. Obadiah Holmes wrote a letter to his children dated 17 December 1675 and referred to his parents as follows: "First, I must remember my honored parents, who were faithful in their generation, and of good report among men, and brought up their children tenderly, and honorably. Three sons they brought up at the University in Oxford; but the most part of their care was to inform and instruct them in the fear of the Lord; and to that end gave them much good counsel, carrying them often before the Lord by earnest prayer."

Robert Holmes died testate. His will, dated 20 August 1640, was proved at Chester, England, in County Cheshire. He named his sons Robert, Obadiah, Samuel, and Joseph in his will.[3] Each of his children was baptized at either Didsbury or Stockport, England.

Obadiah Holmes was educated in England. In a letter written to his children dated 17 October 1675, he stated that three sons of his parents had matriculated at the University of Oxford. The two sons of Robert Holmes of Reddish listed in Alumni Oxonensis were Samuel and John Holmes. As Obadiah's brother, Robert, attended Groton, the third son of Robert Holmes of Reddish who attended the University of Oxford may well have been Obadiah.[4]

Sometime after 1633, Obadiah and his family immigrated to the colony of Massachusetts. He first settled in Salem, Massachusetts, and was a glass-man, or a manufacturer of glass.

Obadiah became a leading Baptist minister, and his witness to his faith and his writings are of much interest. He was admitted as a member of the Puritan Church at Salem 24 March 1639. Ten years later he moved to Seekonk, Massachusetts, and transferred his membership to the church of the Rev. Samuel Newman. A personal conflict between Holmes and Newman resulted when

4. Historical and Genealogical Miscellany, vol. 3, 1914, p. 302.

Obadiah entered a complaint against the minister charging slander for saying that he, Holmes, took false oath in court. Rev. Newman admitted he was in error but the rift between the two men could not be bridged. Obadiah and eight other members withdrew from the Puritan Church and were baptized into the Baptist Church by the Rev. John Clark. They were then ex-communicated by the Puritans 5 June 1650 and charged with meeting from house to house on the Lord's Day. Four petitions were presented in the General Court at Plymouth urging that they be speedily suppressed. They were charged by the court not to break bread or preach or baptize. Obadiah Holmes and Joseph Tory were bound over to the October court as they did not acquiesce. At the General Court held 2 October 1650, Gov. William Bradford and his gentlemen assistants, two of whom were Capt. Miles Standish and John Alden, pronounced no sentence against Holmes and Tory, even though they had continued meeting house to house on the Lord's Day, contrary to the order of the court.[5]

In July 1651, Obadiah, the Rev. John Clark, and several other members of the Baptist Church went to Lynn, Massachusetts, to the home of William Witter, who was too old and infirm to attend church. While the Rev. Clark was preaching, the constable entered, seized the visitors, and imprisoned them. Holmes was tried at a court in Boston 31 July 1651 and the jury's sentence read: "Forasmuch as you, Obadiah Holmes, being come into this jurisdiction about the 21st of the 5th mo., did meet at one William Witter's house at Lynn, and did here privately and at other times, being an excommunicate person, did take upon you to preach and baptize... and coming afterward at the assembly at Lynn, did, in disrespect to the ordinance of God and his worship, keep on your hat, the pastor being in prayer...the court doth fine you £30...or else be well whipped..."[6]

Obadiah Holmes refused to pay the fine or to allow his friends to pay it. He was retained in prison until 5 September 1651 when he was bound to a post on State Street in Boston and whipped in an unmerciful manner. For many days he could rest only on his knees and elbows as he could not suffer any part of his body to touch the bed. He wrote: "And as the man began to lay the strokes upon my back, I said to the people, though my flesh shall fail, and my spirit shall fail, yet my God would not fail...I had such a spiritual manifestation of God's presence...I could well bear it, yea, and in a manner, felt it not, although it was grievous, as the spectators said, the man striking me with all his strength (yea, spitting in his hands three times, as many affirmed) with a three corded whip, giving me therewith thirty strokes. When he had loosed me from the post, having joyfulness in my heart and cheerfulness in my countenance, as the spectators observed, I told the magistrates, you have struck me with roses...I pray God it may not be laid to your charge..."[7]

Obadiah moved his family to Middletown, Rhode Island in 1651. He succeeded the Rev. John Clark in 1652, and devoted thirty years of his life to the Baptist ministry. He was listed as a freeman in 1656, and was a commissioner to the General Court of Trials held at Warwick, Rhode Island, 11 March 1655. In the succeeding three years he served as a commissioner to the court held at Newport, Rhode Island, and one held at Portsmouth, Rhode Island. He served as a representative of Newport in 1658, and was cited by the Assembly in 1676 as one of "the most judicious inhabitants of the colony."[8]

Obadiah Holmes died testate. No recorded copy of his will is known to exist. The original will is among the Bull papers at the Newport Historical Society. He named as his children Mary Brown, Martha Odlin, Lydia Bowne, Hopestill Taylor, John Holmes, Obadiah Holmes, Samuel Holmes, and Jonathan Holmes, and as his wife, Katherine Holmes.[9] In a letter written 17 December 1675 and addressed to his children, he also named his son Joseph, and related the Biblical attribute of the name of each of his children.

Samuel Holmes moved from his father's home in Rhode Island and settled at Gravesend, Long Island, New York. A few months prior to his marriage, he bought the Ruckman plantation in Gravesend in 1665. In other transactions, he purchased plantation No. 18 from John Johnson, and seven acres of land from his brother-in-law, John Bowne, 20 April 1670. He received one and one-half lots of the thirty-nine lots on Guisebert's Island 6 January 1671.

He served as juryman in court sessions held at Gravesend in 1670, 1675, 1676, and 1678. Samuel Holmes was chosen magistrate of the town of Gravesend in 1674 and was elected constable in June 1676. He received a commission as a lieutenant in the Gravesend militia in 1673.[10]

Lt. Samuel Holmes died testate. His will, dated 28 February 1679, was proved 25 June 1679. He named each of his children in his will, and appointed as their guardians his brothers, Jonathan and Obadiah Holmes, and his brothers-in-law, Richard Stillwell and John Bowne. He appointed his wife, Alice, as executrix of his estate. Two of the witnesses of the will, John Emans and John Tilton, Sr., being Quakers, would not swear to the validity of the will, but the governor accepted their declarations that the will was that of Samuel Holmes, deceased.[11]

Ann Holmes was named as a daughter of Samuel Holmes in his will dated 28 February 1679 and probated 25 June 1679 at Gravesend, New York. According to the terms of her father's will, Ann received a three year old cow since he had specified that if his wife should marry again "she is to give unto my children every one of them a cow three years old." Samuel Holmes also stated in his will that "If either of my sons doe marry before the decease of my wife, then the lot or Plantation I bought of Thomas Delavall, they [his daughters Ann, Katherine, and Mary] shall have for their use between them But in case Either of my Sonnes dy then the s[d] land shall be my three daughters..." [12]

Ann Holmes was married in the Reformed Dutch Church in Flatlands, Long Island, New York. Her husband, Jacobus Kierstede, was designated as "a chirurgeon," or surgeon, in their marriage record.[13] The baptismal records of all of her children except Hans are recorded in the Reformed Dutch Church in New York City.

EXTRACT FROM LETTER WRITTEN BY OBADIAH HOLMES TO HIS CHILDREN
Historical and Genealogical Miscellany, vol. 3, 1903, p. 308

And now, my son Joseph, remember Joseph of Arimathea was a good man and a disciple of Jesus and was bold and went boldly and asked the body of Jesus and buried it.

My son John, remember what a loving and beloved disciple he was.

My daughter Hope, consider what a grace of God hope is, and court after that hope that will never be ashamed but hath the hope of eternal life and salvation by Jesus Christ.

My son Obadiah, consider that Obadiah was a servant of the Lord and tender in spirit and in troublesome time hid the prophets by 60 in a cave.

My son Samuel, remember that Samuel was a chief prophet of the Lord ready to hear his voice saying, "Speak Lord for Thy servant heareth."

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

An Humphreys family was living in Lunenburg County, Virginia, during the 1740's, 1750's, and 1760's. William, John, Thomas, and Charles Humphreys jointly patented 366 acres of land on both sides of Allen's Creek 20 August 1747, in Lunenburg County. (Virginia Patents, Book 28, p. 141, Virginia State Library, Richmond, VA.) They were listed on the Lunenburg tax list in 1748. Charles Humphreys was still living on Allen's Creek in 1766 which was then Mecklenburg County. (Mecklenburg Deeds, Book 1, p. 227, Courthouse, Boydton, VA.)

These four men were evidently brothers, and brothers of Amey Humphreys who married David Halliburton and lived in the Lunenburg-Mecklenburg area during the same period of time, and who named her sons David, William, John, Thomas, and Charles.

Also living in the same area during the same period of time was John Humphreys, Sr., (Mecklenburg Deeds, Book 1, p. 271, Courthouse, Boydton, VA.) who was probably the father of William, John, Thomas, Charles, and Amey Humphreys.

Charles Humphries is said to have been the grandson of one of three gentlemen by the name of Humphries, who came from Wales and settled in Virginia. It is claimed that their ancestor was Ralph Humphreys, a cavalier of Wales, who was driven thence to Ireland, and his descendants to America.

Charles was born in Virginia, about 1710-15. He married about 1735—a daughter of Mr. Bennet, a Virginia farmer. They had ten children. The sons were all born in Virginia, except Richard. A short time before the Revolutionary War, he settled with all his family near Raleigh, Wake County, North Carolina, and at a later date, in Chester District, South Carolina, where he and three of his sons died and were buried.

Children (besides three daughters): John, Charles, Thomas, b. 18 Dec. 1756, Absolom, James, Bennet, and Richard.

(Letter written by Mrs. Frederick Allnutt, 17 November 1975, New Hartford, New York.)

1 Amey Humphreys, probably a daughter of John Humphreys, Sr., b. about 1735; d. about 1790, probably in Caswell County, North Carolina.

David Halliburton, Sr., b. about 1727 in Scotland; d. in 1767 between 3 January and August, Orange County, North Carolina; m. Amey Humphreys, about 1752 in Virginia.

9 Robert Jones, d. 1847

Amey Humphreys and David Halliburton were probably married in Lunenburg, now Mecklenburg County, Virginia. William Halliburton, their son, deposed 20 August 1832 in Wake County, North Carolina, that he was seventy-one years of age, that he was born in Mecklenburg County, Virginia, and that he had a brother named David.[1] Thomas Halliburton testified under oath that he was a brother of William and David Halliburton, and Robert Jones of Person County, North Carolina, testified that he was a half-brother of William Halliburton.[2]

Margaret Meroney Halliburton told her granddaughter that David Halliburton married a Miss Humphreys and their children were David, John, Thomas, Charles, William, and Margaret – she knew them all.[3]

In his will, dated 3 January 1767 and proved in August 1767,

3. Letter written by Margaret Winifred Halliburton, 23 August 1909.

David Halliburton appointed his wife as executrix and stated "I expect my wife is now with child." He willed his estate to his wife until her date of death or marriage at which time his land was to be divided among his children.[4]

A series of land transactions involving land inherited by the sons of David Halliburton;[5] the witnessing of James Jones and Amey Jones to the signatures of the sons of David Halliburton;[6] the will of James Jones naming his sons as Robert and Ambrose Jones;[7] and the deposition of Robert Jones stating that he was a half-brother of William Halliburton, Revolutionary War soldier,[8] aforementioned, prove conclusively that Miss Humphreys was Amey Humphreys; that she was widowed in 1767; that she married James Jones about 1768; and that in addition to her Halliburton children she had two sons by her second husband.

Josiah Huntsman was a resident of Virginia until about 1780. According to land records, he purchased a tract of land 12 July 1764 in Albemarle County from John McCullock.[1] By 1770 he was living in Botetourt County but within less than ten years he had moved southwestward to Washington County, Virginia. He was a juror 15 August 1770, 14 November 1770, and 15 May 1771 in Botetourt County, and 19 May 1779 he was a juror in Washington County, Virginia.[2]

He then moved across the mountains into that part of Virginia which was created in 1792 into the state of Kentucky. Records show an entry of 200 acres of land was made by Josiah Huntsman in Jefferson County, Kentucky, on the Middle Fork of Licking Creek, 10 June 1780.[3] He subsequently received a grant of 1,445 acres of land 29 September 1798 in Montgomery County, Kentucky. This land, on Rock House Creek, was jointly shared by William Edminston.[4] He received a grant of 200 acres of land 15 September 1798 in Lincoln County, Kentucky.[5]

He settled near McKinney Station in Lincoln County, Kentucky. He was granted a mill right on the Hanging Fork during the July term of court in 1790 in Lincoln County.[6] He was taxed in 1798 on 114 acres of land lying on the Hanging Fork, a branch of the Dicks River, and 314 acres of land lying on the Green River in Lincoln County, Kentucky.

Josiah Huntsman was ordered into service in the Virginia militia 3 November 1782 under Brig. Gen. George Rogers Clark. He served in an expedition against the Indians in Capt. Robert Barnet's Company.[7] At this time George Rogers Clark was in charge at the fort at Harrodsburg and he and his men ranged with Kentucky militiamen for the protection of the settlers on the frontier.

Josiah was probably a son of Benjamin Huntsman who died testate in Albemarle County, Virginia. In his will, dated 15 April 1791 and proved in October 1791 in Albemarle County, Benjamin Huntsman devised his entire estate to his wife, Mary Mariah Huntsman, and named no other heirs. Josiah and his wife, Jane, were the progenitors of the Huntsmans of Salt River and Cairo Townships in Randolph County, Missouri.

Josiah Huntsman died intestate in Lincoln County, Kentucky, in 1805. His estate was administered 3 August 1805 by Robert Rayburn, Nathaniel Huston, Archibald McKinney, and John McKinney. They divided the estate among the heirs of Josiah as follows. A tract of 52 acres of land including the house and spring was allotted to William Huntsman. Another tract of land at McKinney Station was divided among his children, Sally Huntsman, George Huntsman, and Benjamin Huntsman. Mary Anne, designated as "Polly Huntsman now Polly Rutherford" by the administrators, received a 62 acre tract of land which included the mill seat.[8] Mary Anne and her husband, James Rutherford, sold a tract of land to her brother, Benjamin Huntsman, 3 November 1826, which contained "about 50 acres of land it being the dower of Jane Huntsman and which was alloted to her out of the lands of the estate of her husband Josiah Huntsman and for which she had a life estate."

Mary Anne Huntsman was born near McKinney Station in Lincoln County, Kentucky. She and her husband, James Rutherford, owned land on Hanging Fork Creek of Dix River and on Green River southwest of Stanford, Kentucky. She received a tract of 62 acres of land and the mill seat on Hanging Fork Creek near McKinney, Kentucky, 3 August 1805 in the settlement of her father's estate.[9]

Mary and her husband conveyed their interest in 50 acres of land situated on Hanging Fork to her brother, Benjamin Huntsman, 3 November 1826, and moved to Howard County, Missouri, locating near the town of Franklin.[10] Mary was probably buried in the Pemberton family cemetery near Fayette, Missouri.

Her children, except Eli, were named as sons and the daughter of James Rutherford, deceased, by Ambrose Halliburton, administrator of the estate of James Rutherford, 7 April 1850.[11]

THE HUTCHINSON FAMILY

1 John Hutchinson, b. about 1745, probably in Virginia; d. in January 1826 near Sango, Montgomery County, Tennessee.

2 James Hutchinson

3 Elizabeth Hutchinson

John Hutchinson was a resident of Shenandoah County, Virginia, during the 1790's. The marriage bond issued in 1796 in Shenandoah County to Edward Jett and Elizabeth Hutchinson was signed by John Hutchinson and Roger Jett, showing both fathers gave their sanction to the marriage.[1]

Subsequent to the marriage of Elizabeth Hutchinson and Edward Jett, they were accompanied by John Hutchinson, James Hutchinson, and possibly other members of the Hutchinson and Jett families in the withdrawal from their homes in Shenandoah County, Virginia. They migrated to Montgomery County, Tennessee, and established their homes in the Sango district near Clarksville.

John Hutchinson died testate. He was in poor health at the time and died within the succeeding month. In his will, dated 15 December 1825 and probated in the January term of court in 1826 at Clarksville, Tennessee, he identified himself as John Hutchinson Gent. of the State of Tennessee and County of Montgomery. He signed his will as John Hutchinson, Sen^{r}· which would indicate that he either had a son named John, or a nephew named John. As he did not mention his wife in his will she probably was deceased prior to 1825. A grandson, Albin Jett, son of Elizabeth Hutchinson and Edward Jett, was a witness to John's will. Only two devisees were named in the will. He specified that all of his worldly goods was to be divided equally between his son, James Hutchinson, and his son-in-law, Edward Jett, and he appointed tham as executors to carry out the administration of his estate. Other witnesses to his will were William Morrow and Simon Heflin.[2]

Elizabeth Hutchinson and her husband, Edward Jett, moved to Montgomery County, Tennessee, from their home in the Shenandoah Valley near the turn of the century.

One of her descendants, Donald E. Jett, stated in an affidavit dated 28 February 1969 as follows: "I was born June 22, 1889, and will be 80 years of age on June 22, 1969; that I am a son of William Augustus Jett, whose father was Albin Jett; that Albin Jett, my grandfather, had a brother, Anson Jett..."[3]

Another of the sons of a grandson of Elizabeth wrote: "My grandfather was Edward Jett and my father was Alfred Jett. My name is Ben F. Jett."[4]

Asa Hulen Jett was named as "my son Asa" by Edward Jett in a deed dated 12 October 1840.[5]

Elizabeth gave her son Hutchinson her maiden name. All of her other children including Sarah and Ann Eliza were named in the Jett genealogy.

Katherine Hyde, a native of England, accompanied her husband, Obadiah Holmes, to Salem, Massachusetts, during the 1630's. They probably emigrated from the area of Reddish in County Lancashire, where the Holmes family had been entrenched for many years, to the primitive conditions of the New World.

It is reasonable to assume that Katherine Hyde's religious views followed the religious views and actions of her husband. Obadiah Holmes was admitted to the Puritan Church at Salem 24 March 1639. In 1649 he withdrew his membership and was baptized into the Baptist Church. He was a leading Baptist minister for thirty years at Middletown, Rhode Island, and it is safe to say that he was supported in the ministry by his wife.

Katherine was named as the wife of the Rev. Obadiah Holmes in his will dated 9 April 1681. Their children were named in a letter written by Obadiah 17 December 1675, and eight of their children were named in his will.[1]

Anneke Jans, a Norwegian, was the daughter of Johan and his wife, Trijntje Roelofs. Her full name, Anneke Johansdatter, was transliterated to Anneke Jans by the Dutch.[1]

Anneke married Roelof Jansen 18 April 1623 in the Dutch Reformed New Church in Amsterdam, Netherlands. In the marriage intention dated 1 April 1623 in the Dutch Reformed Old Church in Amsterdam, she reported her age as eighteen, her place of birth as Flekkeroy, and her place of residence as the St. Tunis gate.[2]

For the subsequent seven years, Anneke and Roelof lived in the Netherlands. The baptismal records of their three eldest children were recorded in the Lutheran Church records in Amsterdam.[3]

Roelof was employed by Patroon van Rensselaer as a farmer at Rensselaerwyck. The family was sent to Fort Orange, New Netherland, in 1630, and Anneke and her family lived on de Laets Burg on the Hudson River four years before moving to New Amsterdam.

During 1636 a patent was issued to Roelof and Anneke for 31 morgens, or 62 acres, of land on Manhattan Island on North River. This tract of land was confirmed by patent to Anneke Jans in her own name 4 July 1654 by Gov. Peter Stuyvesant.[4] Following the capitulation of the Dutch government to the English, Gov. Nicolls confirmed the ownership of the land to Anneke's heirs in 1664. The land was conveyed to Col. Francis Lovelace, governor of New York, 6 March 1671 by the heirs. Ownership of the property eventually evolved to the Trinity Church in New York City and became extremely valuable. Cornelius Bogardus, son of Anneke Jans, was deceased prior to 1671, and his descendants noted that neither his small son, Cornelius, Jr., or his widow, Helena Teller, acting for her son, had signed the deed to Lovelace. They therefore declared the deed was not valid. Between 1750 and 1847 at least sixteen suits of ejectment were brought against the church by heirs of Anneke Jans. In 1847 Vice Chancellor Sanford ruled the church had acquired a valid title by prescription, and that all adverse claims were invalid.[5] Nearly one hundred years of litigation over the ownership of "Anneke Jans' farm" made her the best known of the early Norwegian settlers.

In March 1638, prior to her marriage to Dominie Everardus Bogardus, Anneke and Bogardus signed a contract whereby they guaranteed her children by Roelof Jansen one thousand guilders to be paid to them when they reached their majority from the proceeds of their father's estate. The contract was lost and a supplement was signed 21 June 1642 reiterating the legacy to the children of Roelof Jansen. She and Bogardus also promised "to bring them up according to their means, to provide them with the necessary clothing and food, to keep them in school, to let them learn reading, writing and a good trade, all according to their ability."[6]

After she was widowed for the second time, Anneke went to Beverwyck, near Fort Orange, to live. The Rev. Megapolensis wrote a letter dated 25 August 1648 as follows: "Annetje Bogardus has requested me to write to the Rev. Classis, in her name and in her behalf, in order that the Rev. Classis might for the sake of a preacher's widow, petition the Company for the money due her, to be paid to her or her attorney, to enable her to pay her debts and support her family."[7]

A contract was made 1 November 1651 between Hans Kierstede, Peter Hartgers, and Govert Loockermans, sons-in-law and agents of Anneke Jans, and Evert Pels, whereby the 62 acre farm on Manhattan Island was leased to Pels until 1 May 1658. Anneke furnished the farm and farm animals and was to receive in return one-half the increase in livestock, two hundred twenty-five guilders, and thirty pounds of butter per year.

Anneke received a lot in Beverwyck by patent dated 23 April 1652. She received a tract of land at Mespath of 65 morgens, or 130 acres, by patent dated 26 April 1652.[8] Peter Hartgers constructed a house for Anneke in Beverwyck and her will indicates that she also owned the house next door.

Anneke Jans died testate. In her will, dated 29 January 1663 and proved sometime after 23 February 1663, she named each of her husbands, Roelof Jansen and the Rev. Everardus Bogardus, and devised property to each of her living children. She named each of her children as follows: Sara, wife of Hans Kierstede; Catrina, wife of Johannes van Brugh; Sytje, deceased wife of Peter Hartgers, Jan Roelofsen; and William, Cornelius, Jonas, and Peter Bogardus.[9]

WILL OF ANNEKE (JANS) JANSEN BOGARDUS, TRANSLATED COPY
Albany County Notarial Papers, vol. 1, pp. 296-298, County Clerk's Office, Albany, New York

In the Name of the Lord, Amen. Know all men, that to-day the 29th January 1663, at about four o'clock in the afternoon, before me, Dirck van Schelluyne, Notary Public, and the below named witnesses, personally came and appeared the virtuous Anneke Jans, first widow of Roelof Jansen from Masterland and now of the Preacher Domine Everhardus Bogardus, residing in the village of Beverwyck (well known to us, the notary and witnesses), she, the appearing party, lying sick in bed, but perfectly mistress of her senses, reason, memory and understanding, as is quite evident to us, the appearing party considering the shortness and frailty of human life, the certainty of death and the uncertain time thereof and wishing therefore to anticipate the same by a proper disposition of her worldly goods, which she must leave behind, she, the appearing party, declared very deliberately, to have made, ordained and resolved upon this her present testament as her last and final will, without inducement, persuasion or deception by anybody, in the following manner: Commending first and above all her immortal soul into the gracious and merciful hands of God, her Creator and Saviour and her body to a Christian burial, also revoking, cancelling, making null and void hereby all and every such testamentary disposition, as she may have made and executed before this day and making a new disposition, she, the appearing testatrix, declares hereby, that she nominates and institutes her children, named Sara Roeloffsen, wife of Mr. Hans Kierstede, Catrina Roeloffsen, wife of Johannes van Brugh, together with Jannetie and Rachel Hartgers, children of her daughter Sytje Roeloffsen, deceased, late wife of Pieter Hartgers (jointly representing their mother's place), Item her son Jan Roeloffsen, with Willem, Cornelis, Jonas, and Pieter Bogardus as her sole and universal heirs and that of all her property, movable and immovable, claims, bonds, coined and uncoined gold and silver, jewels, wearing apparel, linen woolen, household furniture, nothing excepted nor reserved, which she will evacuate and leave behind on her death, that they may divide the same after her demise among each other in equal parts and do with it as with their own unincumbered property without any one's opposition:

Except however, with this express restriction and condition, that the aforesaid first four children shall first deduct from their paternal estate as their share in a bouwery, situate on Manhatans Island, on the Northriver, the sum of one thousand guilders, to be paid out of the receipts or proceeds of the same bouwery; and considering that three of them have been fitted out for their marriages according to her means, while the said Jan Roeloffsen is still unmarried, therefore she, the appearing testatrix, has made over and bequeathed to the same as offset a bed and a milch cow and to Jonas and Pieter Bogardus a house and lot standing and lying on the westside of her, the testatrix's dwelling house in the said village of Beverwyck, reaching in breadth up to her room and afterwards in length back to the bleaching field, together with a bed for both and a milch cow for each of them; item to Cornelis Bogardus also a bed and a milch cow, which is to compensate these children for what the married children have received at their marriages.

Finally she, the testatrix, bequeathes also to Roeloff Kierstede (her daughter Sara's child) a silver cup, to Annetie van Brugh (her daughter Catrina's child) a silver cup, to Jannetie and Rachel Hartgers (her daughter Sytje's children) also a silver cup each, and to the child of Willem Bogardus, named Sytje, also a silver cup; the aforesaid children shall deduct and enjoy all these bequests in the manner and form as above recited from the first and readiest property and then proceed to the division of the rest of the estate in like manner as the heirs have been here before nominated and instituted. She, the appearing testatrix, declares the foregoing to be her testament, last and final will, wishing and demanding, that the same shall go into full force and effect after her death, either as testament, codicil, donation, gift on account of death or otherwise as the same may best be carried out, even though it might be, that some solemnities required by law or custom, have not been perfectly observed therein, she requests that the utmost advantage may be derived therefrom and that one or more copies thereof should be made and delivered by me, the Notary, in usual form.

Thus done and executed at the house of the testatrix in the village of Beverwyck in N. Netherland in the presence of the Honorable Rutje Jacobsen van Schoonderweert and Evert Wendel, Ex-Commissaries, called and asked as witnesses hereto

ANNEKE JANS PROVIDED LEGACY FOR HER CHILDREN BY HER HUSBAND ROELOF JANSEN, DECEASED

Register of the Provincial Secretary, 1638-1642, p. 20b, Cultural Center, Albany, New York

New York Historical Manuscripts: Dutch, vol. 2, 1974, pp. 42-44

In the year after the birth of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, one thousand six hundred and forty-two, personally came and appeared before me, Cornelis van Tienhoven secretary in New Netherland, appointed by the General Chartered West India Company, Annitjen Jans, formerly widow of the late Rouloff Jansen from Masterland, and at present wife of Everardus Bogardus, minister here, with the Hon. Willem Kieft, director general of New Netherland, and Mr. Johannes la Montangne, her chosen guardians herein, who declared that in the month of March A°. 1638, before she, Annitjen Jans, had entered into the marriage state with her present above named husband, she had agreed with the guardians of the surviving legitimate children which the aforesaid Rouloff Jansen had in his lifetime procreated by her respecting their share of their deceased father's estate, which aforesaid contract was drawn up and written by the late Secretary Hudden, and is at present not to be found in the old books, papers or registers. Wherefore, for the security of the aforesaid children and Annitjen Jans above named; she has caused this instrument to be drawn up as a supplement to the foregoing contract, and in case the latter happens to be discovered elsewhere, she Anna Jans, holds it as valid and of no less force than the present, on the condition that whenever this shall be fulfilled, the other contract shall be null and void. First, the said Anna Jans promises to pay to the above mentioned minor children whenever they shall attain their majority, from her first available means, as their share of their deceased father's estate, the sum of one thousand Carolus guilders, Holland currency, to wit: To her daughter Sara Rouloffs, aged about sixteen years, two hundred guilders; to Trijntjen Rouloffs, aged thirteen years, two hundred guilders; to Sijtjen Rouloffs, aged eleven years, two hundred guilders; to Jan Rouloffsen, nine years old, two hundred guilders, and to Annitjen Rouloffsen, aged six years, a like two hundred guilders; which amounts for the five children aforesaid to one thousand guilders; on the express condition and stipulation that she, Anna Jans, and Everardus Bogardus, her present lawful husband, shall have the use of the moneys aforesaid, without interest until the above named children shall become of age. She, Anna Jans, and Everardus Bogardus also promise, saving the children's property, to bring them up according to their means, to provide them with the necessary clothing and food, to keep them at school, to let them learn reading, writing and a good trade, all according to their ability; with which the above named children henceforth and forever shall hold themselves satisfied, without being able to claim either from Anna Jans or from her guardians, heirs or assigns, on account of their father's estate, anything more than each the aforesaid portion of two hundred Carolus guilders, which she, Anna Jans, assisted herein by her guardians aforesaid, and the said Everardus Bogardus promise fully to tender and to pay, free of costs and charges, without any exception or gainsay, waiving therefore all exceptions of whatsoever nature which may in any way be contrary to this instrument. For the security and performance hereof we, Anna Jans and Everardus Bogardus, bind our respective persons and properties, movable and immovable, present and future, under submission to the Provincial Court of Holland and West Friesland and all other courts, judges and justices. In witness and token of the truth this is signed with our own hands.

Roelof Jansen stated 1 April 1623 in his marriage intention that he was then twenty-one years of age, and that he was born in Maesterland, now called Marstrand Island. He also stated that he was a seaman and that he had resided for the past three and one-half years at the St. Tunis gate.[1]

Roelof, his wife Anneke Jans, and their two daughters, Sara and Trijntgen, boarded the Eendracht and sailed 21 March 1630 from the island of Texel near Amsterdam. They disembarked 24 May 1630 at Fort Amsterdam, New Netherland, and were among the very earliest of the Norwegian immigrants to New Netherland.[2]

Patroon Killiaan van Rensselaer, the wealthy diamond polisher of Amsterdam, established a colony on the Hudson River in New Netherland which he called Rensselaerwyck, and Roelof Jansen was one of his first employees. Roelof took his family to Fort Orange where he was employed as the farmer of de Laets Burg, a virgin farm which lay on the east side of the Hudson River near the present city of Rensselaer, New York. Van Rensselaer wrote in 1631 that de Laets Burg was a complete farm with a house, cows, hogs, four horses, and eleven sheep. In that year, Roelof seeded 10 acres or more in summer wheat. Roelof did not renew his four year contract and therefore may have seemed to desert, but he and the farm hands had served most, and probably all, of their contracted time of employment.[3] He left in debt to van Rensselaer for in 1637 van Rensselaer wrote that he had cancelled the debt of Jansen's widow "long ago."[4]

Roelof moved his wife and four children to New Amsterdam in 1634. He became an employee of the West India Company and received a patent in 1636 for 31 morgens, or 62 acres, of land on Manhattan Island lying on North River. This patent was registered in the name of Roelof Jansen and his wife, Anneke Jans.[5]

When Roelof Jansen died the West India Company owed him two hundred seventeen guilders. He had remitted that amount in 1635 to the Orphans Masters of Amsterdam as appears by the Book of Monthly Wages which was sent to Amsterdam aboard the Eendracht from New Amsterdam that year. Everardus Bogardus, who married the widow of Roelof Jansen, made three attempts to collect this money which was due to Jansen.[6]

Roelof Jansen died intestate. Anneke Jans included a clause in her will, dated 29 January 1663, which reads that her children by Roelof Jansen "shall divide between them out of their father's property the sum of one thousand guilders, to be paid to them out of the proceeds of a certain farm on Manhattan Island, bounded on North River, and that before any other dividend takes place."[7] He had five daughters whose surnames were Roelofs and one son whose surname was Roelofsen. The names and ages of his five living children were recorded 21 June 1642 by Anneke Jans as follows: Sara, aged about sixteen; Trijntgen, aged thirteen; Sijtje, aged eleven; Jan, aged nine; and Annatje, aged six.[8] The names of the three eldest children of Roelof and Anneke were recorded in the baptismal records of the Lutheran Church in Amsterdam.[9]

Sara Roelofs was baptized in the Reformed Lutheran Church in Amsterdam, Netherlands, 5 April 1627, and Roelof Jansen was cited as her father in the baptismal record.[10] Her mother, Anneke Jans, stated in a deposition dated 21 June 1642 that Sara was then about sixteen years of age.[11]

When the family boarded the Eendracht at Texel off the Netherlands coast for the two month voyage to the New World, Sara was about three years of age. Her farm home at de Laets Burg on the Hudson River was indeed a new world for Sara for the next four years. She learned the Indian dialects fluently, and as an adult she acted on numerous occasions as interpreter in negoiations between Gov. Peter Stuyvesant and the Indians. Oratany, chief of the Hackingkesacky Indians, presented her with a large tract of land on the west side of the Hudson River for her services as an interpreter.[12] In 1673 a lot on Manhattan Island north of the windmill was granted to her husband, van Borsum, in recognition of her excellent services as an interpreter in the Treaty of 1664 between Gov. Stuyvesant and the tribal chieftans of the Esopus, Wrappingers, Agh-in-sack, Long Island, and Staten Island tribes.

She was designated as one of the "good women" of New Amsterdam and was asked to arbitrate a case out of court in September 1662. She refused to have anything to do with the case as she would not be opposed to either one party or the other.

Sara, of Norweigan ancestry, married Dr. Hans Kierstede, the first practicing physician of New Amsterdam, who was of German descent. A wedding party was given in their honor by her mother, Anneke Jans, and her step-father, Dominie Bogardus. Sara was named as the wife of Hans Kierstede in her mother's will in 1663.[13]

Sara Roelofs died testate. In her will, dated 29 July 1693 and proved 21 October 1693, she named each of her three husbands and all of her children except Anna and Jacob. To her son Lucas she bequeathed her Indian, Ande. To her daughter Catherine she bequeathed two slaves, and to Blandina, Jochem, and Jacobus, she gave each a negro slave. She appointed her son-in-law, Johannes Kip, and her son, Lucas Kierstede, as managers of her daughter, Johannah van Borsum.[14] The names of Sara's children by Dr. Hans Kierstede and the baptismal date of each were recorded in the baptismal records of the Reformed Dutch Church in New York City.[15]

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

He [Laurens Duyts] married Ytie Jansen. By her he had three children: a daughter, Margariet, who was baptized on December 23, 1639, the sponsors being Gerrit Jansen of Oldenburg (perhaps he was Ytie's brother), Teuntje Joris and Tyntje Martens... (Scandinavian Immigrants in New York 1630-1674 by John O. Evjen, 1916, p. 193.)

Before me, Cornelis van Tienhoven, secretary in New Netherland, appeared Gerrit Jansen from Oldenburg, who in the presence of the undersigned witnesses acknowledges, as he does hereby acknowledge, that he is well and truly indebted to Barent Dircksen...

Ytie Jansen was cited as the wife of Laurens Duyts when the latter was banished from New Netherland 25 November 1658 by an order pronounced by Gov. Stuyvesant.[1] She was named as the mother of Duyts' children, Margariet, Jan, and Hans, by John O. Evjen, Ph.D., in his study of the original Dutch records of New Amsterdam.[2]

Gerrit Jansen of Oldenburg was probably a brother of Ytie Jansen.[3] He served as a witness at the baptism of Margariet 23 December 1639,[4] and in February 1640 Laurens Duyts signed his name as security for Gerrit Jansen on a promissory note.[5]

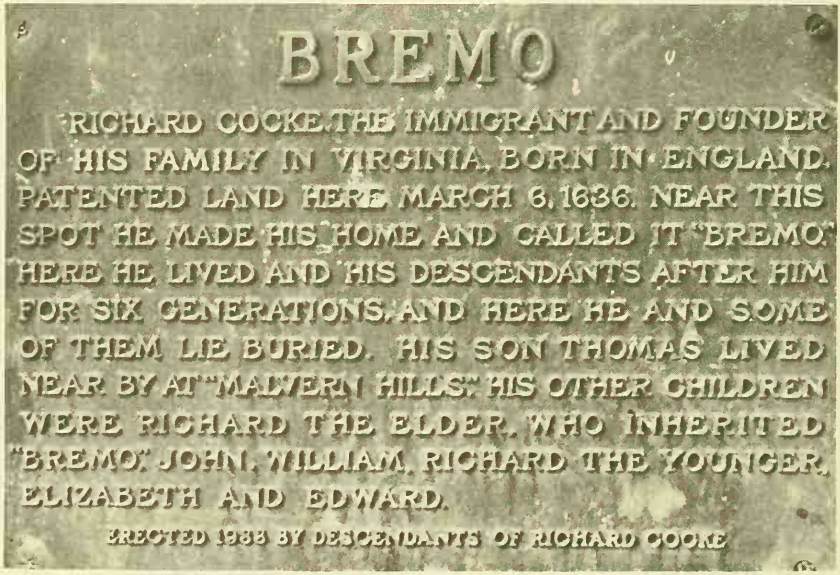
The inscription honoring the Rev. Philip Edelen, taken from a rubbing of the original plaque in St. Mary's Church, Denham, Buckinghamshire, England, is mounted on the south wall beneath the portraiture of the Rev. Edelen.



Richard Cocke (d. 1665) expressed a desire in his will "to be Interred in my Orchard near my first Wife." The graveyard at Bremo, located about 16 miles southeast of Richmond, Virginia, Route 5, on Curles Neck Farm, is considered as one of the oldest, if not the oldest, private burying ground in Virginia which is recognizable. This plaque was placed on the stone wall surrounding the cemetery in 1933.

Reverend Philip Edelen, 1598-1656

The portraiture of the Rev. Philip Edelen in St. Mary's Church, Denham, Buckinghamshire, England, is engraved on a black stone fixed in the south wall to the right of the altar – a place of the highest honor. He is kneeling on a white cushion and his eyes are so arranged that he is gazing at the cross in the center of the Altar for all eternity.

A view of the kitchen fireplace in the John Alden house in Duxbury, Massachusetts. The wood in the walls of this portion of the house appears to be much older than the wood which was used in the other rooms of the house. The dimensions of this portion of the house correspond to the dimensions of the house built by John Alden at an earlier date nearby. The fireplace was built for six foot logs. Priscilla's mortar and pestle sit by the chimney corner near the ancient spit.

The south gable end of the eighty feet of roof of the house of Benjamin Lawrence and Elizabeth Talbot which is preserved in the attic of the Bridgman house in lower Anne Arundel County, Maryland. It was under this roof in 1684 that Quaker meetings were held in this house. It is therefore the only surviving structure in Anne Arundel County to have been the site of religious services as early as 1684.

Thomas Jenkins was listed as a yeoman in a conveyance of land dated 15 February 1719 in Charles County, Maryland, in which he and his wife, Ann, transferred the tract of land known as Pinner to their son-in-law, Edward Edelen, for the "love which they held for their daughter, Elizabeth Edelen." The estate of Pinner was acquired by Thomas Jenkins 20 November 1674.

Thomas Jenkins died testate. In his will, dated 1 November 1726 and proved 31 October 1727, he appointed his wife, Ann, and his son, George, as administrators of his estate. In his will he made bequests to his three sons and three daughters, to his wife, and to two grandchildren. His estate was settled 28 April 1731 by two of his sons, Edward and William, who were executors of the will of Ann Jenkins, deceased, who had been the executrix of the will of her husband, Thomas Jenkins. His home plantation of 150 acres of land called Lynfield was entailed after his wife's death to his son George and his heirs. As both Ann Jenkins and George Jenkins were deceased prior to 1731, the legacy was given to George's widow. Hardshift, 320 acres which Thomas Jenkins had acquired from Charles Pye, was equally divided between his sons Edward and William. The 100 acre tract of land known as St. Thomas was given to his daughter Ann Spalding. Thomas Jenkins named Edward, William, and George as his sons, and Ann Spalding, Elizabeth Edelen, and Mary Norris as his daughters.[1]

Elizabeth Jenkins married Moses Jones of Prince George's County and was left with six minor children at his death. They lived in Piscataway Parish in Prince George's County, Maryland, on the plantation called Thomas' Chance. According to the terms of her husband's will, Elizabeth was to have the use of a plantation during her widowhood.

Within the year following the death of Moses Jones, Elizabeth married Edward Edelen. Her two Edelen children, Sarah and James, received a part of her share of her father's estate.[2]

A brother-in-law of Elizabeth, Christopher Edelen, married her daughter, Jane Jones.

The children of Elizabeth Jenkins and her husband, Moses Jones, were named in their father's will in 1704 as John, Thomas, Notley, Jane, Anne, and Elizabeth.[3]

Katherine Johnson and her husband, Robert Holmes, live on in the writings of their son, the Rev. Obadiah Holmes of Newport County, Rhode Island. Obadiah wrote: "...but the most of their care was to instruct them [their children] in the fear of the Lord and to that end, but I, the most rebellious of them all did neither harken to their counsel nor to any instruction...I continued living in wickedness four or five years...and then began to bethink what counsel my dear parents had given me, many a time with tears and prayers; my rebellion to my honored parents then looked me in open face, and my dear mother being sick, it struck to me my disobedient acts, which forced me to confess the same to her..."[1] After the death of his mother he "fell to prayer and duties and became a pious man."[2]

Katherine preceeded Robert Holmes in death. The names of their children and the date of baptism of each were recorded in the parish registers at Didsbury and Stockport, England. In his will, Robert Holmes also named a son Joseph, and designated his wife's brother, Hugh Johnson, as one of his executors.

Dr. Hans Kierstede, an early practicing physician, apothecary, and surgeon in New Amsterdam, was in the service of the West India Company in New Netherland, 5 May 1638.[1] Ten years later "Hans Kierstede, surgeon, late in the service of the honorable company in New Netherland and now a free man," granted a power of attorney to Mr. Willem Turch, merchant, 28 August 1648 to collect the wages due to him from the West India Company as recorded in the Book of Monthly Wages No. F.[2]

There is evidence that he attempted to regain his position with the West India Company. Jehan Raye and two directors of the company wrote a letter 15 April 1650 to Gov. Peter Stuyvesant which reads in part: "A surgeon, Mr. Hans Kierstede troubles us a good deal; he tells us that Jacob Molenaer, who now serves the Company as surgeon, is inclined to leave our service, and as he, Kierstede, has also served the Company a long time, and as far as we know, faithfully, we are willing that you should listen to his requests, and if in your opinion his services are required by the Company, he may take the place as surgeon."

An estimate of the worth of Dr. Hans Kierstede came from Gov. Peter Stuyvesant in a letter dated 27 August 1663. During the Esopus campaign, Capt. Creiger requested that Dr. Kierstede be sent to minister to the wounded soldiers. Gov. Stuyvesant wrote in reply: "We understand the necessity of a good surgeon perfectly well, but you know as well as we, how difficult it is to obtain one. Master Hans is a burgher, and besides cannot be spared here without detriment to the whole place and all the inhabitants."

Dr. Hans Kierstede was one of the signers 5 September 1664 of the "Remonstrance" to the Director General, advising that New Netherland be surrendered to the English.

He was a frequent witness in court and testified as to the severity of knife and sword wounds which had been inflicted by those on trial. Kierstede deposed 17 March 1644 before Cornelis van Tienhoven, secretary of New Netherland, that Capt. John Underhill and his cronies invaded the privacy of a dinner party of which he and his wife, Sara, his mother-in-law, Anneke Jans, and several others were guests. In his testimony, Kierstede deposed that he was then about thirty-two years of age.[3] A petition written by Dr. Hans Kierstede was read in court 15 May 1666.

Van Ruyven wrote a letter to Peter Stuyvesant from Manhatans 17 August 1666 and stated: "Since you left there have died here, to my knowledge, Abraham Klock and Hans Kierstede."[4]

Sara Roelofs, wife of Hans Kierstede, died testate. In her will, dated 29 July 1693, she named her deceased husband, Hans Kierstede, and each of their children except Anna and Jacob.[5]

Dr. Hans Kierstede died intestate. The names of his children and the date of baptism of each were recorded in the baptismal records of the Reformed Dutch Church in New York City.[6]

Dr. Jacobus Kierstede was the second generation of chirurgeons or surgeons in the Kierstede family in New York City.

His marriage intention to wed Ann Holmes was recorded 22 May 1691 in the register of the Reformed Dutch Church in Flatbush, Long Island, New York.

In transactions of land, Jacobus Kierstede of Flatlands exchanged land with Nicholas Stillwell of Gravesend 2 May 1692. Jacobus Kierstede and Joris Rapple of New York City, with consent of their wives, Anna Kierstede and Catharyn Rapple, sold Lot No. 17, a tract of 15 acres of land in Gravesend, to Capt. John van Dykhuysen of Flatlands, 5 April 1698.

Dr. Jacobus Kierstede and his wife died intestate prior to 9 January 1702. On that date letters of administration were granted to Kierstede's brother-in-law, William Teller. The minor sons of Dr. Kierstede listed by Teller were Hans, aged ten; Samuel, aged seven; and Johannes, aged three.[7] The baptismal records of all of the children of Jacobus Kierstede and his wife, Ann Holmes, are extant in the Collegiate Church in New York City except that of their eldest son, Hans.[8]

19 Johannes Kierstede, bap. 14 Apr. 1723; d. Aug. 1751

Samuel Kierstede and his two brothers were orphaned by the deaths of their parents prior to 9 January 1702. The administrator of the estate of Dr. Jacobus Kierstede, William Teller, was Samuel's uncle by marriage, the husband of Rachel Kierstede. William Teller named but three heirs of Dr. Jacobus Kierstede, namely: Hans Kierstede, aged ten; Samuel Kierstede, aged seven; and Jacobus Kierstede, aged three.[9] The other brothers and sisters of Samuel were not named in the settlement as they all died young, prior to 1702.

Samuel and his brother, Jacobus, moved from New York City and settled on Staten Island in Richmond County. Samuel was a shoemaker by trade.

He and his wife, Lydia Dey, were cited as ouders, or parents, in the baptismal records of their three children, Samuel, Johannes, and Lydia, which were recorded in the church registers of the Reformed Dutch Church at Port Richmond on Staten Island, New York.[10]

Samuel Kierstede died intestate in Richmond County. He was in debt as letters of administration for the settlement of his estate were granted 5 June 1733 by William Cosby, Captain-General and Governor, to James Haywood of the West Precinct of Richmond County. Haywood was described as Kierstede's principal creditor.[11]

Lydia Kierstede was born and reared on Staten Island, New York. This information was written 20 March 1850 by her grandson, Daniel Hayden, to Peyton Randolph Hayden, another grandson. She and her husband, William Hayden, moved to Morris County, New Jersey, shortly after their marriage and settled in Morristown where they reared their family. They subsequently moved to Hampshire County, Virginia, now West Virginia.[12]

The baptismal records of John, Stephen, Enoch, Noah, Hosea, and Charlotte, children of Lydia Kierstede and William Hayden, were recorded in the Parish Register of Christ Church at Shrewsbury, New Jersey.[13] The names of their eleven children were included in a letter written by Daniel Hayden.[14]

PETITION WRITTEN BY DR. HANS KIERSTEDE
The Records of New Amsterdam from 1653 to 1674, vol. 6, 1897, pp. 8-10

Minutes of the Court of Burgomasters and Schepens, May 8, 1666 to Sept. 5, 1673, Inclusive.

To the W: Mr Maior and Aldermen in N. Yorck Citte on the Island Manhattans in America.

Hans Kierstede with due reverence makes known, that he, the petitioner, appeared on the 20/30 Sept. 1664 in the Audience Chamber of Burgomasters and Schepens against Johannes Schevelburgh and Laurens de Sille producing a certain petition and a marginal order thereon, dated 17 June Stilo novo, 1664. The petition set forth, whereas the requirant and pltf. was afraid, that the goods, effects, actions and credits of Jan Sluyter and Casper ter Smitten, merchants at Haerlem, insolvents, remaining in the estate of Hendrick van der Wallen may thro' these and other means be conveyed away and alienated, notwithstanding attachment was declared valid thereupon; he requests at the end thereof, that for the protection of his, the petitioners, arrears it may be ordered, that sufficient may be sequestrated from the effects of the above named Jan Sluyter and ter Smitten remaining in the estate of Hendrick vander Wallen and placed in the safe keeping of a faithful person. Lourens de Sille, deft., also appearing promises to detain him by whatever effects of aforesaid Sluyter and ter Smitten he may have, from which the petitioner shall obtain his pay free of costs and damage, deft. offering to enter security therefor; in consequence hereof deft. is ordered by the Burgomasters and Schepens aforesaid to perform his offer. More fully expressed in Appendix No. 1. Petitioner again appears on the 11th of Octob. 1664 in the Honourable Court of said Burgomasters and Schepens to state, that Johannes Schevelburgh and Lauren de Sille could not give any security pursuant to the decree dated 20/30 Sept. 1664, Appendix No. 1, but offer to sequestrate so much property as will save the requirant in this action and claim, which he has against Jan Sluyter and Casper ter Smitten; he requests that such may have effect. The Honble. Burgomasters and Schepens granted the said request and decreed, that the effects should be placed in the hands of Mr Johannes van Brugh under inventory. More fully set forth in Appendix No. 2.

Now tis to be considered and is notorious that the goods conveyed away from time to time are fading, decaying, diminishing in vale and of less colour, and moreover the interest of the capital still runs on against the aforesaid Jan Sluyter and Casper ter Smitten, which tends to the evident damage of the aforesaid persons and in this respect the requirant remains and is obstructed in the use of his money, his good right reserved in his proof alone remaining to him; and in case of agreement nothing is done, nor is any thing sought to be done with the other creditors of the aforesaid Sluyter and ter Smitten in Holland, especially as the requirant is sufficiently well aware, that they can be effectually paid their due and protected from loss out of the personal effects of the above mentioned Sluyter and ter Smitten. The requirant, therefore considers it (with respect) to be the most useful plan, as is to be concluded from the foregoing deduction, to stay the loss and interest which said Sluyter and ter Smitten have suffered and will yet suffer thereby, also the frustrating of the employment of the money of requirant, that this Honor^{ble} Court, for good considerations and the case being set before them as related, shall please to order, authorize and appoint two honest men conversant herein, to appraise and value the goods attached under Johannes van Brugh as to their true value in Holland currency between merchant and merchant independent of all loss and damages; which authorized and appointed men then pursuant and according to their power (after previous estimation as aforesaid) shall pay the requirant from the attached goods the value and equivalent of the capital and the interest up to the effectual payment inclusive justly due to the requirant, on a/c of disbursed monies, by aforesaid Jan Sluyter and Casper ter Smitten, with offer to grant act and receipt therefore in the best form as to that appertains. And in case the requirants attornies in Holland are paid actually the capital and interest by the above named Jan Sluyter and Casper ter Smitten, he is content to give sufficient security here to restore and deliver up the received effects or their equivalent, whenever sufficiently ample information of the fact shall come from Holland.

Awaiting hereupon this W. Courts favorable marginal order (Apostille) seeing, that Laurens de Sille, according to his quality, manifests his consent to the preceding deduction: During which I remain

Hon^{ble} Gentlemen Your Humble Servant

Hans Kierstede

15 May 1666

The above petition being read and considered by the W. Court is apostilled as follows:—Fiat Quad Petitur, and Sieurs Christoffel Hooghlant and Isaacq Bedloo are admitted and authorized by the W. Court to appraise the aforesaid goods. Endorsed. Petition for M^{r} Hans Kierstede.

Jane Pleasants, wife of John Pleasants, was zealous for the cause of Truth and had a Gift in the ministry which was very acceptable to Friends and particularly serviceable at that early time in a wilderness country, the good effect thereof was very visable in the place where she lived for a long time and when her ability of Body would not admit her to Ride alone which was for several years before her death she used to ride behind one of her servants and so continued to visit Friends and attend meetings to near the last period of her time. She survived her worthy husband about nine or ten years and then departed this life in a good old age in the year 1708, and was buryed in Friends Burying Ground near Curles Meeting House in the presence of a numerous Assembly of Friends and neighbors.

He was in possession of a tract of land 5 April 1666 which was located on the north side of Muddy Creek in Accomack County.[1]

He transported his family from Accomack County into the Province of Maryland and settled in Somerset County. He proved his rights to 200 acres of land 16 March 1670 and received a patent.[2] He proved his rights for 500 acres of land 26 September 1674 in Calvert County, Maryland, for transporting his family into the Province.[3] This patent for The Deserts in Calvert County was shared jointly by Nathaniel and Samuel Ashcomb for in his will, dated 25 March 1687, Nathaniel Ashcomb willed his portion of The Deserts to his son Nathaniel and stated that the tract of land had been taken together with his brother Samuel and Benjamin Lawrence.[4]

Benjamin Lawrence, Jr., gentleman, of The Deserts in Calvert County, Maryland, was assigned a tract of 115 acres of land on West River 10 September 1677 by William Richardson. This land called Benjamin's Fortune adjoined the Talbot, Ewen, and Battee plantations at West River.[6]

He was active in the Quaker movement in Maryland. With other members of the Society of Friends, he advocated in a letter dated 4 March 1679 the principle of arbitration. He was active in assisting in the construction of the Patuxent Meeting House in 1681, and in 1684 the West River Meeting was held in his home, Ewen upon Ewenton. Known today as Cedar Park, his house is credited with being the oldest surviving structure in Anne Arundel County to have been the site of religious services.[7]

He was appointed 6 November 1683 as one of the commissioners to lay out ports and towns in Anne Arundel County.[8]

Benjamin Lawrence, Jr., died testate. His dying testimony was read 17 April 1685 at the West River Meeting and was recorded in the "Thomas Book." Mordecai McKinney immigrated to New Jersey prior to his marriage to Mary Sebring. In 1741 Mordecai McKinney, William McKinney and Daniel Sebring were subject to jury duty as freeholders in Readington Township in Hunterdon County, New Jersey.[1] Mordecai ran an account with the Janeway Store, in what is now Bound Brook, from June 1735 through August 1741. He purchased land from Andrew Johnston in the Peapack area in 1745 and another tract of land from Johnston's brother, John.[2] In 1759 Mordecai wrote in his will that he was a resident of Lebanon Township of Hunterdon County, New Jersey.

Mordecai and his wife, Mary, stood as witnesses at a baptismal service in Readington in July 1742. Their children, John, William, Daniel, Jacob, and Ann, were baptized in the Dutch Reformed Church at Raritan, New Jersey, and their son, Mordecai, was baptized in the Dutch Reformed Church at Harlingen.

Mordecai McKinney died testate. In his will, dated 17 November 1759 and proved 5 July 1760, he named his wife and each of his children; his grandson, Mordecai, a son of Daniel; and his grandchildren, Abraham, Ann, Mordecai, and Mary, the children of William McKinney.[3]

9 Jane McKinney

Jacob McKinney was baptized 5 April 1719 at Raritan, Somerset County, New Jersey, a son of Mordecai McKinney and his wife, Mary Sebring.

Jacob and his brothers, David and Mordecai, moved to Pennsylvania and settled in the area of Northumberland County.[4] Jacob subsequently resided in Rowan County, North Carolina, at least during the 1750's, in the county in which his brother, John McKinney, had settled. In September 1753 Jacob served as security for Benjamin Rounsvill at the time the latter petitioned for a public ferry.[5] Jacob proved the will of John Garrett in Rowan County in October 1757.[6]

Subsequently Jacob re-joined other members of his family in Pennsylvania. Jacob was mentioned in a memorial letter which was signed by his brother, Mordecai McKinney, in 1778. The letter, written at West Branch, Muncy, Pennsylvania, was a memorial pertaining to a former request for militia to put down an Indian uprising.[7]

Jacob McKinney, a Revolutionary War soldier, was killed 28 October 1776 at the Battle of White Plains, New York. He was among the 300 men who died in defense of Chatteron Hill, a strategic point on the Bronx River.

Jacob McKinney has been assigned as the father of Jane McKinney as the children of his brothers have all been accounted for in wills and other records.

A descendant of Mordecai McKinney and his wife, Mary Sebring, wrote in a letter that Jacob McKinney married Elizabeth Bodine.[8]

12 George Huntsman, d. 1816
13 Benjamin Huntsman, b. 15 Aug. 1788; d. 28 Jan. 1870
14 Sally Huntsman

Jane McKinney received 50 acres of land on Hanging Fork Creek in Lincoln County, Kentucky, as her dower. After her death, her heirs were each entitled to an equal share.[9]

Jane was styled as Pennsylvania Dutch by some of her descendants, thus indicating the probable place of her birth.

Jane McKinney has been assigned as a daughter of Jacob McKinney as the children of Mordecai McKinney's other sons are known. That she was a granddaughter of Mordecai McKinney was proved by the statement of her grandson, George Huntsman, who stated that he was a third cousin of Dorcas McKinney. She, Dorcas McKinney, was a great, great granddaughter of Mordecai McKinney.

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

William and Mary McMurry were born in Northern Ireland about 1725-1729. They migrated to Virginia about 1750, and it is uncertain whether they were married in Ireland, or in America. William was on the records of Augusta County, Virginia, November 28, 1751. He petitioned for pay for provisions taken by John Madison "With a company of men on their march to the Shawnees," dated 15 March 1758. On 19 November 1766, William was appointed "to help Joseph Carlenter, Sr., and Wm. Whooley, who were appointed road supervisors from Ft. Defiance to Handley's Mill. He was discharged from the office of "Survey of the Road," in Botetourt County, 10 April 1771. 14 May 1771, he was appointed to "continue overseer of the Road he formerly was."

William McMurry was listed in Captain Frazier's Company of Militia in 1773. November 12, 1779, he was on Jury Duty in Botetourt Co., Virginia. His name appears in Pierce's Register, as receiving pay for supplies, at the end of the Revolutionary War, 1781, by Warrant No. 67844. In August, 1783, William and Thomas McMurry were in Captain Baird's Company of the 27th District of Virginia Militia. According to the militia records, he owned "8 horses, 22 cattle, and 1 slave."

William McMurry and John Handley held adjoining properties on Cow Pasture River in 1765. John McMurry owned 100 acres at Devil's Den, on the North Fork of the Roanoke River in 1783. This was probably the oldest son. Thomas McMurry may have been a brother of William, or he may have been the third son, aged 17 in 1782.

Children The NSDAR records list six children for William and Mary:—

John McMurry, born 10/27/1752, married Elizabeth Bowen, ca. 1785

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

John Merryman, an assignee of James Merryman, patented 150 acres of land adjoining Weyanoke in Charles City County, Virginia, 10 May 1638. (Virginia Patents, Book 1, pt. 2, p. 549, Virginia State Library , Richmond, VA.) John purchased 150 acres of land from Henry Soane 5 December 1656. (Henrico Co. Deeds, Wills, Etc., Book 1, p. 9). In 1634 Cornelius Starman, a mariner from Rotterdam, constituted John Merryman as his lawful attorney, and in August 1647 Mr. John Merryman was designated as lawful attorney for Cornelius Jans Braser, also a mariner from Rotterdam, to collect the latter's debts. (William and Mary College Quarterly, vol. 23 (1), p. 274.)

A survey was made for John Merryman, Jr., 4 May 1663 for "300 acres of land on the east side of Chicahominy River whereof 150 acres purchased by my father John Merriman deceased of Henry Soane..." (Henrico Co. Deeds, Wills, Etc., Book 1, p. 23.) "This John Merryman was probably the father or grandfather of the John Merryman of Goochland County who patented 400 acres of land in 1728, and 400 acres of land in 1730." (William and Mary College Quarterly, vol. 8 (2), p. 134.)

John Merryman and his wife, Elizabeth Pleasants, lived in Henrico County, Virginia, in the area that is presently called Powhatan County. The area evolved into Goochland County in 1727 and into Cumberland County in 1749. John patented 400 acres of land in Goochland County lying on Muddy Creek on the south side of the James River 28 September 1730, and another 400 acres of land in the same locality 26 June 1731.[1]

In a conveyance of land dated 28 November 1753 John Merryman of Cumberland County conveyed 200 acres of land to Littleberry Mosby. This tract of land was identified as one-half of the 400 acres of land granted to John Merryman 28 September 1730 on the south side of Muddy Creek, and the plantation where Thomas Merryman recently dwelt.[2] Thomas Merryman transferred the other one-half of the 400 acre tract of land granted by patent 28 September 1730 on Muddy Creek in a conveyance dated 31 August 1757. John and Elizabeth Merryman witnessed the deed.[3]

In a deed dated 19 December 1767 John Merryman, Sr., and his wife, Elizabeth, conveyed land on both sides of Muddy Creek to John Merryman the younger. This tract of land adjoined the land of Jesse Merryman and was part of a patent granted to John Merryman the elder.[4] In an indenture dated 27 August 1770 this land was sold by the executors of John Merryman, deceased, it being a part of a greater tract conveyed to the said John Merryman by his father John Merryman 19 December 1767. The indenture dated 19 December 1767 was seemingly the last deed signed by John Merryman and his wife Elizabeth.

In the vestry records of Southam Parish, which is now located in Powhatan County, Virginia, it was recorded in July 1751 that John Merryman, Thomas Walton, and Thomas Merryman were ordered by the court to procession all the lands between Muddy Creek, Barnard's Road, Hugh Pruets Path and the Chappel Road beginning 11 November 1751. John Merryman, Richard Murrey, and Thomas Walton certified 19 April 1756 that they had processioned the same area. John Merryman was again among those ordered to procession 23 July 1763.[5]

In August 1759 an order was issued in the Cumberland County Court which allowed John Rutherford to keep an ordinary the following year in the Merryman home. Prior to this time John Rutherford had married Mary Merryman.

John Merryman died intestate. The name of the wife of John Merryman and their children, John, Thomas, Elizabeth, Agnes, Jesse, and Judith, were gleaned from marriage bonds and consents,[6] and deeds in Goochland and Cumberland counties, Virginia. Mary Merryman was also a daughter of John Merryman and Elizabeth Pleasants as their family was the only Merryman family living in Goochland and Cumberland counties. A Rutherford family tree compiled by her great grandson stated that John Rutherford married a Miss Merryman. The wife of John Rutherford was named Mary,[7] and at least two of her grandsons were named Merriman.

Mary Merryman was born in the area known today as Powhatan County, Virginia, which was designated as Goochland County in the 1730's. John Merryman was the only head of household by the name of Merryman in Goochland County.

Mary and her husband, John Rutherford, remained in the area of Goochland which became Cumberland County, Virginia. In 1759 they probably resided in the home of her father as John Rutherford was licensed to keep an ordinary at Merrymans.

The family moved to southwest Virginia and settled on Cripple Creek near Fort Chiswell in the 1770's. From Wythe County, the family moved to Lincoln County, Kentucky, and settled near Stanford. It was certified in court 21 December 1791 that John Rutherford and his wife, Mary, conveyed a tract of land to Davis Thurman in Lincoln County.

Mary's great grandson, Albert McKinney Rutherford, compiled a list of the children of his great grandfather, John Rutherford, in 1906. He wrote that John Rutherford married Miss Merryman and their children were Joseph, Jesse, James, Susan, and Elizabeth. Sarah's marriage consent to Stephen Pemberton was signed by her father. Two of these children, James Rutherford and Sarah Pemberton, named sons Merriman in honor of their mother.

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

"During the seventeenth century some of the men living in our town [Dorking] were important in their day, or became so because of their achievements. One of them was William Mullins, a Pilgrim Father, whose family consisted of Alice his wife, their two sons and two daughters...That he was a Dissenter may account for the fact that his marriage is not found in the Parish Register, nor the baptism of his children. The name of Mullyn however does appear in the Parish Register in 1571 when in that year John Mullyn married Joane Bridger on 8th July. Most unfortunately, the Register is blank for the years 1572/1578 inclusive, that being the period when John and Joane Mullyns would be bringing up their infant family. However, by genealogical methods we find the pedigree overleaf is highly probable, and that John and Joane had at least three sons, William, John (who married three times) and Edward."

THE MULLINS FAMILY

1 William Mullins, probably a son of John Mullyn and Joan Bridger, b. about 1572 in England, probably Dorking, County Surrey; d. 21 February 1621, Plymouth, Massachusetts, bur. in sarcophagus on Burial Hill, Plymouth, Massachusetts.

2 William Mullins, d. 12 Feb. 1672
3 Sarah Mullins
4 Priscilla Mullins, b. 1603
5 Joseph Mullins, d. 1621

William Mullins, investor in the Mayflower Company, was the tenth signer of the Mayflower Compact. He sailed as a merchant adventurer and willed his stock of merchandise to the Mayflower Company when he knew his death was imminent.

In 1612 William Mullins purchased a house with one and one-half acres of land and outbuildings for £122 and a mortgage of £200 which he assumed at the time of the purchase. He sold this property in 1619 which was located at the present Nos. 58-61 West Street Dorking, County Surrey, England.[1]

His departure from England as a dissenter may have been linked with a warrant issued by the Dorking Privy Council 29 April 1616 whereby he was to appear before their Lordships. He appeared before the Council 1 May 1616 and was continued technically in their custody "untill by their Honours' order he was dismissed."

William Mullins died testate. In his will, which he dictated to Gov. Carver 21 February 1621 just prior to his death, he named his wife, Alice, his sons William and Joseph, his daughter, Priscilla, and made a bequest to his eldest daughter.[2] His will was carried to England aboard the returning Mayflower and was probated in County Surrey 23 July 1621. A commission to administer the estate was issued to "Sarah Blunden, formerly Mullins, natural and legitimate daughter of William Mullins, late of Dorking in the County of Surrey, but deceased in parts beyond the seas..."

12 Rebecca Alden, b. 1637
13 Priscilla Alden, b. 1639
14 Mary Alden, b. 1643
15 David Alden, b. 1646

Priscilla Mullins, a Mayflower passenger, immigrated with her parents to New Plymouth in 1620. She was the only member of the Mullins family who immigrated to survive the first winter in the settlement at New Plymouth, and hers was one of the first marriages solemnized in the colony. After moving with her husband and family to Duxbury about 1627, it was necessary for several years for the family to return to the fort at Plymouth during the winter months to insure their safety against the Indians.

The house in Duxbury attributed to be that in which Priscilla and John Alden lived is standing and is now an Alden museum.[3]

One of her descendants, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, immortalized Priscilla in "The Courtship of Miles Standish" when he said for her, "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?"

Priscilla Mullins and John Alden were the parents of eleven children,[4] ten of whom are listed by the General Society of Mayflower Descendants.[5] Her eleventh child may have been a son named Zachariah Alden.

In the month of July Anno Domini 1621; on the 23d day issued a commission to Sarah Blunden, formerly Mullins, natural and legitimate daughter of William Mullins, late of Dorking in the County of Surrey, but deceased in parts beyond the seas, seized etc. for administering the goodes, rights and credits of the said deceased, according to the tenor and effect of the will of the said deceased because in that will he named no executor. In due form etc. swears.

Translation from a Latin record:

In the survey of the Dorking Manor of 1622, William Mullins appears holding a tenement, with barn, garden, yard and other features, about one and one-half acres, between West Street and Back Lane. The holder was a man of some position. The property was sold in 1619 to Ephraim Bothell, with a charge unspecified still upon it, for £280. Just which party made the shrewd deal is a question unanswered, but William had apparently sold this holding just before sailing in the Mayflower for the Colonies, with his wife and son Joseph.

Henry Neale emigrated from England and settled in Braintree, Massachusetts, in 1639. He received a land grant for three heads 24 December 1639 and lived in Braintree continuously with the exception of a few years which his family spent in Providence, Rhode Island. His name does not appear in the Braintree records from 20 November 1657 until 8 August 1660.

Henry's request 6 December 1651 that the country highway be laid out along his planting field was granted by the selectmen.[1] The same highway was under discussion 4 July 1673 and alterations in the course of the road were considered. It was judged that the highway at Henry Neale's corner at the black stump should be wide enough that "one cart may pass well by another."[2]

Henry was designated as "goodman Neale" 25 February 1641. In 1687 he was cited as Henry Neale, Sr., and in the record of his death in the town clerk's office his name was recorded as Henry Neale, Sr., a sergeant.

He served as a selectman in 1678, 1683, and 1687.[3] He voted against allowing the Braintree committeemen to deal with the members of the committee from Boston to settle the dispute over the common lands. He was one of the selectmen who was given the authority 19 November 1687 to prosecute any person who was apprehended in cutting young trees from the commons. He was a member of the local militia or "Train Band."

He deposed in Magistrate Court 30 June 1654 that he was then about thirty-five years of age.[4]

Henry Neale died testate. In his will, dated 11 August 1688, he named his wife, Hannah, as executrix, and devised legacies to his children whom he named as follows: Samuel, Joseph, Benjamin, Henry, Abigail Stoll, Hannah Hayden the wife of Nehemiah Hayden, Mary Thayer, Ruth Thayer, Sarah Mansfield, and his unmarried daughters, Lydia, Rebecca, Deborah, Rachel, Elizabeth, and Joanna.[5] The tombstone of Henry Neale bears the inscription that he was the father of twenty-one children.[6] His will and the birth and death records in the Braintree register account for twenty of his twenty-one children. The date of death of his first wife, Martha, the date of his marriage to Hannah Pray, and the date of his death were also recorded in the town records by the town clerk.[7]

Hannah Neale was born, probably in Providence, Rhode Island, after her half-sister, Hannah Neale, was buried in Braintree, Massachusetts, 20 November 1657. Her father, Henry Neale, sold his house and land in Rhode Island in 1661,[8] but probably returned to the town of Braintree early in 1660 as his son, Joseph, was born in Braintree 8 August 1660.

Hannah was named as a daughter of Henry Neale and the wife of Nehemiah Hayden in her father's will.[9] Her marriage to Nehemiah was solemnized by Mr. Joseph Dudley in Braintree.[10]

She joined the church in the middle precinct of Braintree 30 January 1690 and Nehemiah joined 7 August 1694. They were both present at the ordination of the Rev. Samuel Niles.

The children, except Mary, of Hannah Neale and Nehemiah Hayden were named by their father in his will dated 6 January 1718. Mary was cited as their daughter and the dates of birth and death of their children were printed in The Hayden Family Magazine.[11]

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

In Stafford, England, lived John Offley and Margery, his wife, who were the parents of William Offley, twice Mayor of Stafford, who removed to Chester and was alderman of that city, 1517. He had issue by two marriages. His second wife was Elizabeth, the daughter of William Rogerson (who died 1519), an alderman of Chester. He had seven children. The eldest child, Robert Offley, removed to London and established himself in Grace Church Street as a Merchant of the Staple. He was the executor of his half brother, Sir Thomas Offley, Knt. Robert was buried 29 April 1596, and his wife, the widow of Nicholas Rose of London, was buried 8 October 1572. Their eldest son, Robert Offley, was a Turkey Merchant, residing in Grace Church Street. He married, 3 February 1588-89, Anne, the daughter of Sir Edward Osborne, Knt., who died in 1591, Lord Mayor of London, 1583, and of Anne, his wife, the daughter of Sir William Hewitt, Knt., also Lord Mayor of London. Anne Osborne's brother, Sir Hewitt Osborne, was the grandfather of the first Duke of Leeds. She was baptized 25 March 1570, and was buried, 14 January 1653-54, and her husband, Robert Offley, was buried 16 May 1625. They had six sons and as many daughters. THE OFFLEY FAMILY

1 John Offley, b. about 1450, probably in County Stafford, England.
Margery, m. John Offley, about 1475 in England.

2 William Offley

John Offley and his descendants were discussed at length in a manuscript which was written during the reign of James I. The manuscript was printed in its entirety in The Genealogist in 1903, and it was stated that nothing definite could be said of the author. In one passage the author wrote that John Offley's wife was "Margery, who after was married to one Dillarne...This Margery was Mother to W^{m} Offley, & Grandmother to S^{r}· Thomas Offley..."

A genealogical study of the descendants of John and Margery Offley was also published in The Genealogist which was well documented by the compilers, G. C. Bower and H. W. F. Harwood. These compilers attributed one son to John Offley based on the aforementioned manuscript, and the study dealt with the descendants of the twelve children of William Offley, son of John and Margery Offley.

John Offley was of Stafford, England, but due to the laws of primogeniture, a number of the younger sons of the family drifted to London to enter the trades, and became successful businessmen as Merchant Taylors of the Staple. Among the descendants of John Offley were his grandson, Sir Thomas Offley, Knt., Lord Mayor of London in 1556; Sir John Offley, Knt., high sheriff of Stafford in 1616; and Hugh Offley, Alderman of London and sheriff in 1588.

The Edelen family of the Province of Maryland, descendants of John and Margery Offley, were closely related to the Thorowgood family who settled in Virginia, for the Offley coat-of-arms was carved on the tomb of Sara (Offley) Thorowgood, wife of Adam Thorowgood, at Princess Anne, Virginia.

The arms assigned to the Offley family were: Argent on a cross pattie flory azure, a lion passant or, between four Cornish choughs ppr., beaks and legs, gules.

William Offley, sheriff of Stafford in 1517, was named as a son of John Offley in a manuscript on the Offley family written during the reign of James I, 1603-1625. A monument erected in St. Peter's Church in Chester, England, states that he was the father of twenty-six children.

According to the manuscript, William married secondly the widow of Alderman Rogerson of Chester. A William Rogerson died testate and his will, dated 18 April 1519 and proved 31 May 1519, contained a legacy to "my sonne Will'm Offeley" and "to my doughter Elizabeth his wif."

A portrait of William Offley hangs at Chester, England, and the accompanying inscription calls his first wife Elizabeth Dillon and his second wife Elizabeth Wright. His children as listed above were named in the manuscript and in the "Pedigree of Offley" which were printed in The Genealogist in London, England.[1]

He held the office of Alderman of London, and was sheriff in 1588. His brother, Sir Thomas Offley was Lord Mayor of London in 1556. Hugh Offley was granted arms and crest in 1588.

Hugh Offley died testate. His will, dated 14 May 1594, was proved 29 November 1594.[2] He was twice married and the names of his wives and the names of his children were published in The Genealogist in 1904. An Inquisition was taken at the Guildhall in London after the death of Hugh Offley, and an assessment was made of all the messuages and lands belonging to him and lying in the city of London. His estates were awarded to his eldest son, Thomas Offley. His estates passed successively into the hands of his grandson, Christopher Offley, Esq., of London, and then in 1633 to the latter's brother, Francis Offley.[3]

Thomas Offley, an agent of the English Merchants in Prussia, was living with his family in Elbing, Prussia, in 1611.

He evidently died intestate and the names of his wife and children were proved in other documents. An Inquisition made after his death, dated 11 February 1631 at the Guildhall, stated that Thomas Offley, Esq., died in London 23 August 1630; his widow, Anne, was living in London; and his son, Christopher, was judged twenty-six years of age. Christopher Offley, Esq., was named as the son and heir of Thomas Offley, deceased, 12 March 1643 at which time he granted to his brother, Francis, all the lands which he had received which had been found by Inquisition after the death of Hugh Offley, his grandfather, and Thomas Offley, his father.[4]

Thomas Offley's son, Hugh, was baptized at St. Andrew's Undershaft in London. Thomas Offley's son, Thomas, named his mother, Anne, executrix of his will, 12 December 1627. Thomas' three children who were born in Prussia, Francis, Anne, and Bridget, were naturalized in London 9 July 1631. Thomas' son, Justinian, named Christopher as his brother in his will 16 May 1629. Thomas Offley's daughter, Catherine, was named as his daughter in the Visitation of London in 1633 by her brother Francis Offley.

Daniel Page received 100 acres of land in Prince George's County, Maryland, called His Lordship's Kindness 30 July 1730 from John Hyde of London "for the lifetimes of Daniel Page, Mary his wife, and Elizabeth his daughter."[1] Daniel conveyed His Lordship's Kindness on Piscataway Creek "where I formerly dwelt" to his daughter, Elizabeth Morris, 5 March 1767.

Mary, Daniel's wife, may have been a daughter of Anthony Draine who died in Prince George's County, Maryland, in 1723.

Page was appointed as one of the guardians of his granddaughters, Eleanor and Henrietta Boone, in a guardian bond dated 24 June 1754 in Prince George's County.

Daniel Page contracted, 27 October 1742, to build a chapel of ease. He sold two acres of his land to the parishioners as the building site, and completed the chapel in August 1745.

Daniel Page died testate. In his will, dated 19 June 1765 and proved 23 February 1768, Daniel devised personalty to his wife, Mary. She renounced the will and stood by her thirds. Daniel named as his children Elizabeth Morris, Lucy Hodgkins, Mary Boone, Susannah Lanham, Rachel Hodgkins, and Mildred Berry, Daniel, George, and Anthony Draine Page.[2] Daniel Page, the executor, presented an inventory of his father's estate 22 July 1768.

Mary Page was named as Mary Boone, daughter of Daniel Page, in the latter's will dated 19 June 1765 in Prince George's County, Maryland.[3]

Mary Boone requested that a bill of sale be recorded 17 May 1771 in which she, the widow and relict of James Boone, deceased, purchased a negro girl from Henry Boone of Prince George's County, Maryland, for £30.[4]

Mary was left a widow with two small daughters in 1751. The estate of her husband, James Boone, deceased, was appraised 1 October 1751, and she presented the inventory to the court in March 1752. A final account of the estate was presented 28 November 1753 at which time she designated the heirs of James Boone, deceased, were Eleanor Boone, seven years of age, and Henrietta Boone, three years of age.[5]

3 Agnes Pleasants

Katherine Patras died in County Norfolk, England, and her will was proved in the Consistory Court in Norfolk. Sensing that she had but a short time to live and sensing the expediency of having a will, she signed her will 3 February 1558 and died in less than ten days, according to the legal year then in vogue. In actuality she died in 1559.

Katherine owned property in her own right for she devised her house to her son Robert at age twenty-one with the provision that her husband be entitled to dwell in the main house during his lifetime and Robert, upon attainment of legal age, was to live in the tenement so long as William Pleasants should live.

She willed that her husband and her son should be responsible for payment of 20 shillings yearly to her daughter Agnes up to the sum of £5, and if Agnes should die before she attained the age of twenty-one years, then the said £5 was willed by Katherine to her brother, Robert Putrasse.

Thus the only record we have of Katherine Pleasants establishes her maiden name, the name of her husband, the names of her two children, the name of her brother, the time of her death, and the locale in which she lived.[1]

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Mr. Noel Currer-Briggs, a British genealogist, was engaged in 1972 by The Peyton Society of Virginia to research the identity of Henry Peyton (1590-1656) of Lincoln's Inn, ancestor of the Peytons of Westmoreland County, Virginia. His tentative chart is as follows:

1. Sir Thomas Peyton, Kt., (1416-1484) m. (2) Margaret Francis
2. Francis Peyton, of Bury St. Edmunds (d. 1529)
3. Thomas Peyton, of Sydnall Grange (d. 1555), Tardebigge, Worcestershire
4. Thomas Peyton (d. 1568)
5. Richard Peyton, of Hinton-on-the-Green, Gloucestershire (living 1568)
6. Henry Peyton, of Hinton (d. 1622)
7. Henry Peyton (1590-1656)
8. Henry Peyton (1630-1659), to Westmoreland Co., Va., prior to 1656

"Henry Peyton and Philip Peyton were descendants of Peytons [of Cambridge and Suffolk] who had moved westward to Warwickshire, Gloucestershire, and Worcestershire." (The Peytons of Virginia, 1976, pp. 58, 59, 14.)

Henry Peyton (1630-1659) emigrated from London, England, to Westmoreland County, Virginia, and was granted land in 1656.

In 1665 Philip Peyton (1645-1730) emigrated from County Gloucester, England, and settled among the descendants of Henry Peyton in Stafford County, Virginia. It is logical to assume that these two families were in some way closely related.

(Note: For identification of nos. 1, 7, and 8, cited above under Possible Background Information, see Virginia Genealogies, by Rev. Horace E. Hayden, 1891, no. 28, p. 463; no. 19, p. 480; and no. 24, p. 490.)

Thomas Peyton was listed by Smyth in 1608 as a weaver in the hamlet of Througham in Men and Armour for Gloucestershire, 1608. He was cited as then about twenty years of age.[1]

The first Peyton records recorded in the Bisley parish registers were recorded about 1600. A deposition made by a John Peyton of Cowley in Gloucester 14 January 1606 stated he was thirty-four years of age and was born at Horsley. Prior to his deposition he had lived at Cowley for three months, and at Avening for the previous six months. This John Peyton was not old enough to be the father of Thomas Peyton but was undoubtedly related to him. The places of residence given by John in his deposition may indicate that Thomas Peyton may also have been born at Horsley. The two men may have been brothers as brothers frequently moved together to new locations.

The marriage record of Thomas Peyton shows that he married Ane͂ Gree͂. The use of the circumflex would indicate some tone or quality of pronunciation of the name which would probably be Anne Green.[2]

Thomas Peyton died intestate. The record of his marriage, the names of his children and the baptismal date of each, the dates of burial of Thomas and two of his children were recorded in the parish registers at Bisley, England.[3]

Philip Peyton filed a marriage allegation 12 September 1638 in Bisley, County Gloucester, England. In the allegation he designated he was a resident of Bisley and Elizabeth was a resident of Cirencester. His brother, Thomas Peyton, then aged thirty, served as bondsman.[4] Philip and Elizabeth were married the following day.[5]

Philip Peyton died testate. In his will, dated 9 January 1668 at Bisley, he named his sons, Philip and Charles; his daughters, Mary, Elizabeth, Sarah, Anne, and Deborah; his brother, Thomas Peyton; and his brother-in-law, Richard Smith. He bequeathed to his wife all the "goods which she brought with her."[6] The children of Philip Peyton were baptized in All Saints Church at Bisley. The name and date of baptism of each of his children except Philip were recorded in the parish register at Bisley.[7] The baptismal records of May through July 1644 are missing from the registers. His son, Philip, was born in or about 1645, as determined from the record dated 30 August 1665 which showed his period of indenture to be four years.[8]

Philip Peyton was one of the indentured servants who was dispatched from Bristol 30 August or 1 September 1665 by Thomas White. His term of indenture was designated as four years. As the rules at that time dictated an indentured servant should serve until the completion of his twenty-fourth year of age it is thus ascertainable that Philip was born about 1645.[9]

Philip Peyton arrived in Virginia in 1665 and may have served his period of indenture in Northumberland County. In the case of Peyton vs. Nelines 13 October 1670 in the general court at James City, the verdict rendered previously by a jury in Northumberland County, 20 July 1670, was upheld and Nelines was ordered to pay the cost of the appeal.[10] This record negates the statement made by Hayden in Virginia Genealogies that Philip was born in 1659[11] for at that time Philip would not have been of age.

Land records show that Philip Peyton subsequently resided in Stafford County, Virginia. In a conveyance of land dated 31 May 1679, Philip and his wife, Mary, transferred 50 acres of land to Paul Littlefield. This was a part of the same land which had earlier been transferred from William Bunch to Philip Peyton and lay at the head of a branch on the east side of Horse Road up from Philip Peyton's plantation.[12] Twenty-one years later, 11 September 1700, Philip and his wife, Mary, conveyed a tract of land lying at the head of Potomac Run in Stafford County to John Trammill.[13]

Philip Peyton appeared in court in the case of Waugh vs. Downing 14 July 1692. Waugh was ordered to pay Peyton four hundred forty pounds of tobacco, and Downing was ordered to pay Peyton four hundred pounds of tobacco for his attendance in court.[14]

In a deed of gift 24 June 1705 Philip Peyton conveyed a tract of 50 acres of land to Valentine Peyton with entail to the latter's male heirs forever. It was stated in the deed, should there be default in the male heirs of the first son, then the land should be inherited by the second son, and so on through the sixth son and every other son or sons of the said Valentine Peyton. In the memorandum following the signatures to the deed it was clearly stated that the land was to be delivered to Valentine Peyton from Philip Peyton. The clerk's error in recording the acknowledgment 13 September 1705 on the following page in the deed book stating that Philip Peyton in person acknowledged this deed of gift to his son "Philip Peyton" does not negate the true intent of the deed which was to transfer the land to his son, Valentine Peyton.[15]

Philip Peyton died testate. Will Book K, in which his will and the settlement of his estate were recorded, has been lost. According to the General Index of Deeds, Deeds of Trust, and Release Deeds and Wills for Stafford County, Philip Peyton and Charles Peyton were indexed as devisees to the Peyton estate indicating they were the sons of Philip Peyton, deceased.[16] The bishop's transcripts of Hinton-on-the-Green, County Gloucester, England, show that Susanna, daughter of Philip and Mary Peyton, was baptized 20 October 1686.[17] Valentine was proved as a son in the deed of gift to "Valentine Peyton his heirs...expressed in the Blood & Posterity of the said Philip Peyton."[18]

Valentine Peyton of Stafford County, Virginia, was proved as a son of Philip Peyton of Stafford County in a deed of gift dated 14 June 1705 in which Philip delivered possession of 50 acres of land to Valentine and entailed the ownership of the said 50 acres of land to his "blood and posterity" through Valentine Peyton. It was further stated in the deed that the tract of land was to be entailed to the heirs of the body of Valentine Peyton "lawfully to be begotten,"[19] which in effect would mean that on that date, 14 June 1705, Valentine had no male heirs.

On 22 May 1749 Valentine Peyton was designated as a vestryman in Overwharton Parish, Stafford County, Virginia.[20]

Valentine Peyton died intestate and left no known record of the names of his children. Philip, Henry, John, and William Peyton were assigned as sons of Valentine Peyton based on evidence gleaned from the testimony in the Draper Papers submitted in 1852 by Guffey Peyton who was born 29 August 1796;[21] a letter written by Ephraim G. Peyton;[22] military records of Revolutionary soldiers from Amherst County, Virginia;[23] the deposition made by Henry Peyton, Jr., 28 October 1833 in his pension application;[24] the names of Peytons on the Virginia tax lists in Amherst County in 1783 and 1785; conveyances of land made by the Peytons in Amherst County from 1768 through 1809; and the fact that Philip Peyton named his first born son Valentine Peyton.[25]

Philip Peyton was living in Stafford County, Virginia, in 1748; in Culpeper County, Virginia, in 1763; on Horsley Creek in Amherst County, Virginia, from 4 April 1768 through 25 August 1785; and in Lincoln County, Kentucky, by 10 March 1786 through 13 April 1795.

In a petition read in the General Assembly of Virginia 22 October 1754 it was reported that Philip Peyton had witnessed for the king in Spotsylvania County. Philip served as a patriot during the Revolutionary War as he was appointed 3 March 1777 to keep a road in repair in Amherst County, Virginia.[26]

Philip Peyton died intestate. The name of his wife, the date of his marriage, and the date of birth of his son, Valentine, were recorded in the Overwharton Parish Register in Stafford County, Virginia. Philip signed marriage consents for his son, Daniel, in Amherst County, Virginia,[27] and for his daughters Hannah, Karenhappuch, Dosha, and Barshabe in Lincoln County, Kentucky.[28] He was designated as Philip Peyton, Sr., in a deed of trust in 1769.[29]

Daniel Peyton moved with his father from Culpeper County, Virginia, to the southwest section of Amherst County before 4 April 1768.[30] The marriage records of Amherst County show that he obtained a consent to marry Nancy Roach, a daughter of Ashcraft Roach, in August 1784. As he obtained a consent 24 August 1785 to marry Mary Roach, also a daughter of Ashcraft Roach, it is doubtful that he married Nancy. Subsequent to their marriage, Daniel and Mary moved to Lincoln County, Kentucky, and were settled near Stanford in 1787.

He was a resident of Kentucky as late as 19 July 1819.[31] Daniel was listed on the Kentucky tax list in Lincoln County from 1794 to 1801; in Montgomery County from 1797 through 1806; and he then moved to Floyd, now Morgan County, Kentucky. Daniel purchased a tract of land in Lincoln County lying on the waters of the Hanging Fork Creek of Dicks River 17 June 1794, and he and his wife Mary, of Clark County, Kentucky, conveyed this tract of land 12 September 1799 to Jesse Carter of Lincoln County.[32]

Maj. Daniel Peyton served his country in military service for more than a quarter of a century. He served in the Revolutionary War from Amherst County, Virginia.[33] In Lincoln County, Kentucky, Peyton served in the militia under Col. Benjamin Logan in 1787, and under Col. William Whitley in 1793.[34] He was commissioned as a captain of the 21st Regiment of Militia in Montgomery County in 1798, and was commissioned as a major of the 1st Battalion, 37th Regiment, in Shelby County, Kentucky, 15 June 1803.[35] He was cited as Maj. Daniel Peyton in his death notice which was published in Jackson County, Alabama.[36]

Daniel served many years in public offices. In Floyd County, Kentucky, he was appointed justice of peace in 1808, an election judge in 1809, and a commissioner to procession approximately 20,000 acres of land in 1816. He was one of the commissioners appointed 4 February 1817 to lay out a turnpike from Mt. Sterling to the state line via Prestonsburg. He was appointed justice of peace in Jackson County, Alabama, 4 August 1820.[37] At the time of his death 5 May 1826, Maj. Peyton was a member of the Alabama State Legislature having been elected as a representative from Jackson County in 1823 and re-elected in 1825.[38]

The name of Daniel Peyton was entered in the register of the Mud Creek Primitive Baptist Church in 1819, the year Jackson County, Alabama, was formed, and on the following dates: in November 1821, 12 October 1822, and 9 October 1824. The name of his wife, Mary, was also entered in the Mud Creek Church register.

Maj. Daniel Peyton died intestate. In 1890 Dr. Daniel Peyton of Stockton, California, cited Daniel Peyton as his grandfather, A. C. Peyton and Elizabeth Elledge as his parents, and the Rev. John Peyton as his brother.[39] In a power of attorney dated 12 December 1836 Daniel Peyton of Morgan County, Kentucky, named Ashcraft Peyton as his brother.[40] Maj. Daniel Peyton was the only Peyton in Floyd, now Morgan County, Kentucky, who was old enough to be the father of Philip, Ashcraft, John, Daniel, and William Peyton.

41 Margaret Peyton, b. 1830; d. 3 Jan. 1893

Ashcraft C. Peyton and his two brothers, Daniel and Philip, were married in 1815, 1818, and 1814, respectively, in Floyd, now Morgan County, Kentucky. Each of the marriage ceremonies was performed by the Rev. Daniel Williams of Floyd County. Ashcraft signed the bond in the case of his brother, John Peyton vs. Achilles Rogers, in Monroe County, Missouri, 17 August 1834.

Ashcraft was born in Kentucky about 1788, probably in Lincoln County. His father moved the family to the newly created Montgomery County, Kentucky, by 1797, and thence to Floyd County, Kentucky, prior to 1808. The eldest daughter of Ashcraft Peyton was born in Floyd, now Morgan County, in 1818, and his youngest daughter was born in Morgan County, Kentucky, in 1830. His other four children were born in Jackson County, Alabama.

The family of Ashcraft Peyton was enumerated on the 1830 census as residents of Morgan County, Kentucky, but by 1832 they had moved to Missouri. Ashcraft first located in a remote area of Monroe County near the present town of Duncans Bridge. He built a three faced cabin which provided shelter for his family of eight.

About 1834 the Peyton family moved to the frontier near the present town of Clarence in Shelby County. Ashcraft fattened a large drove of hogs on mast that grew abundantly along Peyton's Branch. Ashcraft and his wife, Elizabeth, sold 130 acres of land in Monroe County 28 November 1838,[41] and moved to Centerville, now Woodville, in Macon County, having purchased a lot in Macon County 22 November 1838.[42] Ashcraft entered the mercantile business during the 1840's and opened the third trading house in Kirksville, Missouri.[43] Records show he was living in Adair County in 1842,[44] and in 1843. The failure of the State Bank of Illinois in 1843 crippled his resources[45] to the extent that he left the mercantile business in Kirksville and returned to farming in Macon County, Missouri.

Ashcraft C. Peyton was a soldier in the War of 1812. He enlisted in the Kentucky militia and served from 10 November 1814 until 9 March 1815 in the company of Capt. David Goodwin.

His widow, Elizabeth, made application for bounty land 28 July 1855 and deposed that she married Ashcraft Peyton 16 July 1815. She stated that he died 4 January 1846 in Gentry County, Missouri. In her deposition Elizabeth reported that she and Ashcraft had reared a family of six children. She received a warrant for 160 acres of bounty land in Macon County, Missouri.[46]

Ashcraft C. Peyton died intestate. In a newspaper article in 1884 he was named as the father of the Rev. John Peyton.[47] In a county history in 1890 Ashcraft Peyton and Elizabeth Elledge were named as the parents of Dr. Daniel Peyton of Stockton, California, and the latter was named as a brother of the Rev. John Peyton of Macon, Missouri.[48] Greene Peyton, John Peyton, Daniel Peyton, Margaret Reynolds, and Kitty Holley were named as brothers and sisters in a letter written by a granddaughter of the Rev. John Peyton in 1956.[49] Mary D. Enyart and Kitty Holley were buried in the same lot with their mother, Elizabeth Peyton, in Salem Cemetery near Jacksonville in Randolph County, Missouri.

John Peyton was born in 1822 in Jackson County, Alabama.[50] Having formerly lived in Morgan County, Kentucky, his father returned to Morgan County after 9 July 1827 and before November 1828. The family subsequently moved to Monroe County, Missouri, in 1832. In later years John wrote of his boyhood life on the Missouri frontier relating his experiences as a teen-age boy, and the hardships with which the pioneers had to cope during their years in the wilderness of the frontier.[51]

John Peyton served as a corporal in Capt. M. S. Howe's Company G, 2nd Regiment of Dragoons, during the war with Mexico. He enlisted 15 November 1847 at Hannibal, Missouri, and was discharged at Jefferson Barracks near St. Louis, Missouri, 17 July 1848. The description of his appearance written on his certificate of discharge stated he was then twenty-four years of age, five feet ten inches in height, and was fair of complexion with hazel eyes and brown hair.[52]

John received 160 acres of bounty land located in Macon County, Missouri, 28 February 1849 for his military service during the Mexican War. In 1855 he and his wife, Rebecca, sold their home in Centerville to James Halliburton[53] and moved to Shelby County, Missouri.[54] After a period of ten years he purchased 470 acres of land 1 April 1865 in Salt River Township in Randolph County, Missouri.[55] He was enumerated on the Missouri census reports as a resident of Macon County in 1850, as a resident of Shelby County in 1860, and as a resident of Randolph County in 1870 and 1880.

During the 1880's John and his son, Henry Clay Peyton, owned and operated a grocery and general merchandise store known as Peyton & Son in Macon, Missouri. John later retired in Clarence, only a few miles from the site of the log cabin built by his father during the 1830's.

He became a Methodist minister late in life. He was eighteen years of age before he heard a sermon preached. He first attended church at the Christian Church near Duncans Bridge in 1840 and united with the Methodist Church South at Bethlehem, Missouri, in 1848. John was ordained a minister in 1880. He felt keenly the responsibilities of rearing a family and deprecated any thing or act that lessened respectability.

He served as justice of peace of Salt River Township in Randolph County for a number of years.

John Peyton died testate. In his will, dated 14 December 1886 and proved 8 March 1894, he designated his wife, Rebecca Ann, as executrix and named each of his children.[56] In his family Bible John Peyton recorded his date of birth, his date of marriage, and the date of birth of his wife, Rebecca Spalding. He recorded the names of his children, the date of birth of each, the date of marriage of each, the name of the person to whom each was married, the dates of birth of three of his grandsons and his two stepsons, and the date of death of one grandson.

Catherine Holly Peyton, wife of John Alexander Halliburton, was known to all her friends and neighbors as Kitty Halliburton.

She was partially paralyzed shortly after her marriage and could manipulate only one hand for the remainder of her life. She was of a cheerful disposition, and forcibly overcame her physical handicap so that she could walk, do household tasks, knit, and even tie the strings to her bonnet.

As she was widowed at the age of thirty-two with four minor daughters, the three older children were reared in the home of their paternal grandparents, Thomas White Halliburton and Martha Elizabeth Rogers. She and the youngest daughter made their home with her parents, the Rev. John Peyton and Rebecca Ann Spalding.

She was a life-long member of the Methodist Church.

Catherine was mentioned in her father's will as having previously received her share of his estate. Her four daughters who attained adulthood were named in her obituary.[57]

I have had the opportunity of searching the Bisley parish registers, for Payton, and here are the results...

Thus you have the baptism of Philip Payton, son of Thomas & Anne (nee Greẽ which I imagine was a shortened form of Green), and it confirms that he had a brother Thomas Payton.

In Smyth's Men & Armour for Gloucestershire, 1608 there is listed a Thomas Payton "wever" aged about 20, for the hamlet of Througham in Bisley, and this must be the father of Phillip and Thomas, etc.

I would not like to make a guess as to where the Payton family came from before they arrived in Bisley (which must have been in the early 1600's) but amongst the Diocesan Records here there is a deposition dated 14 January 1605/6 made by a John Payton of Cowley in the county of Gloucester, weaver, who states that he had lived at Cowley for 3 months, was formerly at Avening for 6 months, was aged 34 years or thereabouts, and was born at Horsley.

Marriage Allegation

12 Sep 1638 Phillip Payton of Bisley and Elyzabeth Gibbes of Cirencester: bondsman, Thomas Payton of Bisley, aged 30.

Burials

Letter written by Brian Frith, F. S. G., 6 April 1974, Gloucester, England

The baptism of Philip Payton does not appear in the Bisley registers, and I can only imagine that the baptism might have taken place in 1644 when the period May-July is missing. It is probable that the marriage of Philip Payton, senior, may have taken place about 1638, and it is of interest to note that there is a marriage allegation 12 September 1638, of Phillip Payton, of Bisley, and Elizabeth Gibbes, of Cirencester: bondsman, Thomas Payton, of Bisley, aged 30.

There can be little doubt that this marriage allegation refers to the Philip Payton whose children were baptized at Bisley, and the marriage may have taken place at Cirencester. The first child was named after its mother, and presumably the first son after its father (probably in 1644, for there are no earlier sons.).

PHILIP PEYTON, INDENTURED SERVANT
Letter written by Noel Currer-Briggs, F.S.G., 11 September 1973, Saffron Walden, England

Philip Peyton, who emigrated to Virginia, was indentured for four years on the 30th August, 1665 to Thomas White of Bristol, shipwright; Thomas White was a Freeman of Bristol and a merchant of that city. He was responsible for the despatch of seven indentured servants (on August 30th and September 1st, 1665) to Virginia as follows:

Philip Peyton	4 years
Richard Smith	7 years
Mary Taylor	4 years
Anne Smith	4 years
John Hiley	7 years
William Fowle	4 years
Benjamin Merratt	4 years

No places of origin are given for any of the above but the length of time to be served is a rough indication of age, since those who had to serve for seven years would have been about 16 or 17 years old while those serving 4 years would be around 20 or 21, since the rules dictated at the time that indentured servants should serve until the completion of their 24th year. It is interesting, therefore, that the Philip Peyton of Gloucester who was married about 1645 could possibly be the father of the servant named above. However, if Philip, Jr. was born in 1650 as you suggest, he would have had to serve more than four years if he had been indentured in 1665. I think therefore that the Philip Peyton of the indenture must have been born nearer 1647 or 48 or possibly even as early as 1645. I wonder whether the Mary he married could have been Mary Taylor, his fellow indentured servant? I can only give you a very general indication, derived from the limited number of places of origin disclosed in the Bristol records, about the likely county of origin of this Philip Peyton beyond saying that the vast majority of emigrants through Bristol came, as one would suppose, from the counties of the Severn Valley, South Wales, Somerset and Wiltshire, which form the natural hinterland of Bristol.

ASHCRAFT PEYTON, EARLY PIONEER OF MISSOURI
Democrat, 1 February 1884, Macon, Missouri

The Macon Chronicle-Herald, 29 October 1965, Macon, Missouri

"The Early Settlement of Macon County and the Lives of the Pioneers"
Written by the Rev. John Peyton

Rev. John Peyton was born in Jackson County, Alabama, January 10th, 1822, and with his father, A. C. Peyton, and family moved to Missouri in the year 1832. His father first settled in the northwest corner of Monroe County within six miles of Woodville, in Macon County. The place where his father first settled in Monroe County was near where Leesburg [Duncans Bridge] now stands on the banks of the Middle Fork of Salt River.

Indians were plentiful in all North Missouri. When the Black-Hawk war broke out, the father, A. C. Peyton, became uneasy on account of his family and took them to Boone County where they lived until the close of the Indian troubles, when they returned to their home on Salt River.

A. C. Peyton's house was what was called in the early days a three-faced cabin, in which his family of eight persons lived. The nearest neighbors were about five miles off, including William Atterbury, the father of Judge Atterbury and Dr. Atterbury of Macon County...

About the year 1834, A. C. Peyton with his family, having rented out his farm of five or six acres, moved near where Clarence now stands and settled on a branch, known as Peyton's branch, – named after him. This was called the frontier. The object of John's father moving to this new place was to fatten a lot of hogs he had on the mast which was abundant on or near the branch.

At this new home John's father built a cabin, and when the hogs got fat, started them to Palmyra. He would let the hogs eat mast on the road and it took nearly a month to get to Palmyra, and then he got only $1.25 a hundred for his pork. His father stayed on Peyton's branch until about 1837. The nearest neighbor was ten miles off.

John Peyton was now fifteen years old. His father concluded about 1837 to settle near where Woodville now stands in Macon County.

Woodville as it is now called was laid out and called Centerville, by W. H. Rowland and Elias Holiday about 1836, and when John Peyton and his father's family settled in Macon County. Centerville had one store kept in a log house by Elias Holiday. M. Holiday was postmaster. John remembers the first day he went to Centerville that Mr. Holiday had two panthers confined in a log pen...

John Peyton in 1837 carried a letter from Centerville to Bloomington, from Elias Holiday to D. C. Hubbard, County Clerk, asking for license to sell goods, &c. At that time there were but three settlements between Centerville and Bloomington: viz. Isham Walker, a Mr. Allen living where Macon is located and Isaac Gooding. When John got to Bloomington he found it had a few log cabins in it...

Among the first settlers of Middle Fork township were Ambrose Halliburton, Wm. H. Rowland, Eben Enyart, Burrell Freeman, William Ware, Judge Rowland and A. C. Peyton and family – including John, Benjamin Robuck and James Rowland...

John Peyton never heard a sermon preached until he was eighteen years old. This sermon was preached by John Vivon, a member of the Christian Church near Leesburg [Duncans Bridge], southeast of Woodville...

Rev. John Peyton was married in 1849 by Rev. Walter Toole to Rebecca A. Moss [nee Spalding], and have six children, all living...

Rev. John Peyton became a member of the M. E. Church South, September, 1848, and a minister in said denomination in the year 1880.

TRIBUTE TO THE REV. JOHN PEYTON
Newspaper clipping printed in 1894

Rev. John Peyton, the subject of this sketch, was born in Jackson County, Alabama, January 10, 1822, and at the age of ten years with his father's family moved to Macon County, Missouri, where he has almost continually resided ever since. Departed this life, February 24th, 1894, full of years and hope to reap the reward of his life's work with us. He was one of the earliest settlers and enjoyed but few of the advantages accorded to the present generation, having heard his first sermon when he was eighteen years of age, and going three or four miles to school.

His early days were spent in the pursuits peculiar to a frontier life, hunting etc. He loved those days and loved to dwell upon them notwithstanding their many disadvantages as compared to the present. In 1847 he enlisted for the Mexican war. In 1848 he embraced religion and united with the M. E. Church South, at Bethelem. He was earnest and faithful in his zeal for the church of his choice. In 1880 he was licensed to preach the gospel which he believed to be "the power of God unto salvation" and on which he relied and founded his hope of immortality...

He was married in 1849 by Rev. Walter Toole to his surviving wife, and reared a family of six children all of whom are now living. He keenly felt the responsibility of raising a family and always deprecated anything or act that would lessen respectability.

The burial records of his son, Thomas, and of his second wife, Alice, indicate that he was living in the parish of All Saints during the 1570's. His marriage to his third wife, Alice Walker, was recorded in the church register 5 February 1579.

A memorial to John Pleasants and his wife, Jane, was written between 1747 and 1760, and is among the original "Smith Manuscripts." It is stated in the memorial that he married Jane, the widow of Capt. Samuel Tucker from Bristol. A complaint was entered against them in a court held in Henrico County in February 1682 stating "John Pleasants and Jane Tucker als. Larcome als. Pleasants (quakers)" were guilty of violating the Virginia laws on three counts. That is, they had not been married according to the established laws of Virginia: they refused to attend the established Church of England or to have their children baptized; and they were members of a Conventicle, a religious sect which challenged the authority of the Church of England.

The provincial courts upheld their Quaker marriage ceremony but found them guilty of their effrontery against the church and levied a fine on each count. John Pleasants gave security and entered an appeal which was carried to London and brought before the Lords of Trade and Plantations. In a letter dated 20 September 1683 Lord Culpeper wrote: "Pursuant to instructions for liberty of conscience I stopped execution against a Quaker John Plaisance who was indicted for not attending church, pending signification of the Kings pleasure."[12]

John Pleasants died testate. In his lengthy will, dated 27 September 1690 and proved 1 June 1698, he named his wife, Jane, as executrix. He made bequests to each of his children whom he named as John, Joseph, and Elizabeth. He entailed his land which was to evolve, successively, in case of lack of issue, to his brothers in England, Samuel, Benjamin, and Thomas. He also devised £20 Sterling to his mother if then living. John Pleasants presented to the court of Henrico County a small book consisting of three pages stitched together, and declared it to be his last will and testament in his own handwriting. He requested that the will be recorded and his request was granted by the court. The will was recorded 1 October 1690 and John added the codicil 11 May 1697.[13]

Joseph Pleasants of Curles married his neighbor, Martha, the daughter of Richard Cocke of Bremo. This was a union of two of the leading families of Henrico County, Virginia, although they were diametrically opposed in their religion. Joseph was of a strong Quaker family while the Cockes were equally strong supporters of the Church of England. Joseph and Martha obtained a marriage license 15 May 1699 and were married by a Church of England ceremony.

Joseph repented 10 November 1699 in a meeting of Friends and both he and Martha became leaders in the Quaker meetings at Curles. He was appointed clerk of the Henrico County Monthly Meetings in 1699. The same year he contributed funds to build a meeting house at Curles, and in 1704 he was ordered to complete the new meeting house by laying floors and making a row of seats around the house. Joseph served as a delegate to the Yearly Meetings on numerous occasions. In 1723 he was heavily fined for his "sufferings from the year 1715 to this present year 1723," and was imprisoned by Thomas Jefferson for fifty shillings sterling.[14]

14. The Edward Pleasants Valentine Papers, vol. 2, p. 1189.

According to the will of his father, Joseph was devised 150 acres of land on Turkey Island Point; 1,400 acres of land lying on Chickahominy Swamp; 100 acres of land purchased from William Giles; a tract of land purchased from Edward Matthews; 580 acres of land purchased from Abram Childers; 2,000 acres of land on Tuckerhoe Creek; and one-half interest in the corn mill and saw mill.[15] Records in Henrico County show that Joseph bought and sold land, and also received land by patents.[16]

Joseph, Elizabeth, and Jane Pleasants were named as grandchildren of Richard Cocke of Bremo in his will dated 18 November 1706.[17] Elizabeth, Joseph, Jane, and Martha Pleasants were named as grandchildren in the will of Jane (Larcome) Pleasants in her will dated 2 January 1708.[18] As Martha's father and Joseph's mother named Elizabeth, Joseph, and Jane in their respective wills, it is evident they were the three eldest children of Joseph Pleasants and that his daughter, Martha, was born between 18 November 1706 and 2 January 1708.

Joseph Pleasants died testate. In his will, dated 9 September 1725 and proved 7 February 1726, he devised his land among his sons. He devised personalty to all his children except his daughter, Elizabeth, and assigned his manor plantation to his wife for her use during her lifetime. He appointed his wife as executrix and Col. William Randolph as her adviser. An inventory and appraisement of his personal estate was made by Bowler Cocke and Henry Wood in the amount of £587.06.09 and 9,197 pounds of tobacco. He willed his extensive land holdings to his sons whom he named as Joseph, John, Richard, Thomas, and Robert Pleasants. He named as his daughters, Jane and Martha Pleasants and made a bequest to each.[19] His daughter, Elizabeth, was named in the will of his mother as "my Son Joseph's Daughter Elizabeth."

33 (31) Elizabeth Pleasants (Joseph,[6] John,[5] John,[4] John,[3] Robert,[2] William[1]), b. between 15 May 1699 and 18 November 1706, Henrico County, Virginia; d. after 19 December 1767, probably in Cumberland County, Virginia.

John Merryman, b. about 1700; d. after 19 December 1767, probably in Cumberland County, Virginia; m. Elizabeth Pleasants, about 1725.

47 Judith Merryman

Elizabeth Pleasants was one of the three eldest children of Joseph Pleasants and Martha Cocke who obtained their marriage license 15 May 1699. Elizabeth was born before her grandfather, Richard Cocke, wrote his will 18 November 1706. He made bequests to Joseph, Elizabeth, and Jane Pleasants, naming his grandson first. Jane (Larcome) Pleasants wrote in her will dated 2 January 1708: "I give and bequeath unto my Son Joseph's Daughter Elizabeth... a great Pewter flaggon unto her the said Elizabeth..." She made bequests to Elizabeth, Joseph, Jane, and Martha Pleasants, in that order which would indicate the probable order of their births.

Elizabeth and John Merryman settled in that section of Virginia which successively became Goochland County, then Cumberland County, and eventually Powhatan County.

Thomas, Elizabeth, Agnes, John, Jr., Jesse, and Judith Merryman were listed in William and Mary College Quarterly as the children of John Merryman and Elizabeth Pleasants.[20] Mary Merryman was also their daughter as John Merryman, his wife, and their children were the only Merrymans living in Goochland and Cumberland counties prior to 1750.

Robert M_____ and Richard P_____ were also witnesses to his will.

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Johann Theodor Polemer dictus Hammerstein was born in 1598, in an apparently now vanished small locality called Boikirchen, which was probably in the vicinity of the present Wolfstein in the Palatinate (Rhenish Bavaria). He may have been the son of one Johannes Theodorus Polhemius dictus Hammerstein of that place, who seems to be the only one of the preceding generation who could have been Johann Theodor's father... As a clergyman he latinized his name in keeping with the convention of the times and became Johannes Theodorus Polhemius on all subsequent records. (National Genealogical Society Quarterly, vol. 43, p. 125.)

Johannes Theodorus Polhemius, "dictus Hammerstein, Boikirchensis Westriacus," matriculated as a student of divinity at Heidelberg University 26 February 1620. He served briefly as a minister in the Palatinate subsequent to his graduation, and was assigned to serve the church at Gieten in the Province of Drenthe, Netherlands, 11 November 1624. He accepted a call 16 May 1627 to a church at Meppel in Drenthe where he also served as the Rector of the Latin School. He left Meppel 10 February 1634 and returned to the Palatinate.

As recorded in the minutes of the Classis of Amsterdam 3 December 1635, Johannes requested that he be appointed as a minister in the West Indies. A large expedition to Brazil was then being prepared, and Polhemius was assigned as one of the ministers to accompany the newly appointed governor, Count Johan Maurice of Nassau. A fleet of four ships sailed from Amsterdam at Texel Harbor 25 October 1636, and arrived on the Recife of Pernambuco, Brazil, 23 January 1637. Dominie Polhemius was assigned to remain at Recife while the settlers and soldiers awaited distribution among the colonies. He delivered his sermons in four languages—German, Dutch, French, and Portuguese. In 1638 he was assigned to the colony and garrison on the Island of Itamarca as the settlers were mostly of Westphalian and Palatine stock and he was chosen on account of his style of pronunciation. He often accompanied the army on the mainland and was able to preach to the Indians in their own language.[1]

Polhemius evidently married his second wife, Catharina van der Werven, on the Island of Itamarca. He established a plantation, in addition to his ministry, and by contract dated 28 May 1645 he sold six negroes and three negro children for 202,000 caroli gulden, and the right to eight negroes who had fled into the woods for 257 caroli gulden. Due to the insurrections on the island, he lost his plantation and returned to Recife in 1648.

The Dutch government capitulated to the Portuguese 25 January 1654. In April the Dutch were evacuated in a fleet of sixteen ships and Dominie Polhemius boarded the last ship having remained on land ministering to the refugees until all were aboard. The ship bearing his family arrived without mishap in Amsterdam, Netherlands, but the ship with Polhemius aboard was captured by a Spanish pirate, which was in turn captured by the French man-of-war, the St. Charles. The French transported the Dutch refugees to New Netherland. They arrived at Fort Amsterdam 3 September 1654,[2] and the Rev. Megopolensis, minister of the Dutch Church, saw in Polhemius' coming "the leading of God's hand."

Immediately upon his arrival at New Amsterdam, Polhemius granted power of attorney dated 15 October 1654 to his wife, Catharina van der Werven, to enable her to collect the sum of fl. 4190:10 due to him from the West India Company. The Classis of Amsterdam assisted Catharina by assigning to her 100 guilders. After a period of two years she and the children were sent to New Amsterdam aboard the Gulden Otter and the family was reunited in New Netherland 4 September 1656.

The extant ecclesiastical and civil records of New Netherland unfold for us the life of the Rev. Johannes Theodorus Polhemius.

1. The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, vol. 90, 1959, pp. 67-68.
2. National Genealogical Society Quarterly, vol. 43, 1955, p. 126.

He ministered to the people at Midwout, Amersfoort, and Breuckelen, villages later known as Flatbush, Flatlands, and Brooklyn, respectively, and who had no churches of their own. A petition from the court of Midwout and Amersfoort 13 October 1654 reads: "The Director General and Council are satisfied that the present teacher, Do. Polhemius, attend to the divine service among them..." The Rev. John Megapolensis, a minister with the West India Company, wrote that the Rev. Polhemius had preached at Midwout, Breuckelen, Amersfoort, and Gravesend "for the accomodation of the inhabitants on Sundays during the winter, and has administered the sacraments to the satisfaction of all..." Subsequently the Directors of the West India Company granted permission for Johannes to remain in New Netherland as a minister if he were "found to lead an irreproachable life."

The Rev. Polhemius was instrumental in the erection of a church in Midwout in 1659, the first Dutch church built on Long Island, and in the erection of a church at Breuckelen in 1666.

In an order issued from New York 19 January 1671, Gov. Francis Lovelace stated the "Constable and Overseers of Midwout, also Flatbush were to forbeare ye taxing or levying any sume upon any parte of ye Estate of Do. Paulinus, your Minister, until further order."

Although the ministry of Dominie Polhemius was highly praised in many instances, he was also criticized. In the Netherlands where he began his ministry, his ideas were thought to be too modern for the times. In Brazil his listeners had difficulty understanding his Dutch pronunciation. In his advanced years in New Netherland, he walked the distances between churches on Sundays, and exhausted by the cold, he sometimes said only a short prayer instead of delivering a long sermon. He was, nonetheless, beloved by the congregations which he served.

The names of the children of Johannes Theodorus Polhemius and the dates of death of he and his wife were printed in the National Genealogical Society Quarterly.[3]

Adrianna Polhemius was born in the Dutch colonies in Brazil, probably on the Island of Itamarca as her father, the Rev. Johannes T. Polhemius was a minister and a plantation owner on the Island. Adrianna was about ten years of age at the time the Dutch were evacuated from Brazil. As often happens, the family became separated in the process of evacuation and Adrianna was sent to the Netherlands with her mother, her brother, and two sisters, while her father, aboard another ship, was taken to New Netherland.

She re-crossed the Atlantic Ocean two years later as a cabin passenger aboard the Gulden Otter, and the Polhemius family was reunited at Midwout, Long Island, 4 September 1656.[4]

After her marriage to Jan Roelofse Sebring, she and her husband moved to Bergen, New Jersey. On 2 October 1682, she and her husband were received into the Dutch Church at Bergen by certificate from the church at Midwout.

The names of the children of Adrianna Polhemius and her husband, Jan Roelofse Sebring, were listed in 1929 in Wilson and Allied Families, with the exception of Mary. She was proved as a sister of Daniel Sebring in the latter's will.[5]

REV. JOHANNES T. POLHEMIUS REQUESTED ASSIGNMENT OVERSEAS
Ecclesiastical Records of the State of New York, vol. 1, p. 87

The Classis of Amsterdam Minutes 3 December 1635

There appeared in Classis the Rev. John Theodore Polheim, formerly a preacher in the Palatinate; (then subsequently) at Meppel, in Overyssel, and later again in Meppel but on account of renewed persecution he was forced to leave (the latter field) a second time. He requested that he might be appointed a minister in the West Indies (America). Accordingly his testimonials from both Meppel and Wieten [Gieten] were read by the Deputies on Indian Affairs, who also made report thereon. The Assembly resolved to appoint the said individual, as soon as possible, to that field through the instrumentality of the Deputies.

A Petition from the Court of Midwout and Amersfoort

Regarding continuing the teacher...the Director General and Council are satisfied that the present teacher, Do. Polhemius, attend to the divine service among them, under further orders from the Fatherland and they consent to a fair and proper renumeration...New Amsterdam, 13 October 1654.

A Resolution of the Classis of Amsterdam 4 January 1655

Rev. Langelius informs us that he has understood that the Rev. Polemus has arrived in New Netherland...also that intelligence has been received here that the Church there was seeking the Directors' approbation of the call made upon him...meanwhile they are already employing him.

Letter written by the Rev. John Megapolensis to the Classis at Amsterdam

There (Midwout, Breuckelen, Amersfoort, and Gravesend) he [Polhemius] has preached for the accomodation of the inhabitants on Sundays during the winter, and has administered the sacraments to the satisfaction of all, as Director Stuyvesant has undoubtedly informed the Lord Directors.

Documents Relative to the Colonial History of the State of New York, vol. 14, pp. 317, 327

Letter written by the West India Company in Holland to Gov. Peter Stuyvesant 26 April 1655

The preacher Polhemius, arrived there from Brazil, has informed us by letter of his willingness to remain in New Netherland and take charge of the congregation at Midwout. If you think he is wanted there, and the said Polhemius is found to lead an irreproachable life, we have no objections to his becoming minister there provisionally, and until our further order, at a salary provided, or to be provided for, by the congregations, without becoming a burden to the Company.

Council Minutes of New Amsterdam 15 June 1655

After reading the petition of the Magistrates of Midwout and Amersfoort showing that for the accomodation of Do. Polhemius, their present Minister, they had erected a convenient dwelling and also allotted to him a parcel of land and asking that, as they were still very poor, they might receive assistance by voluntary contributions, it was resolved to consider the petitioner's request, when the building is completed, the land fenced in, and the account of expenditures for the same presented to the Council.

MINISTRY OF REV. JOHANNES THEODORUS POLHEMIUS APPROVED BY THE CLASSIS OF AMSTERDAM

Ecclesiastical Records of the State of New York, vol. 1, pp. 350-351

Letter from the Classis of Amsterdam to the Consistory of New Netherland
26 May 1656

We have heard, however, that Rev. Mr. Polhemius has undertaken the charge there, having come from Brazil. He lost his charge there (Brazil) by reason of the sad failure of the Company. We would like to know how this arrangement is working. Those coming from that place (Long Island) with whom we have conversed, tell us that there are not a few members of the church there; and they also declare that his Reverence is recognized by all the regular ministers; that he performs all the functions of a pastor; and sometimes preaches at New Amsterdam, as well as at Midwout, and that his labors are appreciated, and are not without fruit. We request, however, further information about all these things.

As far as we are concerned, we have nothing against his Reverence being and remaining pastor there according to (Church) Order. The Rev. Mr. Polhemius has written to his wife that he is inclined to remain there. He says that he can get along with the salary, and will continue his labors there, and directs her and the children to come over.

LETTER WRITTEN BY REV. JOHANNES THEODORUS POLHEMIUS TO GOV. PETER STUYVESANT

Noble Sir, Honorable General in New Netherland

I am compelled to respectfully complain to your honor, that I must see the planks, given by your Honor out of compassion and presented to the community here to finish my house against this cold winter, being taken and lost this way or that; for instance two were lost on the way here by having been left on the beach in nobody's care; after having been brought into the village without my knowledge, twenty-four were delivered to Jan Eversen Meyer, six were put down at the church for benches, of the balance 69 were taken away with the consent of Jan Snedicker and Jan Strycker, 17 carried to Thomas Swartwout and his brother Albert Swartwout to dry malt, so that my house remains open as it was, and I with my wife and children must live and sleep on the bare ground and in the cold. They say there is no carpenter here [and] that I should procure one to have the work done. In order not to make my situation worse by keeping silence, I write this to your Honor.
Midwout, the 14th December 1656.

REV. JOHANNES T. POLHEMIUS PAID BY GOV. PETER STUYVESANT
Documents Relative to the Colonial History of the State of New York, vol. 14, pp,.411-412

Council Minutes of New Amsterdam 29 January 1658
Letter written by Gov. Peter Stuyvesant

Order on a petition of Do. Polhemius...concerning his salary. Received and read the remonstrance and request of Do. Johannes Theodorus Polheym, preacher at Midwout, &c. on Long Island, who shows that from the month of October 1654 to the 7th of April 1656, the date of his agreement with the inhabitants of the villages of Breuckelen, Midwout, and Amersfoort, he has had charge as pastor of the congregation and performed the duties connected with it as well as he could, without however receiving from the inhabitants of said villages any renumeration for it. Having arrived here from the Island poor and without means he has been compelled to draw, with the knowledge of Director General and Council, from the Company's Warehouse and office the necessaries of life, amounting to fl. 942.6. He requests, therefore, that this sum might be balanced against his services performed during the time, as above stated, when he received no salary, so that his wife or children might not be troubled or asked to pay it at some future time.

Having taken this into consideration and being well aware that the laborer is worthy of his hire, that the petitioner served as pastor in the said villages from the year 1654 to the 7th of April 1656, without receiving any pay from the inhabitants, the aforesaid amount of fl. 942.6 is placed to his credit and the bookkeeper is directed to discharge his account for so much and to balance the amount against the service performed by the petitioner.

If it please God to assist me, I shall continue in my work, faithfully performing my service according to the forms and customs of the parent church of the Netherlands.

I remain meanwhile, Yours affectionately,

THE PRAY FAMILY

3 John Pray, d. 1676

4 Hannah Pray, d. 16 Oct. 1688

5 Dorothy Pray, b. 1634; d. 11 Dec. 1705

Quentin Pray emigrated from England in May 1643 aboard the "good ship Ann Cleeve of London," at which time John Winthrop, Jr., "did at great costs and charges imbarque himself with many workmen, servants & materials for the setting up of iron works."[1] Quentin was accompanied by his wife and children, and possibly two brothers. One of his brothers went to Maine, and his sons, John and Richard, settled in Rhode Island.

Quentin was a fineryman at the iron works in Kittery, Maine, and transferred to Lynn, Massachusetts, about 1647. He subsequently transferred with the Iron Works Company to Braintree, Massachusetts, and continued to live in Braintree until his death.

He deposed in court 27 October 1653 in the case of John Gifford vs. the Iron Works that he was then fifty-eight years of age.[2]

He died intestate. The date of death of Quentin Pray was recorded in the town records of Braintree.[3] Joan was named as the relict of Quentin Pray, deceased, 11 July 1667 at which time she was granted letters of administration by the court. The inventory of the estate was made by Samuel Bass and William Needham and was presented to the court 29 July 1667.[4] The names of Quentin Pray's four children, Richard, John, Hannah, and Dorothy, were listed in The Pioneers of Massachusetts,[5] and his descendants were cited in an article published in 1901.[6]

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Dider Remy was ennobled September 13, 1554. A copy of his arms made four generations later gave his name as Didier Rheims, his son as George Remy, a grandson as Nicholas Remy, and a great grandson as Francis Remond.

George Remy, son of Didier Remy, was also ennobled. He married a descendant of her Highness the Marchioness de Busancy. Issue: Hon. Pierre Rene de Saint Remy, Jacques Remy, Jean Remy, and Nicholas Remy. George received property rights in the Marquisat of Busancy 23 October 1566.

Jacques Remy, son of George Remy, was born about 1545 in Ivoy, Lorraine, and died in 1586 in Ivoy. He married Magdalene. Issue: Jacques Remy, Matthias Remy, and Pierre Remy. Jacques was a Huguenot.

Pierre Remy, son of Jacques Remy, named his son Jacques.

Jacques Remy, son of Pierre Remy, was born about 1630 in Lorraine. He married first Francoise Haldat and secondly Mary Miles. (The Remy Family in America, Bonnelle William Rhamy, MD., 1942, pp. 15-16.)

THE REMY FAMILY

1 Jacob Remy, probably a son of Pierre Remy, b. about 1630, Picardy, Lorraine, France; d. in 1721, Westmoreland County, Virginia.

Francoise Haldat, dau. of Antoine Haldat II, Seigneur de Bonnett, and Madelaine Marchand, b. about 1630 in France; d. probably in 1654, probably aboard ship; m. Jacob Remy, before 1654.

Mary Miles, m. Jacob Remy, in 1671, Westmoreland County, Virginia.

2 William Remy, b. 1672; d. 1737

3 Jacob Remy, Jr., b. 1675; d. 1727

Jacob Remy, a French Huguenot, fled to England to escape religious persecution. He was transported to Westmoreland County, Virginia, in 1654 and was bound as an indentured servant to Nicholas Spencer, Esq., the secretary of the colony of Virginia.

Jacob served at least seven years as an indentured servant for in 1715 he made a deposition in which he stated that he was a chain bearer in 1661 for the surveyor who laid out a tract of land which, according to Remy, was afterwards purchased by Nicholas Spencer, Esq., "his then master."

Remy was cited as a natural born subject of the French king by the deputy governor of Virginia 9 September 1680 when he took the oath of allegiance and became a naturalized citizen.[1]

Jacob became the owner of 200 acres of land in Nominy Forest in Copley Parish of Westmoreland County, Virginia, 21 July 1671. In an indenture dated 29 April 1702 it was stated that Jacob sold a tract of 200 acres of land in Nominy Forest to Nicholas Spencer, Esq. This transfer of land took place prior to 29 April 1702.

He was also a carpenter and a cooper. His carpenter and cooper's tools and his hand mill were devised to his son Jacob.

Jacob Remy died testate. In his will, dated 17 July 1702 and proved 29 November 1721, he made bequests to his wife, Mary, and to his sons, William Remy and Jacob Remy.[2]

Jacob Remy, Jr., purchased 30 acres of land in Westmoreland County, Virginia, 30 May 1699 from Edward Ransdell. William Remy, designated as a brother of Jacob, served as a witness to the transaction. Jacob purchased 50 acres of land 27 September 1721 which was part of the 200 acres of land owned by his father, Jacob Remy, Sr., and sold by the latter to Col. Nicholas Spencer.[3]

Jacob Remy died testate. In his will, dated 23 February 1726 and proved 31 May 1727, he appointed his wife and his son, John, as his executrix and executor. He devised 230 acres of land to his son Jacob, 107 acres of which was land which had been previously owned by his father, Jacob Remy, then deceased. Jacob entailed this bequest of land to his son Benjamin should his son Jacob die without male heir, and to his son Joseph should Benjamin die without male heir. He stated his wife was not to be disturbed from the land and plantation she was then living on and upon her death his personal property and estate were to be equally divided among his children. In his will he named as his sons John, Jacob, Benjamin, Joseph, and William.[4] His daughter Mary was named in the will of her brother, Col. Sanford Remy. Ann Omohundra was named as the mother of William Remy in a deed dated 20 September 1747.[5]

Jacob Remy was a witness in court in Westmoreland County, Virginia, 3 May 1732. He received a grant of 150 acres of land in Prince William County in 1739 and was designated in the court records as a planter on Great Rorkey Cedar Run. He purchased 318 acres of land in Fairfax County, Virginia, 20 February 1746,[6] and one-half of this tract of land was deeded by Jacob Remy and his wife, Sarah, to their son Jacob, as a marriage settlement 15 February 1754. The remaining one-half of this tract of land was deeded 11 August 1777 to Jacob Remy, Jr., and his sons Charles T. and Samuel. The land lay on Flat Lick Run.[7]

In the elections held in Virginia, each voter cast two votes for burgesses, as each county was allowed two burgesses in the General Assembly which was held at Williamsburg. In 1741 Remy cast his two votes for Valentine Peyton and William Fairfax in Prince William County. In 1744 he cast his two votes for Capt. Lewis Ellzey and Capt. Lawrence Washington in Fairfax County, as Fairfax was created from Prince William County in 1742. At that time, George Washington was also a resident of Fairfax County and Jacob Remy visited in the home of George Washington 15 September 1770.[8]

Jacob Remy died testate. In his will, dated 4 December 1784 and probated 10 September 1787 in Loudoun County, he devised property to his grandson, Jacob Remy, commonly called Gibson Whaley, the son of his daughter, Barbara Whaley, then the wife of William Whaley.[9]

Barbara Remy was cited in her father's will as his daughter, the present wife of William Whaley. Jacob Remy also made a bequest, in his will dated 4 December 1784 in Loudoun County, Virginia, to his grandson whom he named as Jacob Remy who was commonly known as Gibson Whaley.[10]

POSSIBLE BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Thomas Reynolds immigrated to Virginia, and settled in James City County and later in York County. He was born about 1620 and died in Virginia before 1671. His wife, Susan Snead, was a daughter of Samuel and Alice Snead of James City County and he, Samuel Snead of Queen's Creek, made a deed of gift 23 March 1652 to his daughter, Susan Reynolds, wife of Thomas Reynolds (York Co., Va., Deeds and Orders, 1633-1694, p. 35). Thomas Reynolds died prior to 19 October 1671 for at that time, Susan Peace, late wife of Thomas Reynolds, deceased, deeded the land which had been given to Thomas Reynolds by Samuel Snead.

Thomas Reynolds, son of Thomas Reynolds and Susan Snead, was born about 1650 and died between 1708 and 1711, as his son, Thomas Reynolds, Jr., was recorded in the St. Paul's Parish Vestry Book without the "Jr.," thus indicating that Thomas Reynolds, Sr., was dead. The names of seven children of Thomas and Mary Reynolds were mentioned in St. Paul's Vestry Book: Thomas, John, William, Judith, Elizabeth, Jane, Leticia, and Philip.

William Reynolds was baptized 5 December 1686 as the son of Thomas and Mary Reynolds in St. Paul's Parish, New Kent County, Virginia. Seven children of William Reynolds were mentioned in various records: William, bap. 12 May 1706; Elizabeth, bap. 7 November 1708; Bathsheba, received a deed of gift in 1811 from her father in Brunswick County, Virginia; Lucy, bap. 17 April 1714; Sherwood, b. 11 January 1717; William, b. 23 August 1719; and David, aged 16 in 1741 on the list of tithables of William Reynolds. (Historical Sourthern Families, by John Bennett Boddie, vol. 16, 1971, pp. 203-206.)

Sherard Reynolds was probably a son of this William Reynolds who died in Johnston County, North Carolina. Sherard was named as a son of William Reynolds in Reynolds Family 1530-1959. The county in North Carolina in which Sherard Reynolds died, Wake County, was created from Johnston County in which William Reynolds died.

Sherard Reynolds was probably a son of William Reynolds of Johnston County, North Carolina. Sherard was a planter in Wake County, North Carolina, probably in that part which was created from Johnston County in 1770. He operated a plantation in Wake County and his mill land lay on the west side of Burtons Creek.

Sherard Reynolds died testate, and in his will dated 27 September 1776 and proved in the December court term of 1776, he identified himself as Sherad Runals of the County of Wake in the Province of North Carolina. He was aware that his date of death was near as he stated he was in a low state of body but of sound mind and perfect memory. He named his wife, Ann, and his son, William, as the sole executors of his will. He bequeathed one shilling sterling to each of his children whom he named as his son Amos, his daughter Mary Williams, his daughter Nancy Holley, his daughter Amy Bledsoe, his son John, his daughter Rebecca Bledsoe, his daughter Susanna Humphries, his daughter Lucy Alley Burton, which was a misspelling of Halliburton. He willed all of his plantation, mill, movables and immovables, horses, cattle, hogs, and the land on the west side of Burtons Creek to his wife Ann, and at her date of death or day of marriage all of the said property would become the property of his son William.[1]

Lucy Reynolds was named as a daughter of Sherard Reynolds in his will dated 27 September 1776.[2] She married David Halliburton, Jr., and they lived in Caswell, Orange, and Wake counties, North Carolina, before moving to Humphreys County, Tennessee, sometime after 5 February 1806 and prior to 24 May 1808. They moved to the home of their son, William, in 1834, in Henderson County, Tennessee, and Lucy died the following year.[3]

Andrew Jackson Halliburton of Haywood County, Tennessee, aged seventy-one years, wrote a letter in 1885 to a grandson of David Halliburton and Lucy Reynolds. He wrote: "You know that your grandmother was Lucy Reynolds sister to my Grandmother Humphreys and to Uncle Bill and Uncle John Reynolds who lived near your father in Dickson Co. Tenn. My impression is that the Reynolds and Humphreys lived in Wake Co. at that time."

2. Wake Co. Wills, Book A, pp. 172-173, Courthouse, Raleigh, NC.
3. Genealogical History of the Halliburton Family, vol. 1, 1972, p. 80.

Lucy co-signed a deed with David Halliburton 11 December 1779 in Caswell County, North Carolina, in which they conveyed to John Halliburton their tract of land lying in Caswell County on Bluewing Creek adjoining James Jones. The witnesses to the deed were Lucy's mother-in-law, Amey Jones and her second husband James Jones, and Lucy's brother-in-law, Charles Halliburton.[4]

The names of the children of Lucy Reynolds and David Halliburton were listed in the family Bible which was later in the possession of their grandson, Col. William Henry Halliburton of De Witt, Arkansas. Lucy died in the home of her son, William Halliburton, in Henderson County, Tennessee, in 1835.

THE ROACH FAMILY

Catherine, probably a daughter of Thomas Ashcraft, b. about 1715, probably in Virginia; m. Henry Roach, about 1735 in Virginia.

2 Ashcraft Roach, b. 29 Oct. 1736; d. 1815
3 Sabra Roach, b. 8 Aug. 1738

Henry Roach of New Kent County, Virginia, was probably a grandson of Henry Roach, the headright in Westmoreland County, Virginia, in the 1650's.

Henry Roach, the headright, received a patent for 850 acres of land lying on the lower Matchotick River in Westmoreland County, 13 September 1654. A portion of the grant, 300 acres, was assigned to him and he received the other 550 acres of land for transporting eleven persons.[1] On 4 June 1658 he received a patent for 140 acres of land, adjacent to the aforementioned grant, for the transportation of three persons into Virginia.[2] A third patent, dated 10 October 1658 granted to him an additional 850 acres of land on the Matchotick River for the transportation of seventeen persons.[3]

Henry Roach of New Kent County, Virginia, was married about 1735. His son, Ashcraft Roach, was in all probability named in honor of his wife's family. His wife, named in the baptismal records as Catherine, was probably a daughter of Thomas Ashcraft of New Kent County whose wife Mary died 20 February 1712, and whose second wife, Johannah, died 25 September 1716 in St. Peter's Parish.[4]

Henry Roach died intestate. His wife Catherine and his children, Ashcraft Roach and Sabra Roach, were named in the church records of St. Peter's Parish. The dates of birth and the dates of baptism of the two children were recorded in the church register.[5]

Ashcraft Roach, head of a household of eleven persons in 1783 in Amherst County, Virginia, was enumerated on the 1810 census as a widower, living alone, with five slaves to till his land. Near neighbors were his sons George and William.

He was a patriot during the Revolutionary War and received a certificate 29 October 1781 for £2.1.8 for having furnished 250 pounds of beef to the army during the war.[6]

He was an extensive land owner in Amherst County. He and his wife, Mary Magdaline, signed jointly conveyances of land in 1773 and in 1782. The administrators of his estate divided 834¼ acres of land among his heirs.

Ashcraft Roach died intestate. His administrators were bonded for $10,000 16 January 1815. His property was divided among his sons Cornelius, George, Henry, Charles, William, and John's heirs; his sons-in-law Daniel Peyton, Benjamin Kelly, and John Gilliam; and a grandson, Richard Burks. He signed marriage consents for his daughters Elizabeth, Mary, and Nancy.[7]

Mary and Daniel moved to Kentucky and were located in Floyd, now Morgan County, until their sons were married. After moving to Jackson County, Alabama, Mary placed her church membership in the Primitive Baptist Church at Mud Creek.[10]

THE ROELOFS FAMILY

1 Trijntje Roelofs, b. about 1585, Marstrand, Marstrand Island, Norway, now in Goteburg Och Bohus, Sweden; d. before 10 August 1647, New Netherland.
Johan, m. Trijntje Roelofs, about 1600 in Norway.

2 Marritje Jans, d. 1677
3 Anneke Jans, d. 1663

Trijntje Roelofs was born in the village of Marstrand on Marstrand Island, then in possession of Norway, and died in New Netherland, probably in New Amsterdam. She was the mother of Anneke Jans and assisted the latter with her marriage intention 1 April 1623 in Amsterdam, Netherlands. From the marriage intention it is deduced that Trijntje Roelofs was the daughter of Roelofs, and that she married a Norwegian by the name of Johan. The names were adapted to the Dutch language during their sojourn of seven or more years in Amsterdam and Anneke Johansdatter became known as Anneke Jans, and her mother became known as Tryn or Catherine Jonas.[1]

It is also determined from the marriage intention of Anneke Jans that the family was living in Flekkeroy on Flekkeroy Island in Vest Agder, Norway, four miles south of Kristiansand, in 1604 or 1605 when Anneke was born. Trijntje Jonas and Anneke moved to the Netherlands before 1623 and resided at the St. Tunis gate.[2]

Trijntje Jonas was employed by the West India Company as a midwife and was sent to the Dutch colony which developed around Fort Amsterdam on Manhattan Island. A small house was erected for her outside the fort by the West India Company during the time Wouter van Twiller was director.[3] It appears, however, from the van Rensselaer manuscripts that Trijntje Jonas and her daughter, Marritje, were guests in the home of Anneke Jans and Roelof Jansen prior to 1634 while they were living on van Rensselaer's farm near Fort Orange on the Hudson River.[4]

3. New York Historical Manuscripts: Dutch, vol. 1, 1974, p. 81.
4. Van Rensselaer Bowier Manuscripts, 1908, p. 281.

Trijntje Jonas was living in New Amsterdam before 9 September 1640. She was deceased prior to 10 August 1647 for on that date her son-in-law, Dirck Cornelissen, empowered her other son-in-law, Everardus Bogardus, to collect the sum of two hundred forty five guilders, two stivers, and eight pennies from the West India Company which were wages earned in her lifetime and which were recorded in the Book of Monthly Wages No. F on page 17.

One can well imagine that her duties as midwife were not easy. She demonstrated her independence and her sense of morality in refusing to assist in cases of illegitimacy.[5]

As midwife she obtained a grant of land on Pearl Street 4 February 1644 from the West India Company, and had a house built on this land.

She stood as sponsor at the baptismal ceremonies of her grandson, Cornelius Bogardus, 9 September 1640; of her grandson, Jonas Bogardus, 4 July 1643; and of her great grandson, Hans Kierstede, 21 September 1644. Each of the baptismal ceremonies was held in the Reformed Dutch Church in New Amsterdam, New Netherland.[6]

Trijntje Jonas van Masterland died intestate. Her two daughters, Anneke and Marritje, were named in instruments granting power of attorney for the purpose of collecting wages due to Trijntje Jonas, deceased. On 10 August 1647 Dirck Cornelissen was cited as husband and guardian of Marritje Jans, daughter of Tryn Jonas from Masterland.[7] On 17 August 1649, Anneke Jans, daughter of Tryn Jonas, deceased, empowered Mr. Cornelis Willems Bogaert, of Leyden, Netherlands, to collect the wages due to her mother from the West India Company.[8]

Robert Rutherford was living in Sittenbourne Parish of Old Rappahannock County, Virginia, as early as 10 March 1676 and as late as 21 August 1728 in St. Ann's Parish of Essex County, Virginia.

In a deposition in Essex County dated 10 August 1692, Robert Rutherford stated he was about fifty-eight years of age and that Margaret, his wife, was about forty-eight years of age.[1]

According to a court order issued in Old Rappahannock County he was appointed constable 4 August 1684, and was ordered, in another court order dated 3 March 1686, to pay tenancy on his plantation. He served as a witness to the will of Thomas Page of Old Rappahannock County 10 March 1676;[2] to the will of David Jameson of Essex County 2 December 1711; and to the will of Samuel Stallard 2 December 1720. He was among those who made payments to Mr. Owen Jones for a funeral sermon 21 August 1728.[3]

Robert Rutherford and his wife, Margaret, conveyed 50 acres of land in the forest near Brires Run in Old Rappahannock, now Essex County, to John Barkham 24 January 1684. Margaret relinquished her dower rights to the 100 acres of land lying in Sittenbourne Parish which was conveyed to James Holloway 8 January 1686 by Robert and Margaret.[4] An account of Robert Rutherford and his family is contained in Five Hundred First Families of America,[5] and in Genealogical History of the Rutherford Family.[6]

Robert Rutherford, Jr., served as a witness for Robert Rutherford, his father, in the August term of court in 1724 in Essex County, Virginia.[7] Robert Rutherford was the only Rutherford in Essex County at that time who was old enough to be the father of Robert Rutherford, Jr.

Robert Rutherford, Jr., died intestate in Essex County, Virginia. John Rutherford, Jr., relinquished his right 15 March 1725 to administer the estate,[8] which indicated a father-son relationship between Robert Rutherford, Jr., and John Rutherford, Jr. A certificate for the administration of the estate was issued to John Rutherford, a brother of Robert Rutherford, Jr., deceased, and was signed by John Vawter and Thomas Thorpe as securities. An inventory was submitted to the court 18 April 1726.[9] Col. James Wood married Mary Rutherford and he was designated as the brother-in-law of both Thomas Rutherford,[10] and John Rutherford.[11] In a deed of gift in 1688 Bartholomew Vawter named Margaret as the daughter of Robert Rutherford.[12]

Mary Simpson, m. John Rutherford, 7 September 1786 in the present Lincoln County, Kentucky.

John Rutherford has been traced through county records from Essex County, Virginia, to Lincoln County, Kentucky. In Essex County, as John Rutherford, Jr., he relinquished his right in 1725 to administer the estate of his father, Robert Rutherford, Jr., deceased.[13] He served two days as a witness on behalf of his grandfather, Robert Rutherford, in the case of Rutherford vs. Drower in November 1724. He witnessed the codicil of the will of his uncle, John Rutherford, 19 January 1742 in Essex County, and was distinguished from his uncle as the latter used "J" as his mark.[14]

By 1744 John Rutherford had moved to that part of Goochland County, Virginia, which later was formed into Cumberland County. He entered 237 acres of land on Willis River in Southam Parish of Cumberland County 15 July 1752. He sold this tract of land 11 December 1752 and affixed his signature as John Rutherford, Sr., with his son, John Rutherford, as a witness.[15]

Col. James Wood wrote in his business papers dated 11 October 1752: "I have made a promise to my brother-in-law, John Rutherford, on his request, to give him without any expense, 300 acres of land in some one of my tracts on the branches of the New River, or Holsons, on condition that he goes to live thereon."[16] Col. Wood conveyed a tract of 300 acres of land lying in Augusta County, Virginia, to John Rutherford in 1754.[17] In a Cumberland County deed dated 10 June 1755 Rutherford designated himself as being of Augusta County.[18] John Rutherford, Sr., and his sons John, Jr., William, Benjamin, and Joseph were listed on the list of tithables in Botetourt County in 1771. His sons, William, Benjamin, John and Joseph, also settled in the area of Cripple Creek, a branch of New River, not far from Fort Chiswell. This was Fincastle County in 1773 and Montgomery County in 1777 in Virginia.

John Rutherford, Sr., subscribed to the oath of allegiance 23 September 1777 in Montgomery County, Virginia.[19] His sons, Joseph, Benjamin, and John, took the oath 13 September 1777, and his son William, was administered the oath 3 May 1779.

John and his wife, Violetta, petitioned for her share of the estate of her father, James Rennolds, deceased, 13 February 1727 in Essex County, Virginia.[20] John married Mary Simpson 7 September 1786 in Lincoln County, Kentucky. The clergyman wrote on the marriage record: "Rutherford says he is ninety-seven years old and wants it noted on the record."

John Rutherford died intestate in the present Lincoln County, Kentucky. In August 1787 he executed a deed of gift to James Kenley whom he named as a son of his daughter, Sarah.[21] His daughter, Catherine, received letters of administration in February 1789,[22] and she presented an inventory of his estate in court 16 June 1789. Final settlement of the estate of John Rutherford, deceased, was made by the administratrix in October 1796.

John Rutherford, a resident of Cumberland County, Virginia, during the 1750's was distinguished from his father when he appeared as a defendant during the May term of court in 1753 and was cited as John Rutherford, Jr.[23] He was cited 25 September 1798 as John Rutherford, Sr., in a conveyance of land to his son John Rutherford, Jr.[24] He frequently used a capital C made backwards as his mark when signing documents.

Record of John Rutherford of Cumberland County is found in extant court orders. In 1753 he succeeded Thomas Merryman as county road surveyor.[25] He was a juryman in 1757, and in 1759 was licensed to keep an ordinary at Merryman's.

During the 1770's Rutherford was a resident of that part of Virginia known today as Wythe County. He settled on Cripple Creek, a branch of New River, near Fort Chiswell, and was cited in the records of the two succeeding counties for that area. He and his brother Benjamin were cited in a will proved 13 March 1770 in Augusta County. A survey for 118 acres of land was made for him in Fincastle County 5 February 1774,[26] and subsequent court orders at Fort Chiswell established his residence in Fincastle County 2 September 1774 and in Montgomery County 5 August 1779.

John was listed on the Kentucky tax list with his son, Joseph, and his father, John Rutherford, in 1789, and with his sons, John, Jr., Dudley, and James, in 1797. John Rutherford settled in the area southwest of the present site of Stanford, Kentucky, in Lincoln County. He entered 400 acres of land on the south side of the Dicks River 20 November 1781,[27] and was granted a total of 2,540 acres of land by 14 October 1795 in Lincoln County. He conveyed 460 acres of land on the Hanging Fork and 100 acres of land on the Green River to his son, James, 13 November 1799.[28]

Rutherford was a militiaman during the Revolutionary War.[29] He ranged on the Kentucky frontier in Lincoln County from 23 March through 21 April 1781 in Lt. Benjamin Pettit's company under the command of Col. John Logan.[30] He subscribed to the oath of allegiance in Montgomery County, Virginia, 13 September 1777.

John Rutherford died intestate. Mary was cited as his wife in an indenture proved and ordered to be certified 21 December 1791.[31] A family record stated that John Rutherford married a Miss Merryman and they were the parents of Joseph, Jesse, James, Susan, and Elizabeth Rutherford.[32] John signed marriage consents for his daughters, Lettie, Sally, and Susanna, during the 1790's in Lincoln County, and he named James as his son in the deed dated 13 November 1799. He conveyed land to John, Jr., 25 September 1798, and the latter was proved a brother of Dudley Rutherford in a deed dated 26 February 1816 in Lincoln County. Joseph and Jesse Rutherford were cited in a biographical sketch showing their relationship as brothers.[33] John's daughter, Susanna McKinney, wrote in a letter dated 1 October 1852 that James and Joseph Rutherford were her brothers.

James Rutherford was listed on the Kentucky tax list as a Lincoln County taxpayer from 2 June 1797 through the year 1824. In 1800 he was taxed on 550 acres of land lying on the Hanging Fork Creek and 400 acres of land located on the Green River.

Part of this land was conveyed to James by his father 13 November 1799. John Rutherford cited James as his son and transferred to him all of his estate both real and personal which included 460 acres of land on the Hanging Fork Creek and 100 acres of land on the Green River.[34] James' wife, Mary, inherited an interest in a 50 acre tract of land, her mother's dower, on the Hanging Fork near McKinney, Kentucky. James and Mary conveyed this interest in the land to Mary's brother, Benjamin Huntsman, 3 November 1826.[35]

James Rutherford was one of the subscribers 17 January 1819 for the erection of McCormack's Meeting House on the banks of

He spearheaded the Rutherford migration to Missouri and moved his family to Howard County after 3 November 1826 and prior to 1 October 1827. On the latter date a letter for James Rutherford was being held in the postoffice at Franklin, Missouri, and was advertized in the Missouri Intelligencer and Boon's Lick Advertiser printed at Fayette in Howard County, Missouri.[36] It was stated in a biographical sketch that Merriman Rutherford came to Missouri in 1826.[37] James was enumerated on the 1830 census as a resident of Howard County, and on the 1840 census as a resident of Randolph County, Missouri.

Through the land office at Palmyra, Missouri, he purchased 40 acres of land in Salt River Township of Randolph County, Missouri, 5 December 1836 at $1.25 per acre.[38] This tract of land was conveyed to Benjamin Huntsman 15 September 1840 by James Rutherford and his wife, Bashie.[39]

The marriage bond of James Rutherford and Mary Huntsman is extant in the office of the County Clerk in Lincoln County, Kentucky. The death of James Rutherford was recorded in the Mortality Schedule for the 1850 census of Randolph County, Missouri.

James Rutherford died intestate. His estate was administered by Ambrose Halliburton who deposed 7 April 1850 that to the best of his knowledge the names of the children of James Rutherford, deceased, were Merriman, Perry, Nathaniel, James, William, and Joseph Rutherford, and Patsy Huntsman.[40] A grandson, William Newton Rutherford, related to another grandson, Albert McKinney Rutherford, in 1906 that the names of the children of James Rutherford were Eli, Merriman, Joseph, Patsy, Perry, Nathan, James, and Huff.[41]

Nathaniel Huston Rutherford migrated with his father from Lincoln County, Kentucky, to Howard County, Missouri, in 1826 and to Randolph County, Missouri, in 1835.[42]

He entered a 40 acre tract of land 15 February 1842 in Salt River Township,[43] which cornered with the original entry made by his father in Randolph County in 1836. This land which he improved remained in the Rutherford name one hundred one years. The log cabins and the log house, built of hand hewn walnut logs, have disappeared. The large barn, constructed from native timbers which he squared and pinned together and sided with white pine, yet remains a monument to his thrift, humaneness, and foresight.

Nathaniel Huston Rutherford, known respectfully in his later years as "Uncle Nathan," participated in a variety of activities. He bought natural leaf tobacco for William Turner Rutherford of Huntsville, Missouri.[44] Nathaniel's leather bound account books show that he also bought tobacco at $3.00 per day for I. H. Miller and Company in 1868. These same account books show that he assisted in the collection of taxes in Randolph County in 1843, manufactured and sold bricks in 1855, and was a shoe cobbler for many years. His entries show that he mended and made shoes to order for a number of persons in the Salt River Township near Cairo, Missouri, and the surrounding areas.

He was listed as a member of the Liberty Christian Church 26 August 1877 in the church record book.

Nathaniel administered the estate of his father-in-law, Benjamin Dameron, in 1843,[45] and the estate of Isaac Huntsman in 1848. He served as a member of the jury during the trial of Dred Hayes in 1855.[46]

Nathaniel Huston Rutherford died testate. In his will, dated 29 May 1896, he named his wife and his eight living children.[47] In his family Bible he recorded his date of birth as well as the dates of birth and names of his two wives and his children, excepting the youngest child. He also recorded his dates of marriage, the dates of death of his first wife and of his children who preceded him in death. The records of his two marriages are extant among the marriage records of Randolph County, Missouri.

Robert Sanford and his wife, Ann, emigrated from England and settled in Westmoreland County, Virginia, on Nominy Creek in Copley Parish prior to 1674.[1]

At a court held in Westmoreland County 29 July 1735, Robert Sanford, Jr., testified under oath that his brother, John Sanford, had died without any known will, and he obtained letters of administration to settle his deceased brother's estate.[2] A suit was brought in Chancery before 27 January 1736 against Robert Sanford, Jr., administrator, by the plaintiffs named as William Sanford, Thomas Sanford, Richard Sanford, Ann Omohundra, and her husband Richard Omohundra, the heirs. The plaintiffs, who were brothers, sister, and brother-in-law of John Sanford, deceased, did not prosecute the case and it was dismissed from court.[3]

Robert Sanford, Sr., was named as the father of Massey, wife of Richard Morton, in the latter's will dated 18 November 1731 and proved in Westmoreland County, Virginia, 27 September 1732.

Robert Sanford, Sr., died testate. Record of his will, proved 24 April 1700, was recorded in the Westmoreland County Order Book 1698-1705. Ann Sanford was named as executrix and John Sanford was named as executor of his estate. His children were named and proved in the aforementioned administration of the estate of John Sanford and in the will of Richard Morton.

THE SAVIL FAMILY

1 William Savil, of Essex County, England.

2 Elizabeth Savil, bur. 11 Apr. 1596
3 William Savil, d. 6 Apr. 1669
4 Elizabeth Savil, bap. 10 Dec. 1598
5 Anne Savil, bap. 26 Apr. 1601; d. 5 Sept. 1693
6 Susan Savil, bap. 4 June 1609

William Savil of County Essex, England, was probably born about 1570 in England. He lived in or near Saffron Walden, England, in County Essex and attended the parish church.

The dates of baptism of three of his children were recorded in the parish records of Saffron Walden and other entries in the register indicate that other Savil families were contemporary with his. George Savil had three children baptized in the parish between 1593 and 1606, and George evidently died of the plague and was buried 25 September 1610. It is possible that these two men may have been brothers.

The wife of William Savil was not mentioned in the baptismal records of her children. Elizabeth Savil was buried 23 September 1618 and it is possible that she may have been the mother of Elizabeth Savil, daughter of William, who was buried 11 April 1596, and the Elizabeth Savil, daughter of William, who was baptized 10 December 1598.

Anne and Susan Savil were the other two children of William Savil who were cited as his daughters in the parish register of Saffron Walden. Anne, baptized 26 April 1601, married Samuel Bass and record of their marriage was recorded in the register 25 April 1625.

The other known child of William Savil of County Essex was William Savil of Braintree, Massachusetts. The name of William Savil was written in a record in Cambridge, Massachusetts, in 1641 and he moved to Braintree the following year. In 1669, he named his "brother" [in-law], Samuel Bass, as an executor of his will.[1]

5 (1) Anne Savil (William[1]), bap. 26 April 1601, Saffron Walden, County Essex, England; d. 5 September 1693, Braintree, now Quincy, bur. in Hancock Cemetery, Quincy, Massachusetts.
Samuel Bass, b. in 1600 in England, probably County Essex; d. 30 December 1694, Braintree, Suffolk County, now Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, bur. in Hancock Cemetery, Quincy; m. Anne Savil, 25 April 1625, Saffron Walden, England.

7 Samuel Bass, bap. 11 May 1626; d. 1653
8 John Bass, bap. 18 Oct. 1630; d. 12 Sept. 1716
9 Mary Bass, b. 1631; d. 29 June 1704
10 Hannah Bass, b. 1633
11 Thomas Bass, b. 1635; d. 8 Jan. 1719
12 Joseph Bass, d. 16 Jan. 1714
13 Ruth Bass
14 Sarah Bass, b. 26 Apr. 1643

Anne Savil was named as a daughter of William Savil in the record of her baptism, 26 April 1601, in the Church of St. Mary the Virgin at Saffron Walden, England.[2] Record of her marriage to Samuel Bass 25 April 1625 and the baptismal records of their two eldest children, Samuel and John, were also recorded in the Saffron Walden parish register.

In 1630 the Bass family immigrated to the colony of Massachusetts, and they settled in the town of Braintree. Their other children, Mary, Hannah, Thomas, Joseph, Ruth, and Sarah Bass, were born in Massachusetts, and were mentioned in their father's will except Ruth. As Ruth predeceased her father he devised to her daughter, Hannah Walsbee.

Red granite stones in Hanover Cemetery, Quincy, Massachusetts, mark the graves of Anne and her husband, Samuel Bass. The inscription on her stone reads: "Here lyeth the body of Ann Bass aged 92 departed this life 1692." The record of her death recorded in the town records of Braintree reads: "Mrs. Ann Bass, the wife of Decon Samuel Bass, died the 5th of September 1693, aged 93."

THE SEBRING FAMILY

1 Roelof Lukassen Sebring, b. about 1590, Beyle, Province of Drenthe, Netherlands.

2 Willemtje Sebring, b. 1619; d. 1690
3 Lambertje Sebring
4 Jan Roelofse Sebring, b. 1631
5 Jacob Roelofse Sebring
6 Daniel Roelofse Sebring

Roelof Lukassen Sebring was the father of five immigrants to New Netherland during the 1650's and 1660's. No record of Roelof Lukassen Sebring has been found among the Dutch records of New York, so it is presumed that he did not emigrate. Attempts made by Sebring descendants to trace his ancestry have been unsuccessful, and the name of his wife is unknown.

Using the Dutch system of patronymics, he would have been a son of Lukas Sebring. The translation of the name from the Dutch language to the English language resulted in variant phonetic spellings such as Cebring, Sebering, Seubering, and Suebering.

His known children were born at Beyle in the Province of Drenthe located in the northeastern part of the Netherlands. He was named as the father of Willemtje, wife of Steven Coerte van Voorhees; of Lambertje, wife of Capt. Jan Stryker; and of Jan Roeloffsen Sebring, the husband of Adrianna Polhemius.[1] In another reference, Jacob Roelofse Sebring whose children were baptized in the Reformed Dutch Church at Raritan, New Jersey, and Daniel Roelofse Sebring were also listed as sons of Roelof Lukassen Sebring.[2]

The Van Voorhees Family in America, published in 1888, is a compilation of the descendants of his daughter, Willemtje. Sebring Collections, published in 1975, is devoted to the descendants of his son, Jan Roelofse Sebring. The descendants of his daughter, Lambertje, have been researched by members of the Stryker family of which Dr. Kenn Stryker-Rodda is an authority.

Aeltje, m. Jan Roelofse Sebring, before 23 April 1703.

Jan Roelofse Sebring immigrated to New Netherland probably during the early 1650's. He may have sailed in 1652 with his sister, Lambertje, and her husband, Jan Stryker. He was named as one of the first three magistrates chosen for Midwout according to a record bearing date 2 July 1659.[3] He was probably appointed magistrate with Adriaen Hegeman in 1654.

He signed the certificate of Jan Elten 10 October 1679 in which it was stated that he, "Jan Seubering," was then forty-eight years of age and that he was a native of Drenthe.

He was listed on the assessment rolls of King's County, New York, 22 August 1675. He and his wife, Adrianna, were members of the Dutch Church at Midwout until 1681, and shortly thereafter they moved to Bergen, New Jersey. They were received into the Reformed Dutch Church at Bergen 2 October 1682.

Sebring signed the conveyance of Adrianna's deceased mother's land 19 December 1702. On 23 April 1703 he and Aeltje witnessed a baptism. His children's names were listed in Sebring Collections.

Her son, Mordecai McKinney, was an executor of the estate of Daniel Sebring of Reading Township, Hunterdon County, New Jersey. In his will, proved 19 November 1763 in Hunterdon County, Daniel Sebring named Mordecai McKinney and Daniel McKinney as his nephews.[4]

Mary was named as the wife of Mordecai McKinney in his will dated 17 November 1759. He also named their living children in his will.[5]

THE SHIPLEY FAMILY

Adam Shipley came to the shores of Maryland in 1668 as an indentured servant. He was transported from England by a merchant from Yorke, John Pawson, who proved his right to 500 acres of land, in 1670, for transporting Adam Shipleigh and nine other servants.[1] After serving as an indentured servant, Adam Shipley proved his right to 50 acres of land and a certificate was returned to him 10 January 1675 for a tract of land in Anne Arundel County on the south side of the Severn River.[2]

The Maryland Historical Society erected a marker 25 May 1968 which reads as follows: "Shipley's Choice Adam Shipley, who came to Anne Arundel County in 1668. On March 30, 1681, Patented 200 acres on the south side of the Severn River. Dedicated during the Tercentenary Commemoration of the Shipleys in Maryland."

As he was deeded 100 acres of land called Howard's and Porter's Range 5 April 1679,[3] it is thought that his wife was a Howard as the Howard family lived on this tract of land on the south side of the Severn River which was transferred to Adam Shipley. He acquired a 500 acre tract of land on Elk Ridge 8 April 1687 called Adam the First, in Anne Arundel, now Howard County, Maryland.

Adam Shipley died intestate. He left six minor children whose names are verified in legal documents.[4]

Robert Shipley lived on the Great Falls of the Patapsco River on 250 acres of land called Shipley's Discovery. He received 100 acres of land from his brother Richard, 9 August 1698 which was a portion of Adam the First on Elk Ridge. Robert's Delight, also a portion of Adam the First, was conveyed by Robert and his wife, Elizabeth, in 1745 to their grandson, William Shipley, Jr. Other tracts of land owned by Robert Shipley were Shipley's Search, Last Shift, Shipley's Enlargement, and What's Left.[5]

He was the first vestryman to serve in Queen Caroline Parish and served from 1728 through 1731. He was a pew holder in 1736.

Robert Shipley died testate. In his will, dated 6 December 1761 and proved 9 March 1763, he stated he had previously given his eldest children their shares, and mentioned only William, Lois, George, and Sarah.[6] The names of the children of Robert Shipley and his wife, Elizabeth Stevens, were recorded in the birth records in Queen Caroline Parish, Anne Arundel County, Maryland.[7]

Sarah Shipley was the second wife of Nicholas Gassaway of Anne Arundel County, Maryland. Robert Shipley, Sr., "in Consideration of the Natural Affections & Love which I have and Bear unto my well beloved Daughter Sarah Gassaway now the Wife of Nicholas Gassaway of Anne Arundell County in the afs[d]. His wife, Elizabeth, waived her dower rights "with her free and voluntary consent without any manner of Threats of her said Husband or the fear of his Displeasure." It was necessary for Sarah to pay two shillings and eleven pence alienation fine.[8]

Benjamin Gassaway is the only child, known to the compilers who is proven as a child of Sarah Shipley and her husband, Nicholas Gassaway. Benjamin, Richard, and Robert Gassaway received equal shares of the 300 acre estate, Talbot's Resolution Manor, according to the terms of their father's will dated in 1757.

Thomas Spalding was transported into the Province of Maryland by John Shircliffe in 1657,[1] and he served his term of indenture in the home of his cousin, Shircliffe, and Shircliffe's widow, Ann.

Three patents were issued to Thomas Spalding. St. Giles, containing 116 acres of land, was surveyed for him in 1667[2] following the issuance of a warrant 11 May 1667 for 50 acres of land due to him by bequest from John Shircliffe, and another 50 acres of land for successfully completing his term of indenture. Spalding's Addition was surveyed 4 August 1674 and contained 42 acres of land.[3] This second patent was granted upon the demand of Katherine, Thomas' wife, for 50 acres of land due to her for successfully completing her term of indenture. William's Hermitage, containing 109 acres of land, was resurveyed for Thomas Spalding in 1688.[4]

Thomas Spalding died intestate. Five sons have been identified through other records. His sons, John and William, each devised part of St. Giles in his will. They jointly purchased land called Two Brothers in 1714, and William purchased Spalding's Addition from his father in 1710. John and Thomas Spalding jointly purchased Batchelors Rest in 1711 and The Tavern in 1714. Peter and Edward signed the inventory of their brother, John Spalding of Charles County, Maryland, as next of kin, 1 November 1726.[5]

11 Charles Spalding

John Spalding married a daughter of Edward Field about 1700 and she was the mother of all his children except his son Charles. Edward Field died testate in St. Mary's County, Maryland. In his will, written 6 October 1724 and proved 14 November 1724, he bequeathed the cautious shilling to John Spalding, his son-in-law.[6]

John inherited the plantation known as St. Giles in St. Mary's County, Maryland, from his father, Thomas Spalding. He owned Batchelers Rest, The Tavern, and half-interest in The Two Brothers. After his second marriage, John moved to Charles County, Maryland, to a plantation called Town Manor.

John Spalding died testate. In his will, dated 18 January 1725 and proved 14 September 1726, he devised Town Manor to his wife, Priscilla, during her lifetime with entail to his youngest son, Charles. To his son, John, he willed 100 acres of Batchelers Rest in St. Clement's Bay Forest in Charles County, Maryland, and the plantations The Two Brothers and St. Giles in St. Mary's County, Maryland. To his sons, William and Basil, he bequeathed equal shares of Greene's Inheritence, a 200 acre tract of land near Port Tobacco in Charles County and a tract of land on Beavers Dam in St. Mary's County. He willed slaves and personalty to his daughter, Mary, and appointed his wife and his son, John, as executors of his last will and testament, and John was also to have the responsibility of bringing up and educating the testator's other children.[7]

Basil Spalding was named as a son of John Spalding in the latter's will dated 18 January 1726, and was at that time less than eighteen years of age.

Basil established his dwelling plantation in Charles County, Maryland, in the Upper Hundred of Portobacco although he also held land in St. Mary's County and Prince George's County. He inherited from his father 100 acres of land called Greene's Inheritance which lay in Charles County near Port Tobacco.[8] Basil purchased his brother William's share of 100 acres of Greene's Inheritance 13 November 1758.[9] In the conveyance it was stated that John Spalding of Charles County by will of 18 January 1725 did devise to his two sons, William and Basil, equally Greene's Inheritance purchased by John Spalding of Thomas Greene on 3 March 1713.

This tract of land was only a portion of the 2,500 acres of land patented by three of Gov. Thomas Greene's sons which they named Greene's Inheritence. Basil and William received equal shares of Beaver Dam Manor in St. Mary's County from their father. Basil patented 424 acres of land in Prince George's County in 1775 called Edelenton and Edelenton's Addition Resurveyed.[10]

In a series of three deeds dated 31 May 1783 Basil Spalding and his wife, Catherine, of Charles County conveyed Edeleton and Edelenton's Addition Resurveyed to three of their sons, John, William, and James Spalding. Each received one-third as his share of the estate for the "Love, Good Will, and Affection which they have and do bear toward their beloved Son..."[11]

Basil Spalding of Charles County subscribed to the oath of allegiance and fidelity 2 March 1778 before Judge Walter Hanson of Maryland. Basil was enumerated on the 1790 census for the state of Maryland with two males over sixteen years of age, which included himself, and four females in his household.

In her will dated 10 May 1760 in Prince George's County, Comfort (Barnes) Dyer Edelen willed to her "great grandchild Ann Spalding daughter of Basil Spalding." Basil's wife, Catherine Greene, was Comfort's granddaughter and the daughter of James Greene and Elizabeth Dyer. Researchers have concluded that Basil Spalding, through his son Edward, was the grandfather of Mother Catherine Spalding of Nelson County, Kentucky.

Basil Spalding died testate. In his will, dated 12 September 1791 and proved 5 March 1792, he devised his dwelling plantation on Port Tobacco Branch to his wife, Catherine, during her lifetime, and to his daughters, Ann, Christianne, and Mary Elizabeth, to be possessed by them during their single lives. He named his other children as Henry, John, William, Elizabeth Elder, Catherine Elder, James, Basil, and Hillary Spalding, and stated that each had previously received a portion of his estate.[12]

28 Susan Spalding

James Spalding subscribed to the patriot's oath in Prince George's County, Maryland, in 1778.

He received 140 acres as his share of Edelenton and Edelenton's Addition Resurveyed by deed of gift from his parents 31 May 1783. He was taxed on 164 acres of Edelenton and Edelenton's Addition Resurveyed in 1796 in Prince George's County. This tract of land remained in the Spalding family until 26 August 1810 when Anne Simms with her mother, Mary Spalding, her brothers, John and Thomas P. E. Spalding, and Susan Spalding, conveyed Edelenton and Edelenton's Addition Resurveyed to Thomas Simms.

James Spalding died intestate. His widow presented an inventory in court in October 1800 and relinquished the administration of the estate to their son John the following December.[13] The other Spaldings contemporary with James Spalding in Prince George's County died testate and accounted for their children in their wills and none indicated a son sixteen years or older on the 1790 census. As James Spalding reported two males in his household sixteen years or older on the 1790 census it is obvious that he was the only one who could be the father of a son born in 1774. Four of his children were accounted for in the conveyance of land dated 26 August 1810. His widow named two sons, John and Thomas, in her will dated 10 July 1825 and proved 20 May 1829.

James E. Spalding married Eleanor Gardiner, the widow of Stanilaus Boone. James received his wife's share of Boone's estate 20 April 1799 in Prince George's County, Maryland. James and Eleanor then moved to Kentucky and James was enumerated on the census 30 August 1800 as a resident of Nelson County, Kentucky. They settled near Bardstown in the Cox's Creek settlement.

Silas Techinor and James Spalding were bonded in court in Nelson County, Kentucky, 10 August 1828 as administrators of the estate of Thomas James Spalding, deceased.[14]

James Spalding died testate. In his will, dated 23 January 1847 and proved 10 January 1853, he named his wife and living children. As his daughter, Matilda Medcalf, had previously received her share, he willed her one dollar and devised his estate to his wife, Eleanor, and upon her death to be equally divided among his six children and one grandchild whom he named as Charlotte Barbara Spalding, Clement Augustine Spalding, Stanilaus Spalding, Henry Pius Spalding, Urban Ignatius Spalding, Elizabeth Catherine Hite, and granddaughter Rebecca Ann Moss.[15]

37 Rebecca Ann Spalding, b. 6 Dec. 1826; d. 15 Mar. 1919

Thomas James Spalding was listed on the Kentucky tax lists in 1827 and 1828 in Nelson County, Kentucky. He was located on Simpson Creek near Fairfield, about five miles east of Bardstown.

He obtained a marriage license from the county clerk at Paris in Bourbon County, Kentucky, and signed the marriage bond 8 January 1826 as Thomas J. Spalding with Charles D. Lennex as co-signer.[16] The marriage ceremony of Thomas and Hannah was performed by William C. Stribling 19 January 1826.[17]

Thomas James Spalding was not named in his father's will as he predeceased his father. His daughter, Rebecca Ann Spalding, received his share of the estate in his stead. He was named as Thomas Spalding and the eldest son of James Spalding in a family history in 1897.[18] He was cited as Thomas J. Spalding by his father 10 August 1828 when the latter gave bond with Silas Tichenor as administrator of his estate.

Thomas James Spalding died intestate. Silas Tichenor, administrator, made an inventory 25 August 1829 of the property belonging to the estate of Thomas J. Spalding, deceased, which was sold on that date, listing the name of the purchaser, the item sold and the amount paid by each purchaser. This list was ordered to be recorded 14 December 1829.[19] Final settlement was made and was ordered to be recorded 9 October 1830.[20]

Rebecca Ann Spalding was reared in the home of her aunt, Charlotte Barbara Spalding, in Nelson County, Kentucky, after the death of her father. She migrated from Bardstown to Marion County, Missouri, before she was seventeen years of age.

She was married to Harrison W. Moss 2 March 1843,[21] and was widowed 30 October 1849. During this brief marriage, she and her husband moved from Marion County to Macon County, Missouri. Rebecca married at Woodville in Macon County to the Rev. John Peyton,[22] and the forty-four years of their married life were spent in Macon, Randolph, and Shelby counties, Missouri. She lived through the periods of five wars: Black Hawk uprising, Mexican War, Civil War, Spanish-American War, and World War I, and had many wonderful stories to relate of historical events. She cast her first ballot at the polls in Houston, Texas, aged ninety-two.[23]

Rebecca received property through bequests in three wills. Her grandfather, James Spalding, devised a child's share to her in his will dated 23 January 1847. She received a share of the estate of her deceased husband, Harrison W. Moss, in the settlement of his estate 24 October 1849 in Macon County, Missouri.[24] Her husband, the Rev. John Peyton, bequeathed to her one-half interest in the mercantile business, Peyton & Son, at Macon, Missouri, and all other property both real and personal, and appointed her as executrix of his estate in his will dated 14 December 1886.[25]

The Rev. Walter Toole deposed 6 March 1894 that he performed the marriage ceremony of Rebecca Ann Moss and John Peyton, and that he inadverently entered her name on the marriage record dated 14 December 1894 as Elizabeth Moss.[26] She was named by her paternal grandfather, James Spalding of Nelson County, Kentucky, in his will as "my granddaughter Rebecca Ann Moss."[27] Her maternal grandfather, Dr. Enoch Hayden, wrote a letter to his son Peyton Randolph Hayden dated 29 March 1843 and stated "your niece Ann Spalding" was recently married.[28]

The vital statistics of the family of Rebecca Ann Spalding were recorded in the family Bible. Her date of birth, her date of marriage to John Peyton, her date of death; the dates of birth and the dates of death of her two husbands; the dates of birth and the names of all of her children; their dates of marriage with the exception of her two eldest sons; the dates of birth of three of her grandsons, and the dates of death of her grandson and her son, Henry, who preceded her in death were recorded in the Family Record pages.

JOHN SPALDING, SETTLER OF CHARLES COUNTY, MARYLAND

Spalding Family of Maryland, Kentucky, and Georgia from 1658-1963, vol. 2, 1963, pp. 249-250

John Spalding, we feel quite sure, was the oldest son of Thomas and Catherine. He was probably named for John Shercliffe, his father's benefactor. There is no record of his birth date, but it is estimated to have been in 1675 or 1676.

On December 4, 1712, he and his brother Thomas bought "The Tavern" containing one hundred acres of land, and on December 10, 1714, he and his brother William bought 165 acres of land which they named "Two Brothers."

John's first wife was a daughter of Edward Field, of St. Mary's County, Maryland. She died about 1720, for during that year John married Priscilla Smith, widow of William Smith of Charles County. The will of his first wife's father Edward Field was proven at Leonardtown, Maryland, on November 14, 1724, and by the provisions of that will he left his former son-in-law John Spalding one shilling...

After John and Priscilla were married they moved to Charles County, Maryland. John died there in June of 1726. His will was written on January 18, 1724, and probated in Charles County on September 14, 1726. He left five children: John, William, Basil, Mary and Charles, and it appears from the wording of his will that the four oldest children were by his first wife...

Charles Stevens transported his family into the Province of Maryland and settled in South River Hundred in Anne Arundel County, Maryland. A survey for 400 acres of land was made 15 October 1663 for Charles Stephens and John Howard near the round bay on the south side of the Severn River.[1] The variant spelling of the name is of less importance than the fact that the land was patented jointly with John Howard.

In a demand for land dated 30 May 1666 by John Howard, it was stated that Howard married the widow of Charles Stevens. Howard demanded 600 acres of land for the transportation of twelve persons due "for the transportation of Severall persons into this Province by the said Stevens (to witt) the sd Charles and Suzan Stevens, Elizabeth, Suzan, Sarah, and Charles their Children." The servants transported by Charles Stevens were Patrick Duncan, Samuel Skipwith, Henry Sevall, Guy Meeke, Lillie Sullivan, and John Minister.

A Charles Stevens patented land in 1662 and was designated as the son of a Charles Stevens who died in 1658.[2] It is not known whether this pertains to Charles Stevens who married Susan.

Charles Stevens died intestate between 15 October 1663 and 30 May 1666 in Anne Arundel County. The name of his wife and the names of his children were listed in the demand for land made by John Howard.[3]

Charles Stevens was named as a son of Charles Stevens in a demand for land dated 30 May 1666.[4]

An inquiry into the ownership of land was signed by Charles Stevens in the home of Richard Hill 20 May 1674.[5]

Charles Stevens died intestate, before 22 September 1703, in Anne Arundel County, Maryland. An inventory of his personal estate was presented in court on that date by his appraisers, Edward Hall and John Marrett.[6] His widow and executrix, Elizabeth Stevens, presented an account of his estate in court 12 June 1704.[7] By 1707 she had married Thomas Brown, Jr., who at that time was in possession of the 271 acre plantation called Charles's Hills which had been surveyed for Charles Stevens 17 March 1678. This tract of land lay on the west side of the Severn River. The names of the children of Charles Stevens were also gleaned from the Maryland rent rolls of 1707 and they were then in possession of their father's land. In 1707 William Stevens was in possession of the 72 acre tract of land called What-you-please between South River and the Severn which was surveyed for Charles Stevens 14 February 1688. Timber Neck, 303 acres of land, surveyed 14 February 1688 for Charles Stevens, was in 1707 in possession of Elizabeth Stevens, Sarah Stevens and Mary Yeidhall. Mary was named as the daughter of Charles Stevens and the three girls shared equally in the estate.[8] Therefore, the wife of Charles Stevens was named Elizabeth, and their children were William, Mary, Sarah, and Elizabeth.

Elizabeth Stevens was in possession of 101 acres of land called Timber Neck in 1707.[9] This tract of land was her share of the estate of her father, Charles Stevens, deceased.

After her marriage to Robert Shipley, they moved to the northern part of Anne Arundel County which later became Howard County.

Elizabeth evidently preceded her husband in death as she was not mentioned in his will dated 6 December 1761. The baptismal records of Queen Caroline Parish contain the names and baptismal dates of the children of Elizabeth Stevens and her husband, Robert Shipley.[10]

Nicholas Stillwell emigrated from County Surrey, England, to the colony of Virginia prior to 1639, for in that year he was appointed a viewer of tobacco in Charles River County, Virginia, by an act of the General Assembly. In this position, accorded only to "men of experience and in dignity," he was responsible for seeing that the rotten and unmerchantable tobacco and one-half of the good crop was to be burned in order to maintain a fair marketable price.[1]

On 15 August 1642 a grant of land in Mobjecke Bay was described as adjacent to Stillwell's land on the north side of the northernmost branch of the Severn River.[2] He received a grant of 200 acres of land in Charles River County 8 October 1642 for the transportation of four persons into the colony.[3] He owned a tract of land more than a mile long in Gloucester County on the north side of York River. He gave his house and plantation lying on the east side of West Creek in York County as security for a note of one thousand pounds of tobacco 23 February 1645.[4]

Stillwell received a commission as a lieutenant and participated under Claiborne in the first two expeditions against the Indians prior to the capture of the Indian chief, Opechancanough, 4 June 1644. He also accompanied Claiborne on the ill-fated expedition to Kent Island in an attempt to regain the island as a part of Virginia territory. He was charged with deserting his country, Virginia, and he sought asylum among the Dutch in New Amsterdam. His property was appraised 26 September 1648 and was attached by his creditors.[5] His Virginia property was quite valuable and his assets exceeded his debts.

Upon his arrival in New Amsterdam in 1645, Stillwell bought a house and lot between Beaver Street and Broadway as related to the present streets of New York City. He traded this property 25 November 1646 for an outlying farm owned by Jan Jansen Schepmoes.[6] He also purchased a house in Smith's Valley, which is now the corner of Maiden Lane and Pearl Street, and sold the house to Henry Brazier in 1648.[7]

About 1648 he joined the English colony at Gravesend, Long Island, and purchased a house and lot from George Holmes. In 1653 he moved to a neighboring town called New Amersfoort (Flatlands) and purchased a farm of considerable size near his son-in-law, Nathaniel Britain. Lt. Stillwell bought a farm in Gravesend known as Cellar Neck 25 August 1654 and returned to Gravesend in 1655. He entered into a trade with Anthony Jansen van Salee 1 April 1660 whereby Jansen was to receive plantation No. 29 and 1,600 guilders for 200 acres of land lying between Gravesend and New Utrecht. Jansen was dissatisfied and the ensuing dispute lasted until 2 March 1662 when the matter was settled by Peter Stuyvesant and his council in favor of Stillwell. Following the capitulation of the Dutch government to the English Lt. Nicholas Stillwell sold his Long Island farm and moved to Manhattan Island 28 February 1665 and subsequently settled on the southeastern shore of Staten Island with other members of his family.

Stillwell was loyal to the Dutch government which afforded him asylum. He was promptly nominated and confirmed as one of the magistrates of Gravesend upon his arrival in January 1649, and was re-nominated in 1650, 1651, 1652, and 1653. He served as magistrate of New Amersfoort (Flatlands) in 1654 and 1655, and upon his return to Gravesend he was again elected to the magistracy. He served as sheriff in Gravesend in 1657 and was elected as schout in 1663.

His acquaintance with Indian warfare gained in the expeditions against the Pamunkies in Virginia possibly saved the Dutch from annihilation. Although there was a law passed to prohibit occupancy of outlying farms, Nicholas petitioned 26 April 1660 for permission to remain on his farm between Gravesend and New Utrecht as he, his three sons, and four servants were able to protect themselves from Indian attacks. He was commissioned as a lieutenant of an English troop 6 July 1663 and by 5 September 1663 he and his men had completely routed and practically exterminated the Esopus nation which had been attacking the settlers.

The Dutch colonies were also threatened by the English, and it was to them that the Dutch surrendered. When James Christie rode into Gravesend and delivered a commission that the townspeople were no longer Dutch subjects but were English subjects, Stillwell, as schout, immediately imprisoned Christie without the advice of the magistrates. The irate English settlers of Long Island sought to capture Stillwell and hold him as hostage, but he escaped during the night. He sought refuge, once again, in New Amsterdam.

Nicholas Stillwell died testate on Staten Island. In his will, dated 22 December 1671 and proved 17 June 1672, he named his wife as executrix and sole legatee.[8] His sons, William, Thomas, Daniel, and Jeremiah were baptized in the Dutch Church in New Amsterdam. His sons Richard and Nicholas were named in land records, and his daughters, Anne, Alice, and Mary, were identified through marriage records. John was mentioned in his step-father's will.

In 1683 Alice Osborne was listed on the census for Gravesend as the largest owner of land and cattle in the entire town, having 115 acres of land, twenty-two cows of different ages, and five horses.

Samuel Holmes named Alice as his executrix in his will dated 28 February 1679 and proved 25 June 1679. He named each of his children and named Richard Stillwell as his brother-in-law.[9] The dates of birth of the children of Alice Stillwell and Samuel Holmes, except Mary, were recorded in the Record of Births of the Society of Friends in Gravesend.[10]

Richard Talbot settled on West River in Anne Arundel County, Maryland. He assigned his rights to 200 acres of land to James Bonner and Thomas Spratt 2 August 1659 and stated the land had been entered upon record six or seven years before but had not been made use of to that date. The inference is that he was in Maryland prior to 1653. On the same date, 2 August 1659, he presented a demand for land for transporting Catherine Orke into the province, and Maj. Richard Ewen assigned 50 acres of land to his "Son in Law Richard Talbott."[1]

Poplar Knowle, now Tulip Hill, was Richard Talbot's dwelling plantation. In a patent dated 14 September 1659 Cecilus Calvert granted to Richard Talbot, assignee of John Brown, Christopher Rowles, and Richard Moseby, all the land formerly surveyed for them lying on the west side of Chesapeake Bay on the north side of West River called Poplar Knowle. In his will he bequeathed to his eldest son, Richard, the "seat of land I now live upon called Poplar Knowle," and 82 acres of land called Talbot's Timber Neck. He gave to his sons, John and Edward, 300 acres of land called Talbot's Ridge to be divided between them.

Richard Talbot died testate. His will, dated 21 April 1663, was recorded in the same year. He named each of his children, Elizabeth, Richard, Edward, and John and devised property to each. He appointed his wife, Elizabeth, as executrix of his estate.[2]

Elizabeth Talbot married first James Preston of Patuxent, Calvert County, Maryland.[3] His will was proved in Anne Arundel County by his widow whom he appointed as his executrix. He devised his entire estate, including servants, goods, cattle, lands, chattels &c to be divided equally between his wife, Elizabeth, and his daughter Rebecca.

Elizabeth married second Benjamin Lawrence, gentleman, of The Deserts in Calvert County. Her step-father, William Richardson, assigned a tract of 115 acres of land to Benjamin in Anne Arundel County called Benjamin's Fortune which became their home. By 1684, Benjamin and Elizabeth were living at Ewen Upon Ewenton which is known today as Cedar Park, for in that year the West

River Meeting of Quakers was held in their home on the 21st day of the 3rd month.[4]

In his will Benjamin Lawrence named his wife, Elizabeth, as executrix. The will was proved 3 July 1685 and the estate was appraised at £417 . 13 . 6.

As her third husband, Elizabeth Talbot married Richard Galloway in the home of William Richardson, her step-father, near West River, at a Quaker Meeting held 10 December 1686. The certificate of marriage contained the names of thirty-two witnesses all of whom were Friends, mostly from the Western shore.

Elizabeth Talbot died intestate. The name of her daughter, Rebecca Preston, was recorded in the will of the child's father, James Preston.[5] Elizabeth's second husband, Benjamin Lawrence, named their children, Benjamin and Elizabeth, in his will,[6] and Lucy was named as the heir of Benjamin Lawrence in an Act of the Assembly 22 April 1720.[7] The names of the children of Elizabeth by her third husband, Richard Galloway, were proved by the will of John Rigbie and the records of birth at the Stony Run Meeting House.[8]

John Turner, termed Scotch-Irish, arrived in America as a boy. Being of light weight he was sought after as a jockey to ride race horses in his youth. He served seven years in the army and fought in the Revolutionary War.[1]

He moved from Halifax County, Virginia, to North Carolina and was taxed in 1796 in Person County. In 1804 he sold 200 acres of land in Caswell County, North Carolina, to Stephen Jones. This land on Bluewing Creek was adjacent to the land of James Jones and his son Ambrose Jones, and was in the same neighborhood with David Halliburton. Turner subsequently moved to Dickson County, Tennessee, and settled on Yellow Creek.[2]

John Turner was a Primitive Baptist minister. He preached and organized churches in Middle Tennessee, and three of his sons, George, Samuel, and Howard William, were also Baptist ministers.

The Rev. John Turner died testate in 1824. In his will he named his wife, Elizabeth, and his sons, Samuel, William, and Howard.[3] Martin Halliburton wrote in his family Bible that he married Frances, daughter of John Turner and his wife, Elizabeth. The Rev. William Allen Turner, who was born in 1839, named each of the sons and the two sons-in-law of the Rev. John Turner in a letter dated 19 May 1904.

In 1852 Frances and Martin moved to Randolph County, Missouri, to settle among their sons. In 1860, aged seventy-six, Frances returned to Tennessee to visit her children who remained there. I think of having a great boulder placed over the grave of Elder Jno Turner and his wife, Sukie [Elizabeth] Dillard Turner. They sleep side by side. From what I can gather she was a Welsh woman, and an old time Midwife and was married to Mr. Turner in Halifax Co., Va. When a boy after he came to this continent he was a Jockey and being a man of light weight was sought after to ride horses on the race track. Bartholomew Vawter immigrated to America with his brothers, John and Angus, about 1685, probably from near Plymouth, England.[1] Bartholomew settled in St. Ann's Parish in Old Rappahannock County, now Essex County, Virginia.

Three years later, in July 1688, he made a gift of a cow calf to Margaret Rutherford, the daughter of Robert Rutherford, and had the deed of gift recorded in the court records.[2] Margaret Rutherford was probably his first grandchild.

The name of Bartholomew Vawter appeared in the Essex County court records from the late 1680's until the probation of his will 17 September 1717, but he did not traffic in the buying and selling of land. Bartholomew Vawter and Winifred his wife appeared in court and acknowledged the sale of a tract of land to James Landrum and it was ordered to be recorded.[3] The conveyance to Landrum was recorded 10 August 1696.[4] On the 9 November 1696 James Landrum and his wife, Mary, conveyed a tract of land to Bartholomew Vawter.[5] One other land transaction dated 10 October 1699 from Hawkins to Vawter was recorded.

In a period of less than ten years Vawter served as appraiser of no less than ten estates. He was cited as surveyor of lands in a conveyance of land dated 1 June 1708 in Essex County.

Bartholomew served as a member of the jury in court held in Essex County 9 February 1704 and 3 January 1706. He served as a witness in court on at least four different occasions: 10 August 1696; 27 January 1698; and twice in 1699.

Winifred was named as a daughter of William Hodgson and the wife of Bartholomew Vawter in a deed recorded 5 August 1696.[6] She was his second wife, married in Virginia, and the mother of three sons who were mentioned as minors in 1717 in the will of Bartholomew Vawter.

Bartholomew Vawter died testate. In his will, dated 16 August 1717 and proved 17 September 1717 in Essex County, Virginia, he appointed his son, John, as executor, and devised the home plantation to him. John Vawter appeared in the Essex County records as early as 11 June 1711. Bartholomew willed to his son, William, the land in the forest upon which William was living at the time of the writing of the will. To his daughter, Margaret, Bartholomew willed "one Cow and calf to be delivered to her after my decease with all their increase" and anything which she had received prior to the writing of his will. As Margaret's daughter, Margaret Rutherford, was deeded a cow calf in July 1688, Margaret would have immigrated with her father about 1685. These bequests show that Margaret, John, and William were older than Bartholomew's other sons and were children by his first wife. David Vawter was not yet of age at the time of the writing of Bartholomew's will. Bartholomew willed David the other one-half part of his lands in the forest and willed that David be of age and independent at such time that Bartholomew's death should occur. Benjamin and Edward were cited as still younger sons than David denoting that David, Benjamin, and Edward were sons of Bartholomew's second wife.[7] John administered his father's estate and presented a lengthy inventory in court 16 July 1718. A parcel of old books was appraised at fifteen shillings.

Margaret Vawter immigrated to Virginia from England with her father's family about 1685. Her father recorded a gift of a cow calf to Margaret Rutherford, daughter of Robert Rutherford, in 1688. This was probably the first child of Margaret Vawter and her husband, Robert Rutherford, Jr., and the first granddaughter of Bartholomew Vawter.

Margaret's other children are accounted for in records relating one to another. Her daughter, Mary, married Col. James Wood. John Rutherford received 300 acres of land in 1754 from his "brother-in-law," Col. James Wood. In 1738 Thomas Rutherford acquired a tract of land in Frederick County adjoining his "brother-in-law," Col. James Wood. Joseph Rutherford was deeded 400 acres of land on Cub Creek in Augusta County, Virginia, in 1760, by Mary Wood, widow of Col. James Wood. In 1738 Reuben Rutherford had Col. James Wood survey land for him on Wood's River. Benjamin Rutherford died testate in Frederick County, Virginia, in 1803. He and James both appeared in earlier Essex County records.

Margaret was named as a daughter of Bartholomew Vawter in his will, dated 16 August 1717, and received a cow and a calf as her share of his estate.[8]

Christopher Webb emigrated from England about 1640 to the Massachusetts Bay Colony. He was admitted as a freeman in May 1645, and was listed as a proprietor of Braintree in 1656.

The selectmen of Braintree laid out a road 2 February 1657 for goodman Hayden. The meanderings of the road ran on a line of the land owned by Deacon Samuel Bass and by the swamp of goodman Webb's extending along between two hills.[1]

He predeceased his wife by sixteen years and she died in Braintree, Massachusetts, aged ninety-nine years.[2] He made provision for her during her widowhood by allowing her all of his movable property and four acres of land during her lifetime.

Christopher Webb died testate in June 1671. He named his wife, Humility, as the executrix of his estate but she did not serve as executrix. His will was probated 2 November 1671 and an administrator's bond was issued to his son, Christopher Webb, 12 December 1671. Christopher presented an inventory of the estate of his father 15 January 1672 and it was recorded on that date. In his will, Christopher Webb named his wife, Humility, his son, Christopher, his daughter, Mary Sheffeld, and his daughter, Sarah Buckmaster, and made bequests to each.[3] Thomas Webb, who lived in Boston, was named as a son of Christopher Webb in The Giles Memorial.

Christopher Webb served as town clerk of Braintree. He was elected 13 May 1673 and 18 May 1678 as town clerk. For a period of seventeen years he recorded the dates of marriages, births, and deaths of the citizens of the town of Braintree in Suffolk County, Massachusetts. He did so in Old Style, following the precepts set forth in the Julian calendar. The original records bearing the handwriting of Christopher Webb are extant in the town clerk's office in Braintree, Massachusetts.

He was elected as a selectman many years and was given the authority to represent the town in official business transactions. He was authorized 25 March 1673 to seek out and purchase a tract of 6,000 acres of land for the town of Braintree. He and his two partners were allowed 1,500 acres of land for their time and effort.[4] He was one of the selectmen who looked after the commons, improving the pasture, and fencing it.[5] He represented the town of Braintree in court in the dispute between the heirs of the pastor of Boston, Rev. John Wilson, and the town, 4 March 1678 and was designated as Christopher Webb, Sr.[6] Webb and other selectmen were empowered by the town meeting to prevent the building of a dam on the Manatiquod River which would interfere with the natural movement of the fish up and down the river.[7]

Webb served as an ensign in the town militia and was also listed as a drummer.[8] He served as an ensign in King Philip's War, a war with the Indians.

He was a representative from the town of Braintree in the Legislature in 1689 and 1690. His career of public service in Braintree made him one of the effective men of the early history of Massachusetts.

In a conveyance of land dated 11 April 1688, Christopher Webb, Sr., and his wife, Hannah, transferred the ownership of the corn mill, the mill pond, mill dam, banks, headwaters, gears, and one and one-half acres of land together with a barn, other buildings, fences and improvements, and an adjoining 40 acre tract of land on the south side of the Manatiquod River to John Holbrooke.[9]

Christopher Webb died testate. In his will, dated 14 April 1694 and probated 29 June 1694, he stated he was a wheelwright. An inventory of his estate presented 28 June 1694 included lands and meadows in the mill field, a fresh meadow, a piece of upland, some salt marsh, the dwelling house, barn, and sheephouse; and a dwelling house with an orchard in Monatiquit. He named his eldest sons, John, Peter, and Samuel, as his executors and willed his entire estate to his wife Hannah during her life time with the exception of bequests of £20 to each of his eight living children, and to the children of his deceased son, Christopher.[10] The date of his marriage to Hannah Scott, the name and date of birth of each of their nine children, the dates of death of himself and his wife Hannah and their son Christopher were recorded in the Braintrey Book of Records in Braintree, Massachusetts.[11]

Peter Webb headed the list of freeholders in the town of Braintree, Massachusetts, 10 January 1698 who agreed "That wheras there are some persons of Boston that make some claime or pretensions, to some lands, in our Towneship of Braintry...we the subscribers of the s[d] town doe mutually agree to defend our ancient Rights and will oppose in a course of Law, those and all those that shall by any means disturbe, molest, endeavour to dispossese, any of the s[d] inhabitants of s[d] Lands afores[d] ..." [12]

itants, Peter Webb was chosen as one of the committeemen to go to Boston to search the records for reference to the grant of 6,000 acres of land made by the general court to the town of Braintree, 3 March 1710. The inhabitants voted 8 June 1713 that Peter Webb serve on a committee of three to "find and lay out the 6,000 acres of land formerly granted by the Honoured Court...and to do what is needful to be done about the same in y^{e} space of one year."[13]

He was appointed to various positions in the town meeting. He was appointed as constable 3 March 1712 and 4 March 1717, but each time he declined to serve.[14] He was appointed fence viewer 1 March 1703 and 7 March 1709; a surveyor 6 March 1704; a titheing man 1 March 1708; and was elected as one of the selectmen in 1716.[15] At the town meeting held 27 June 1698 Peter Webb delivered an Indian deed to the Moderator.

His wife, Ruth, died in 1699 leaving nine minor children. One child predeceased her. Within a few years, Peter re-married and he was the father of five additional children by his second wife. At a town meeting held 3 March 1718 it was voted that there be abated to the widow and children of Mr. Peter Webb, deceased, three pounds ten shillings of his five pound bond which was in the town treasurer's hands.[16]

Peter Webb, a miller in the north precinct of Braintree, died intestate. An inventory of his estate was filed in the court at Boston, Massachusetts, 12 February 1718. He owned 40 acres of land on which his mill was located. His inventory was appraised at £684.8.0.[17] The names of his fifteen children and the date of birth of each were recorded in the town records of Braintree. The date of death of his first wife, Ruth Bass, and his date of death were also recorded in the town records which are extant in the town clerk's office.[18]

Priscilla Webb was named as a daughter of Peter Webb and Ruth, his wife, in her birth record recorded in the town records of Braintree,[19] and she lived her entire life in Braintree.[20] Her husband, Samuel Hayden, and some of her children moved to the areas of New York and New Jersey after 1752.[21]

In a quit claim deed dated 6 June 1727 she and her husband, Samuel Hayden, assigned to her brother, John Webb, her right to her share of the housing, farm land, and mill of her father Peter Webb, deceased.[22] In another conveyance of land dated 1 September 1730 Priscilla and Samuel Hayden transferred 60 acres of land to James Penniman in Braintree.[23]

The birth records of the children of Priscilla Webb and her husband, Samuel Hayden, are on file in the Town Clerk's Office in Braintree, Massachusetts, having been recorded at the time of birth of each in the town records of Braintree by the town clerk.[24]

THE WEIRE FAMILY

1 Maj. John Weire, d. in 1671, Old Rappahannock County, Virginia.

Honoria, d. in 1685 between 9 November and 16 December; m. Maj. John Weire, about 1650 in Virginia.

2 John Weire, d. 1684

3 Elizabeth Weire

John Weire, one of the early settlers of colonial Virginia, was active in governing the colony. He was elected as a representative from Rappahannock County to the House of Burgesses in 1658 and served through 1661. The records show he was a burgess in 1663 and served during 1666 and 1667. He was appointed to serve on several committees with Col. John Washington of Westmoreland County, the great grandfather of Pres. George Washington. On one occasion he was appointed to a committee to propose the rates of the country's commodities for payment of public debts, ministers, parish duties, officer's fees, fines, quit rents, and other rents. He was a member of a committee appointed 28 October 1666 that was concerned with an order and warrant which they presented to the governor which pertained to "The Act of Cessation" or the restriction of planting tobacco during the period of low prices. He was one of the three burgesses who signed a letter addressed to the governor in October 1667 advising the construction of a fort. The closing sentence of the letter reads in part that the government "render us the happiest people of our Nation in any of his Majesty's foreign plantations."[1]

Maj. Weire was a large landowner in Lancaster County and in Sittenbourne Parish of Old Rappahannock County. His land was located in the parts of Rappahannock County now situated in Richmond and Essex counties. Much of his land was acquired by purchase of patents previously issued to other patentees, but considerable acreages were assigned to him by patents under the headright system of 50 acres of land for each person transported. A certificate for transportation of ten persons was issued to him

1. Journals of the House of Burgesses of Virginia 1659/60-1693, 1914, pp. vii, viii, 36-39, 43, 46, 49.

6 October 1654.[2] He received land 26 June 1663 for the transportation of forty-one persons, and a certificate dated 2 November 1661 showed he had transported fourteen others.

Designated as Capt. John Weire, he received patents 22 February 1662 totaling 1,600 acres of land in Old Rappahannock County. Designated as John Weire, Gent., he received a patent 26 June 1663 for 1,302 acres of land in the forest between the Rappahannock and Potomac rivers, and tracts of 200 acres and 250 acres of land on the north side of the Rappahannock.[3] In 1666 he received patents for 6,570 acres of land. One tract bearing patent date 6 June 1666 was the same tract of land conveyed in 1697 by Elizabeth Gardiner, daughter and heiress of Maj. John Weire.

Maj. John Weire was also selected to render judgment in the civil courts. In 1670, at a court held in James City County he was one of four gentlemen selected from Old Rappahannock County to resolve the differences in the case of Foxhall vs Lord.

He was listed as a member of the vestry in 1665 in Old Rappahannock, now Essex County, Virginia.[4]

John Weire was ordered to pay levy on five tithables 6 February 1655 in Lancaster County, Virginia.[5]

Maj. John Weire died testate. In his will, dated 7 May 1671 and proved 28 April 1678, he devised dower rights to his wife, Honoria. To his daughter, Elizabeth Weire, he devised a tract of land called The Island, and one-third of his personal estate, after his debts were paid, at age seventeen or her day of marriage whichever should occur first. To his son, John Weire, he devised one-third of his personal estate and the residue of the land in Virginia and else where. He devised one-half the 1,108 acres of land on Rappahannock River to his stepdaughter, Margaret, wife of John Watts of Potomac River. He appointed his wife, Honoria, as executrix.[6]

4 Luke Gardiner, b. 1680; d. 1720
5 John Gardiner, d. 1717

Elizabeth Weire married Richard Gardiner who was elected as a burgess from St. Mary's County, Maryland, and she was widowed in less than ten years.

According to the terms of her husband's will, Elizabeth received a plantation in Richmond County, Virginia, which lay near the Rappahannock River. This plantation of 2,502 acres of land was conveyed by Elizabeth to Clement Hill 9 April 1686. It was the same tract of land received by patent by her father, Maj. John Weire, 6 June 1666 in Sittenbourne Parish in Old Rappahannock County, Virginia.[7] In 1693 Clement Hill returned the land to Elizabeth, "widow and Relict of Richard Gardiner, deceased."[8] She disposed of the land in a conveyance dated 7 July 1697.[9]

Elizabeth died intestate. Her sons, Luke and John, were named in the will of her husband, Richard Gardiner, proved 3 December 1687. According to the terms of his will, Elizabeth was given the choice of any plantation or tract of land that he, Richard Gardiner, had in Maryland on the condition that she continue to live in Maryland, otherwise the legacy would be void. She was bequeathed one-third of his personal property.[10]

THE WHALEY FAMILY

1 James Whaley, b. about 1700; d. in 1750 before 4 June, Richmond County, Virginia.
Elizabeth, m. James Whaley, about 1727.

2 James Whaley, b. 19 July 1728; d. 1784
3 Thomas Whaley
4 William Whaley

James Whaley first settled in New Kent County, Virginia, a county which lay to the south and west of York River. The birth of his son, James Whaley, was registered in the church register of St. Peter's Parish in New Kent County 19 July 1728. Whaley subsequently moved to Richmond County, formerly Old Rappahannock County, north of the Rappahannock River. He lived there the remainder of his life. From his will it is evident that he was a planter maintaining at least two plantations. His land, crops of tobacco and corn, and his slaves were mentioned in his will.

James Whaley died testate at a relatively early age as two of his sons were minors at that time. His will, dated 4 January 1749, was proved in a court held in Richmond County, Virginia, 4 June 1750. He made bequests to his wife, to three sons, and one daughter. His daughter he did not name but "cut her off with a Shilling Sterling." To his wife, Elizabeth, he devised a horse and side saddle, a negro named Tom, a bed and furniture, and the crop of corn and tobacco on the plantation on which Tom lived. He stated in the event of her re-marriage the bequests made to her were to be given to his son Thomas. His son Thomas was also named as the devisee to receive four thousand pounds of tobacco which was bequeathed to William, in the event of the latter's death. No other bequests were made to Thomas who was then a minor. The testator bequeathed to his son James a negro boy named Jack. The balance of his moveables he divided between his wife Elizabeth and his son William. He named William, whom he designated as his younger son, as his sole executor and gave to him items designated as a saddle, wearing clothes, a bed, furniture, and the crop on the plantation on which he was then living.[1]

James Whaley was brought into court by his wife 9 May 1758 in Loudoun County, Virginia. The court order stated that James Whaley, Jr., had a base born child by his wife's sister during the previous six months, and also charged Barbara Remy with having borne a base born child within the previous six months.[2] The following year his wife again brought suit against him, and then seemingly resigned herself to her lot, and Lydia Ann and her sister, Barbara, bore the children of James Whaley contemporaneously.

2. Loudoun Co. Orders, Book A, p. 98, Courthouse, Leesburg, VA.

His brother William Whaley later married Barbara.

James Whaley entered into a deed of lease 12 December 1774 in Loudoun County, Virginia, for the natural lives of himself, of his present wife, Ann, and of their son George.[3] Ann Whaley claimed dower rights to the estate of her deceased husband, Mr. James Carter, 10 August 1783.[4] These two deeds prove that James Whaley married as his second wife the widow of Mr. James Carter.

James Whaley died testate. In his will, dated 8 July 1784 and proved 8 August 1784 in Loudoun County, he made bequests to his wife Ann and his son George, who was then a minor, and made plans for the education of George when he should become of age. He made bequests to his children John Whaley and Jane Ellis and to his children by Barbara Remy whom he identified as Benjamin Talbot Remy, commonly called Ben Whaley; Jacob Remy, commonly called Gibson Whaley; James Remy, commonly called James Whaley; Elizabeth Remy, commonly called Elizabeth Whaley; Rebecca Remy, commonly called Rebecca Whaley; Henry Remy, commonly called Henry Whaley; and Elijah Remy, commonly called Elijah Whaley. In order to circumvent his children by Lydia Ann Remy, except John and Jane, from sharing in his estate, he made bequests to his grandchildren: Hannah Neale Talbot, the daughter of his daughter Mary and her husband Benjamin Talbot; the children of his daughter Elizabeth and her husband William Bernard Sears; the children of his daughter Barbara and her husband Henry Talbot; and Charles Whaley, son of his son William Whaley and his wife Elizabeth. Three days after dating his will, he relented and signed a codicil whereby he entailed to his children John Whaley, William Whaley, Elizabeth Sears, Barbara Talbot, and Jane Ellis, all that part of his estate, to be equally divided among them, which he had devised to his son George in case George should die before attainment of lawful age, and in case his wife should then be living, then at the time of her decease.[5]

Rebecca Whaley was the second wife of Dr. Enoch Hayden. They jointly sold a one-half acre lot in Moorefield, Virginia, 7 March 1788 to Casper Rinker and gave as their place of residence Fairfax County, Virginia.[6] Rebecca moved with her family to Bourbon County, Kentucky, at an early date, and was co-signer with her husband 5 June 1793 in a conveyance of land to John Bunton. They specified their residence as then being in Bourbon County, Kentucky, and the land description coincided with the tract of land lying in Mercer County, Kentucky, on Haydens Creek, running into Chaplins Fork of Salt River, which Enoch purchased 24 May 1787, with his brother Noah.[7] Rebecca and Enoch were co-signers to a transaction of land dated 7 April 1813 in Bourbon County, in conjunction with Abel and Hester Griffith.[8]

Rebecca lived near Paris in Bourbon County, Kentucky, for more than thirty-five years. Her children were named as the heirs of her husband, Enoch Hayden, in his will dated 14 June 1843.[9]

THE ZIMMERMAN FAMILY

1 John Zimmerman, Sr., b. in 1774 in Maryland; d. after 4 December 1852, Henderson County, Kentucky.
Catherine, b. about 1775; d. between 27 August 1836 and 3 August 1841, Henderson County, Kentucky; m. John Zimmerman, Sr., about 1795, probably in Frederick County, Maryland.

2 Elizabeth Zimmerman
3 Polly Zimmerman
4 John Zimmerman, Jr., b. 5 Feb. 1801; d. 6 Feb. 1873

John Zimmerman moved from Frederick County, Maryland, to Henderson County, Kentucky. His name appeared on the tax list for Henderson County without exception from 1813 to 1849, inclusive. No tax records exist for the years 1832 and 1838.

He received a land grant in 1813 for service in the 41st Regiment in the company of Elijah King. John served in the Kentucky militia from 9 March 1813 until 9 September 1813 in Capt. Armstrong Keir's company.[1]

John reported in 1850 that he was seventy-six years of age and that he was born in Maryland. His great grandson, Edward Charles Zimmerman, aged ninety-three, stated his grandfather was born about 25 miles from Philadelphia in Pennsylvania.[2] It may be that he was referring to his great great grandfather who could have been the John Zimmerman who was born 1 October 1748.

John Zimmerman died intestate. He, designated as John Zimmerman, Sr., and his wife, Catherine, conveyed 267 acres of land on Canoe Creek in Henderson County, Kentucky, 22 November 1823 to John Zimmerman, Jr.[3] John conveyed land to his daughter, Polly Arnett, 3 August 1841.[4] As Catherine did not sign the deed she evidently died after signing 27 August 1836. John then conveyed a tract of land to Miles Sutton 18 December 1848,[5] and was enumerated in the Sutton household on the 1850 census.

Sarah Freeman (Edmund,[2] Gideon[1]), b. 7 March 1809, Granville County, North Carolina; d. 3 April 1881 near Lewistown, Missouri, bur. in Lewistown Cemetery; m. John Zimmerman, Jr., about 1827, probably in Kentucky.

10 Elizabeth Agnes Zimmerman, b. 24 Nov. 1839; d. Feb. 1923
11 Patnam Augustus Zimmerman, aged 9 in 1850
12 Mark Francis Zimmerman, b. 13 Oct. 1844
13 Martha B. Zimmerman, aged 13 in 1860
14 James Henry Zimmerman, b. 6 Dec. 1849; d. 25 Dec. 1915
15 Sarah Addie Zimmerman, aged 8 in 1860

John Zimmerman, Jr., moved from Henderson County, Kentucky, to Weakley County, Tennessee, before 1829. In a transaction of land dated 22 November 1823 John Zimmerman, Sr., and his wife, Catherine, conveyed 267 acres of land lying on Canoe Creek in Henderson County to John, Jr.[6] Later that same year John, Jr., conveyed 367 acres of land lying on Canoe Creek in Henderson County to John, Sr.[7] The name of John Zimmerman, Jr., appeared on the Kentucky tax list for Henderson County from 1824 through 1837, but as he served as a juryman in Weakley County, Tennessee, in April and July 1829 he had moved before that date,[8]

He and his family were enumerated on the 1850 census as residents of Weakley County, Tennessee. While the census records indicate that all of his children except Jacob were born in Tennessee this may not have been the case. Gleaned from letters written during the 1950's by descendants of John Zimmerman, Jr., his son Marion Washington Zimmerman was born 11 December 1833 near Reelfoot Lake, Tennessee, which would have been in Obion County, west of Weakley County.[9] Jacob L. Zimmerman was cited as being born 8 March 1835 in Henderson County, Kentucky,[10] which probably occurred during a visit to John's parents. Joseph T. Zimmerman was reportedly born near Paducah, Kentucky, 3 September 1837.[11] Another descendant verified that John Zimmerman, Jr., lived near Paducah, Kentucky, in 1837.[12] He was subsequently enumerated on the 1850 census in Weakley County and it is probable that his son James Henry and his daughter Sarah Addie, born in 1849 and 1852, respectively, were born in Weakley County.

Prior to the Civil War, John Zimmerman, Jr., sold his land and his slaves and moved to Schuyler County, Illinois. He was enumerated on the 1860 census as a resident of Schuyler County, and his sons Jacob and Joseph were also enumerated on the Schuyler County census. His sons William, Jacob, Joseph, and Patman were all married in Schuyler County.

About 1867, John Zimmerman, his wife Sarah, and all of their children, including the families of their married sons, moved to Missouri and Kansas. John settled in Lewis County, Missouri, on a large farm one mile south of Lewistown.

John Zimmerman, Jr., died intestate. His heirs conveyed their shares of his estate to two of his sons, James Henry and Mark Francis Zimmerman in a series of deeds dated 19 December 1873, 26 February, 2 March and 5 March 1874.[13] All of his children were accounted for on the 1850 and 1860 census reports, and dates of birth and death were supplied by three of his grandchildren during the 1950's.

Mary A. Harper (George W.,[4] John,[3] Jacob,[2] Nicholas[1]), b. 26 October 1848 near Lewistown, Lewis County, Missouri; d. 12 April 1936 near Edina, Knox County, Missouri, bur. in Lewistown Cemetery, Lewistown, Missouri; m. James Henry Zimmerman, 24 December 1876, in Lewistown.

James Henry Zimmerman and his brother Mark Francis Zimmerman acquired their father's land from the other heirs and eventually James became sole owner of the land. He was one of the substantial farmers of the community.

He was a man of strong principles and was a staunch member of the Methodist Church. He was tall and spare in appearance and had dark brown eyes that were characteristic of the Zimmerman family.[14]

James Henry Zimmerman died testate. In his will, on file in the office of the Probate Court at Monticello, Missouri, he named each of his four living children. His will, dated 5 March 1915, bears no date of probate and the estate was not settled until January 1937. He willed his estate to his wife, Mary, during her lifetime, and following her death the estate was to be equally divided among his children after specific bequests were given to his two daughters.[15] The property was mortgaged and sold about 1935 to pay off the indebtedness. As one heir, Anna Clay Zimmerman, was a minor, the heirs held a vested interest in the property until suit was brought in Circuit Court in Lewis County. As the parties involved failed to appear the case was lost by default.

Anna Eliza Bowen (Glenn,[2] John[1]), b. 24 June 1885, Quincy, Adams County, Illinois; d. 11 February 1973, St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Hannibal, Marion County, Missouri, bur. in Lewistown Cemetery, Lewis County, Missouri; m. Bertie Clay Zimmerman, 18 March 1907, Lewistown, Missouri.

22 Ed Logan Zimmerman, b. 20 Apr. 1914
23 Anna Clay Zimmerman, b. 3 Mar. 1917

Bertie Clay Zimmerman lived his entire life in Lewis County, Missouri. As a young man he operated a barber shop in Lewistown, Missouri. He sold the shop in December 1906, and devoted the following twenty years to farming. He purchased the Dan Patchin farm, which lay adjacent to his father's farm, in 1907. The farm buildings were surrounded by large apple and pear orchards.

He was active in community affairs and was prominent in the organization of The Grange in Lewis County.[16] This organization of farmers promoted better farming methods and business practices. He was elected a justice of peace in Lewis County and was serving in that capacity when he died. He served as deputy sheriff for several years.[17]

He was a member of the Methodist Church at Lewistown and sang baritone in the choir and as a soloist. Early in life he took an oath that he would neither drink, swear, nor smoke. He was of strong character and moral convictions. He refused to take insulin, as it was a dependency drug, to combat diabetes. A subsequent series of infections brought about his untimely death.

26 Anna Christene Rutherford, b. 21 Jan. 1942
27 Shirley Kay Rutherford, b. 2 June 1943
28 William Clay Rutherford, b. 10 Feb. 1945

Anna Clay Zimmerman was born on a farm south of Lewistown, Missouri, and lived in the community until she was nineteen years of age. She was graduated with honors from the Lewistown High School in 1934.

She entered Northeast Missouri State Teachers College at Kirksville, Missouri, and attended two years before beginning her teaching career. She was graduated from the University of Missouri at Columbia with a B. S. degree in Education in 1952, and with a Master's degree in Education in 1955.

She began her teaching career in 1940 in Lemons, Missouri, as an elementary teacher and subsequently taught in Missouri elementary schools in Greencastle, Moberly, Fulton, Wellington, and Lexington. In 1954 she began teaching art in the high school at Lexington and retired in May 1973. She was a member of the state production committee of the Missouri State Guide for Art in High School which was printed in 1963. The Minuteman, the Lexington High School annual, was sponsored by her from 1960 through 1973, and she was sponsor of the Junior class for ten years. While teaching, Anna was a member of the Missouri State Teachers Association and the National Education Association.

Her membership in NSDAR was established on the patriot ancestor, Nicholas Harper of Virginia, who was buried in the Harper Cemetery near Midway, Kentucky. She served as Regent of the Lafayette-Lexington Chapter DAR, 1974-1976, and was chapter treasurer from 1964 to 1968.

Anna is a member of Delta Kappa Gamma, The Hereditary Register of the United States of America, an associate member of Alden Kindred of America, Inc., an honorary member of The Society of Mayflower Descendants, and a member of the Society of Genealogists, London, England. Her biographical sketch and a history of her ancestors was published in First Five Hundred Families of America 1972-73 and 1974-75. Her biographical sketch was included in the Bicentennial Editions of The Hereditary Register of the United States of America, 1975 and 1976. She is a member of the First Christian Church in Lexington and was elected as a deaconess in 1962 and an elder in 1977. She served as secretary of the church board four years, and was a youth leader.

Her husband, William Kenneth Rutherford, and she compiled and published Genealogical History of the Halliburton Family in 1959 with a revision in 1972; Genealogical History of the Rutherford Family in 1969; Genealogical History of Our Ancestors, 1970 and its current revision.

Collecting genealogical data necessitated extensive travel within the United States. Anna and her husband visited many cemeteries where their ancestors were buried, and many farms and communities in which their ancestors lived. Literally thousands of letters have been written to persons who share the same interest — ancestors —, in addition to the many hours of researching original county records, and visiting libraries.

During 1943 and 1944, Anna, Kay, and Christene, lived at Glenmora, Louisiana, and Gainesville, Texas, near the army camps in which Kenneth was stationed. In February 1945, four and one-half months after Kenneth went overseas, their son was born in Moberly, Missouri. Europe was re-visited in 1973 by Kenneth, accompanied this time by Anna, shortly after they retired.

Anna Clay Zimmerman and her husband, William Kenneth Rutherford, are the parents of Anna Christene (Mrs. Russell Leo Willis, Jr.), Shirley Kay (Mrs. Richard Maurice Tofel), and William Clay Rutherford; and the grandparents of Russell Leo Willis III, Robert Kent Willis, James Brian Tofel, and Andrew William Tofel.

The funeral was held Tuesday at the Methodist church at Lewistown at 10:30 services by the pastor Rev. Luton. He is survived by his wife and four children, two sons, and two daughters, also his mother, one brother Clyde and sister, Mrs. Albert Brown of Lewistown and a sister Mrs. Charles Nicely of Hannibal.
